Experience of U. S., Wisconsin Cited.

BY REUBEN D. CAHN.

And now what of the income tax?

With collections from the general property tax falling far short of meeting the expenditures of local governments, many have urged that the necessity for reduced spending be avoided by a state income tax.

As an abstract theory, little fault will be found with a levy based upon income. A man may have property and get no return from it and so suffer the gradual confiscation of his wealth through the general property tax, but an income tax, theoretically at least, does not work this hardship. It merely requires an income receiver to devote to public purposes some portion of what he actually gets.

Income Tax Not Dependable.

The principle of the income tax is sound enough. But a review of the practical experience with the income tax will show that it offers no solution at all for the present difficulties of spendthrift local governments. In fact, it has been found that here and now a tax based upon income is an even less dependable source of public revenue than a tax based upon property valuation.

In 1929 the income of the American people amounted to 90 billion dollars. A very considerable part of that income was derived from real estate—as boom time rentals, as profits on sales, and as income from securities based upon real estate. Further large incomes consisted of bonuses and high salaries paid to executives of big businesses for their successful management of them. A third substantial contributor was the corporations themselves, on these same large earnings. A fourth, which added substantially to the 90 billion dollar total, was the profits of speculators in securities and commodities and of finance companies and banks—money that was easily made while the cycle was mounting in its upward spiral.

Easy Money Days Gone.

But these are not easy money days. Net income from real estate now is a virtually nonexistent phenomenon. Sales of property at a profit are unheard of. Corporation earnings are a minus quantity. Even the railroad presidents' salaries are no longer fabulous—and a bonus is remembered only as something the world war veterans didn't get.

Taking it all together the income of the American people is down from 90 billion dollars to something like 37 billions for last year and perhaps a few billions over that this year. As a nation we are short 50 billions of having as much to be assessed upon as we had four years ago.

The United States government, which entered upon a scale of spending predicated upon a 90 billion dollar national income, has been badly pinched with what can be raised by assessments against incomes less than half as large. In a single year in which huge profits were realized from such transitory sources as war and its accompanying inflation the government took in nearly 4 billion dollars from the income tax. In 1930, based upon the profits of the crazy boom of 1929, the government collected income taxes totaling 2,410 million dollars.

Income Tax Rate Raised.

But in the succeeding years there were no crazy boom incomes to make assessments upon. The government attempted to arrest the declining receipts by raising the tax rate to the highest since the war and in some respects to the highest in the history of the tax. Exemptions were discontinued, deductions were reduced, and administration was tightened. The results, nevertheless, have been very sad. Here is how income tax receipts went down despite the efforts of the government to keep them from going down:

Year—	Amount.
1931	1,860,000,000
1932	1,057,000,000
1933	747,000,000

This is relatively very much more of a collapse than was experienced in the revenues derived from the property tax in the average city. J. P Morgan and his associates, Charles E. Mitchell, and other prominently wealthy men had no income on which the government could collect any taxes during several of the years since 1929.

U. S. WILL LOAN MONEY TO PAY TO DEPOSITORS

Frozen Assets Will Be Liquidated.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt announced today his program for the liquidation of several thousand closed national and state banks, involving a 50 per cent payoff of depositors.

Approximately one billion dollars is to be loaned by the Reconstruction Finance corporation to enable the liquidating agents of the closed banks to pay depositors half of their deposits.

Money Available at Once.

The money is to be made available at once and the President hopes that it will be possible to begin the distribution of funds to depositors within a week.

Through this project the President aims, by placing a billion dollars in circulation, to give a tremendous fillip to the increase of purchasing power which is essential to the success of his recovery program.

To administer the liquidation, the President announced that a special division of the RFC will be set up to make loans to closed banks under the direction of C. B. Merriam, a director of the RFC.

Names Liquidating Board.

In order that this division may work in close cooperation with the treasury department, the controller of the currency and the Deposit Insurance corporation it will be administered by a deposit liquidation board consisting of the following:

C. B. Merriam, the head of the deposit liquidation board.

Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget.

J. F. T. O'Connor, controller of the currency.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Deposit Insurance corporation.

"The purpose of the deposit liquidation division," Mr. Roosevelt explained, "will be to stimulate and encourage liquidating agents of banks closed after Jan 1, 1933, to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance corporation in order that funds may be made available to depositors as quickly as possible.

Loan Up to 50 Per Cent.

"The general intention is to make loans on the assets of closed banks for the benefit of depositors up to a maximum of 50 per cent of their deposits, inclusive of distributions heretofore made. This does not, of course, mean that in a bank whose remaining assets are worthless the depositors will get 50 per cent. They will get in such a case only their share in the remaining assets.

"It is not intended that such distributions will be uniform but that they will be limited to the orderly liquidation value of assets on which loans can be made, reserving only what will appear sufficient to pay taxes, expenses and interest during the liquidation period. In some cases further distributions will not be possible because assets remaining in the bank will not warrant any further dividends than those heretofore made.

"Distributions in any case will be possible only to the amounts of the loanable value of the assets which have not already been pledged or otherwise disposed of. In cases where the condition of the closed bank will justify it, proper consideration will be given to a larger distribution than 50 per cent. More than one distribution will be made as and if assets improve in value.

Twofold Objective.

"The object of establishing this deposit liquidation division and trying to stimulate the distribution of frozen assets is: First, to place money in the hands of depositors with the least possible delay, and, second, to bring about more orderly liquidation of the assets of closed banks; this will prevent dumping of assets at sacrifice prices."

The President said that special advisory and appraisal committees will be organized throughout the country to speed the appraisal of closed bank assets where such appraisals have not already been made by government agencies. These committees, organized for the appraisal and recommendation

Second Police Slayer Dies in Chair

Killer's Wife Loses Battle for Reprieve

Ross King, 34 years old, a paroled convict who shot and killed Policeman Harry Redlich in a holdup on July 8, was executed in the electric chair at the Cook county jail early this morning.

King was the second police slayer to sit in the electric chair in three days. On Friday morning Morris Cohen, slayer of Policeman Joseph Hastings, died in the chair—the first criminal electrocuted in Cook county in 21 months.

Death March Begins.

The death march began at two minutes after midnight. Blindfolded, King walked into the death chamber with a firm tread. He was accompanied to its door by the Rev. John Fenn, a mission preacher, who prayed with King during his last hours. King twitched nervously as he was strapped quickly into the chair. The cap was fitted on his head and the connections bound to his legs.

At 12:03 the current was turned on, first 1,900 volts for a minute and then 900 volts for two minutes. At 12:06 a. m. a jury of physicians made an examination and pronounced him dead.

Seventy-five persons, chiefly newspaper men and physicians, who had tickets of admission, saw the execution. The body of the killer was taken from the chair to the jail morgue.

Wife Fights to Last.

In his final hours King abandoned all hope of escaping death and nerved himself to meet his fate. His wife, Mrs. Helen King, however, carried on to the last minute her attempt to save him. While King played cards with two jailers in a cell 20 feet from the death chair the wife and an attorney tried vainly to find a judge who would entertain a motion for a sanity hearing.

During the week King's attorneys had exhausted every other avenue of reprieve. The Illinois Supreme court denied a review of his case. Attorney William Scott Stewart made a plea for executive clemency to Gov. Horner. This was refused by the governor upon recommendation of the state board of pardons and paroles.

Writ Denied in U. S. Court.

On Saturday morning Attorney W. G. Anderson, colored, took a petition for a writ of habeas corpus before Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward. He contended that King's constitutional rights had been violated because the State Supreme court had refused a review. The petition was denied.

In the final hours Attorney Anderson and Mrs. King launched their effort for a stay on an insanity petition, although an alienist last week pronounced the slayer legally sane. The last effort to save King was begun after Mrs. King visited her husband with his sister, Miss Lucille King, and his brother, Finlay King.

Throughout the day, before he was transferred to the death cell, King paced nervously in a cell block three floors above the execution chamber. To ease his mind jailers told him of the last minute efforts, but he was convinced these would fail.

"I won't get a break," he said.

Story of the Killing.

King, under the alias of Kenneth Smith, had a long criminal record. He was on parole from a Michigan penitentiary after serving six years for robbery when he killed Policeman Redlich.

Redlich was slain outside the office of the Thomas W. Compton Advertising agency at 9 South Kedzie avenue. King and John Bongiorno, another paroled convict, were robbing the office when the policeman arrived. He had been summoned by a girl employé.

Redlich caught Bongiorno, but King escaped through a window. While Redlich questioned Bongiorno King returned and shot the policeman in the back. Both men were captured as they fled.

Bongiorno Now in Prison.

Bongiorno, who was tried with King, is serving a sentence of 199 years at the Joliet penitentiary. Judge Harry B. Miller sentenced both men on Sept. 18 after they had been found guilty by a jury.

Redlich was one of twelve Chicago policemen slain by gunmen since Jan. 1. Besides Cohen, King, and Bongiorno, two other killers have been caught and convicted. One, John Scheck, is under death sentence.

BERLIN, Oct. 15. — Germany eyed the world today. While fully aware of the seriousness of Chancellor Hitler's action yesterday in pulling Germany out of the league of nations and the disarmament conference, the bulk of the Nazi leaders continued to express elation over escaping from the "mouse trap set in Geneva to catch Germany."

Foreign office officials spent the day scanning "reactions" of other nations to the world-wide crisis caused by Germany's action. They received vast quantities of foreign press comment from German envoys in the various capitals.

Diplomats accredited to Berlin were busy trying to find out what Germany's next move will be.

Door Still Open for Return.

Dr. Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda and public enlightenment, who represented the Nazi government in recent sessions of the league at Geneva, indicated, perhaps, something of Germany's new policy. In a speech at Honne in the Rhineland today he said negotiations are still being carried on for Germany's possible return to the disarmament conference and the league.

"However, if honor and equality are refused to us, we will not return to the conference table," Dr. Goebbels declared.

He reiterated Hitler's offer of cooperation with France.

Diplomatic circles also are keenly watching Premier Mussolini's efforts to frame a compromise between Germany and the former allies on disarmament.

Hitler Speaks at Munich.

Hitler devoted the day to artistic problems. He solemnly proclaimed Munich the "art capital of Germany." With Gen. Franz Ritter von Epp, governor of Bavaria, and a galaxy of Nazi leaders he laid the corner stone for a new art palace to replace the Crystal palace, gutted by fire June 6, 1931.

"Today's ceremony should demonstrate to the world Germany's peaceful intentions and illustrate her interest in the furthering of art and culture which is vital to the progress of the civilized world," Gen. von Epp said.

"Ours is the splendid task to fill people's hearts with fresh courage," Hitler said in a brief talk. "Give them work to build up a new community, curb enemies with an iron hand, and protect the nation with its moral and cultural treasures from the elements of destruction."

The chancellor was received with thundering ovations from the thousands gathered to witness the pageantry of art. The builders of the new art palace presented Hitler with a silver hammer with which to lay the corner stone. After the first stroke the hammer broke, only the handle remaining in Hitler's hand.

The German press, now completely controlled by the Hitler government, today devoted considerable attention to Germany's future relations with other nations. The Boersen Kourrier said it expects a hard siege ahead.

AMATEUR SLEUTH TRACES SLAYER OF HIS BROTHER

Jack Biewar, 32 years old, of 3907 Sheridan road, was in police custody last night as the suspected killer of Nicholas Schwartz, 3431 Bosworth avenue, as the result of the detective work of Schwartz's brother, Michael, 26 years old.

But Michael himself was also arrested—on a charge of carrying concealed weapons.

Nicholas Schwartz was shot in the back on the night of Sept. 12 and robbed of $10, which he was taking home from the gasoline station which he and his brother operated near by. The murder was characterized by police as unusually cold blooded.

Since the slaying Michael Schwartz—and police, too—had sought Biewar for questioning. Yesterday Michael traced him to the Sheridan road address, and notified police. Detectives McGarry Fergus and Justin McCarthy waited 12 hours for Biewar, then captured him. Dorothy Reno, his sweetheart, was also seized, as later were two men, William Russell and John Fritz. Meanwhile Schwartz was found to be carrying a gun and was held.

Lieut. Steve Barry of the Sheffield avenue station said Schwartz's arrest was mandatory despite his good intentions. Police will intercede for him, Barry promised.

COLD KEEPS BYRD FROM FAREWELL FETE AT NORFOLK

Norfolk, Va., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Admiral Byrd, suffering from a severe cold and running a temperature of 101, was unable to be present at the farewell ceremonies for his expedition at the navy yard tonight, but broadcast from his sickbed his speech for the occasion.

As his speech was cut off before the end his mother and two brothers, Senator Harry F. Byrd and Tom Byrd, hastened from the navy yard to his hotel room. But the cause of the break lay in the radio mechanism. Mrs. Byrd did not want to leave him to go to the ceremonies, but he insisted that she should go.

Thieves Raid Winkler Flat as Widow Attends Funeral

Mrs. Georgette Winkler, widow of Gus Winkler, gangster who was slain a week ago, reported to the police yesterday that while she was in St. Louis attending her husband's funeral, burglars entered the Winkler apartment at 3300 Lake Shore drive and took ten sable furs valued at $3,000.

Sell Luxurious Furnishings of Night Clubman

Antique dealers and curiosity seekers trooped into the gold coast residence at 1258 Lake Shore drive yesterday and saw how a night club king lived.

They were there ostensibly to purchase the household furnishings owned by Edgar B. Lebensberger, proprietor of the 225 club at 225 East Superior street, who was found shot to death, evidently by his own hand, in the home on Oct. 6. The suicide occurred a few hours before he was indicted by the government for complicity in the $250,000 loop mail robbery of last Dec. 6.

Though many came merely to look, others were there to buy. Numerous sales were made during the day, but no report was made as to the purchasers or the amounts.

Furnishings Are Lavish.

Those who entered the Lebensberger home, with its Italian renaissance façade, looked upon movielike splendor. There were furnishings of exquisite design and richness. There was handicraft of forgotten masters of design on silks and gold. There were oriental carpets and a pearl inlaid chair. The entire spirit of the decorations was one of lavishness.

Early in September, Lebensberger, in good health but probably of troubled mind, advertised that he would sell his furnishings, which cost him $40,000, for the sum of $9,000. There were no takers. His sudden death did not alter the disposition to sell, but rather emphasized it. Now, however, it is his widow, Luella, who wishes to sell the furnishings. The price is the same—$9,000 for $40,000.

Rich Furniture Described.

Courteous attendants showed the people around the Lebensberger residence yesterday. The first floor, with its butler's pantry, kitchen and service rooms, received admiring interest, but nothing compared to the second and third floors.

The second floor contained a spacious living room, shiny floors well covered, and large windows heavily draped. Also there was a library, and an alcove fitted out like a bar. In the rear was a lounge room containing a huge, expensive desk, and alongside this a $1,650 radio. The radio was available to any buyer having $650.

The third floor was one of especial splendor. Lebensberger's bedroom, where he was found dead ten days ago, was in the antique style, the bedroom set alone costing $5,000.

Large and imposing, with a silken canopy protecting it, stood a Boule bed of black ebony, with gold inlay and French enamel, over 200 years old. It was the work of Andre Charles Boule, a French carver of wood, who developed his grand style under Louis XIV.

"There is only one other set like this in the world, and that other one is owned by Harry Thaw," explained an attendant, indicating the bedroom set.

Boudoir More Modern.

In the same room sat a small chair, its back dotted with pearls. Soft rugs covered the floor, and eye easing drapes and curtains shielded the windows. Not far from this room was situated Mrs. Lebensberger's room, equally well furnished, but more in the modern taste. Upstairs the attic floor revealed servants' quarters and a studio, forlorn except for an unused artist's easel.

There was one article, a mere novelty, that received many bids. It was a whisky jug which, when picked up, burst into music. This was the way the late night club king played a joke on his guests who would try to steal drinks.

Mexico Has a Lieutenant for Every 2 Enlisted Men

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Mexican army has one lieutenant for every two enlisted men, according to a war office report today. The total number of enlisted men is 49,731, while there are 21,750 lieutenants in active service. The generals number 398.

ate Germany," the newspaper declared. "There are many ways of doing this because we are weak and defenseless. We must therefore stand for many actions which other countries would consider interference with their sovereignty and which they would answers with a declaration of war."

Hitler's address to the nation yesterday was repeated in the course of the night by all Germany's high power stations reaching foreign countries. The speech was broadcast in the German, English, French, Spanish, and Portuguese languages.

Plans Good-Will Tour.

It is reported that Vice Chancellor Franz von Papen will begin a tour of the Balkans and Turkey in the near future to try to establish contact with the governments of eastern Europe, which, in recent months, have been in close touch with Poland and are believed to be shying at relations with Germany.

Official circles, although keenly aware that the international political situation is critical, issued the following statement today:

"The United States, which refused to enter the league of nations, though it was a creation of the late President Woodrow Wilson, will in the course of time recognize that Germany was as peaceful in her intentions in withdrawing from the league as America was in keeping out of it.

"The league only brought grief to Germany and failed in its fundamental mission of establishing better cooperation between nations. Therefore it wastes the time of officials and the money of taxpayers. Direct negotiations as initiated by Premier Mussolini may prove to be more practical purveyors of understanding than the league's gabfests."

Meanwhile, Germans are being rallied behind Hitler in his campaign to unite the nation on his program through a nation-wide plebiscite on Nov. 12. The nation will elect a new reichstag, which will be a hand picked body of Nazi because no other list of candidates will be submitted to the voters.

Pledge Their Loyalty.

A flood of telegrams poured into the chancellory. Without exception, the messages assure Hitler of the loyalty of the senders, according to Nazi officials.

But, the chancellor is taking no chances. He ordered all bulletin boards placarded with his appeal for unity. Newspaper editorials unequivocally indorsed his stand. On top of this, a semi-official communique warned possible oppositionists to keep out of the reichstag election. The communique said:

"Others than those on the Nazi lists will hardly be returned, as they would have to carry 60,000 signatures, and in the Germany of today there will not be 60,000 people ready to lend their names to a freak party."

End to Peace Deals: Poland.

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The semi-official Gazeta Polska, commenting on Germany's withdrawal from the league of nations, in an article entitled "The Fiction's End," asserted that the chapter of peace negotiations which has lasted since the treaty of Versailles was signed, has ended.

The newspaper said that in practice nothing would change, but that psychologically much would change, since it had become clear that Germany openly desired to proceed with armaments.

Russia Is Silent.

MOSCOW, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Beyond describing the situation as "highly interesting," official soviet quarters refrained from comment today on Germany's withdrawal from the league of nations and the summoning of new parliamentary elections.

Although the general opinion in official circles seemed to be that Germany's actions are of more immediate concern to the rest of Europe than to soviet Russia, the Kremlin is watching the developments with the closest attention.

As a nonmember and one of the severest critics of whatever it regards as shortcomings of the league, the bolshevik state probably would sit back and smile ironically at the present situation were it not firmly convinced that a new race for armaments would be highly dangerous to the peace of the world.

To that extent at least, therefore, its interests are linked with those of other nations which are participating in the disarmament conference. The soviet press, likewise, refrained from any comment, merely publishing news dispatches and a short summary of Chancellor Hitler's speech.

Russia Urges Real Disarmament.

Meanwhile the soviet government's intention to continue its efforts toward real disarmament was stated in a telegram sent by Vyascheslaff Molotoff, president of the council of commissars, to Lord Robert Cecil of Great Britain at Geneva.

"Notwithstanding that not all neighbors of the soviet country are carrying on a policy of peace," Molotoff's telegram said, "Russia is bent on continuing negotiations."

The telegraph message was in answer to Lord Robert's request for an expression of opinion from the soviets in connection with the meeting today of an international group for a discussion of disarmament.

Balkans Await Cues from France and Italy in Crisis

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Oct. 15.—For once in a crisis the Balkan and near Balkan governments are, as far as can be determined, "sitting tight." They are watching expectantly the western capitals and every one of them has pointed out in the official press that the situation provoked by Germany's withdrawal yesterday from the league of nations and the disarmament parley as yet only involves Berlin.

The Budapest Pester Lloyd, a German language paper which is regarded as a mouthpiece of the Hungarian government, while sympathizing with Germany in her claims for arms equality, accused Hitler of having an attack of nerves. It expressed fear that Germany will find herself politically and morally isolated.

Will Stay in League.

As for Hungary and her patron Italy, Pester Lloyd assures the Hungarian public there is not any question of them leaving either the conference or the league.

"Hungary approves of Germany's position, but not her tactics," the paper said.

This crisis finds the Balkan governments in a whirl of social calls on each other to prepare a kind of Balkan Locarno to end the long isolation of Bulgaria and possibly go still further. Whether this pacification will be speeded up or completely undone will depend on the courses taken by France and Italy in dealing with Hitler.

It is obvious to every Balkan capital, where ears are extremely sensitive to either the French or Italians, depending on the particular alignment, that the slightest disagreement between Paris and Rome in the face of the German situation could chill the tentative cordiality in the Balkans.

Austrian Socialists Attacked.

Only in Austria today of all countires where international influences run riot was the delicate situation further aggravated. Maj. Emil Fey, Chancellor Dollfuss' vice chancellor, came out with a new broadside against the Socialists, indicating that the Fascist Heimwehr will not let up in their insistence that the party be dissolved as Mussolini counsels and as Paris has urgently discouraged.

"The government will see to it that nothing like this happens again," he said.

Dollfuss called off a speech he was to make today in view of the delicacy of the international situation, but Maj. Fey expressed himself apropos Germany as follows:

"It is too soon to predict the consequences of Germany's withdrawal, but whatever happens to Germany on the domestic or international front, Austria is in no danger. Austria is keeping up a patriotic love for the fatherland."

Socialists, Nazis Riot.

Leopold Kunschak, chief of the Christian Socialists [Dollfuss party] in the Vienna city council, said, "Though we all think and feel as Germans and realize what grave responsibility Hitler has undertaken, we all pray that the act of the German government will not bring upon Europe a new Sarajevo."

Police charged mobs in the suburbs of Vienna today to break up a riot in which Socialists and nonuniformed Nazis engaged when the latter were returning from their observance of the anniversary of the death of two of their members at the hands of Marxists a year ago.

In services at a cemetery a Nazi leader said, "The day is not far off when instead of a clandestine meeting we can hold a monster public gathering in their memory."

They marched back to town in formation and gave the Hitler salute which started the trouble. There were 30 arrests and a number of minor injuries.

Some quarters in Vienna, meanwhile, attach importance to the fact that Jugo-Slav military maneuvers are continuing in the frontier regions.

PEER PLEADS FOR DENUNCIATION OF LOCARNO PACT

LONDON, Oct. 15. — (AP) — Lord Beaverbrook, the publisher, pleaded for denunciation of the Locarno peace pact in a speech at the Guild hall tonight, declaring France "at this moment" has the right to demand British cooperation in military action against Germany.

"At present," he said, "we must take part if a war breaks out. The government of Great Britain speaking through Stanley Baldwin [lord president of the council], ten days ago intimated that the treaty of Locarno is regarded by the ministers as of the same importance as the treaty guaranteeing the neutrality of Belgium for which we went to war in 1914.

"The treaty of Locarno obliges us, after deliberations of the council of the league of nations, to assist the French in driving armed Germans from the left bank of the Rhine if fortifications are built or military defensive measures are taken there by the Germans."

Japan Advances Crisis as Argument for War Budget

TOKIO, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Declining to comment on the disarmament crisis, Premier Makoto Saito instructed Foreign Minister Koki Hirota to report on the situation with recommendations at today's cabinet meeting. The Japanese army and navy seized upon what is interpreted as the league's failure and the collapse of disarmament efforts as clinching the argument with which War Minister Araki was expected to insist that the cabinet approve his demand for the $350,000,000 military budget for 1934 and 1935.

BRITAIN DECIDES HITLER'S SPEECH WAS 'NOT SO BAD'

MacDonald Tells Simon to Stay at Geneva.

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald returned to No. 10 Downing street earlier than usual tonight from Chequers, where he spent the week end, and prepared to guide Great Britain through the critical days resulting from Germany's break with the League of Nations and the arms parley.

The premier continued telephone conferences with Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary, and his contacts with Stanley Baldwin, president of the council and Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer. The three cabinet ministers decided that the foreign minister should remain in Geneva in the event of a full conference meeting tomorrow.

British official quarters still remained under MacDonald's edict of silence. Unofficially, political circles discussed the Hitler speech, commenting that it was not so bad as it could have been, but that such conciliatory utterances as Hitler made failed to compensate for Germany's action.

Says League Will Survive.

Simon is expected, by his efforts at Geneva, to uphold both the prestige of the league and the work of the arms parley. Whether this view will prevail at Geneva depends upon France and Italy and the American policy as regards the disarmament conference.

The most authoritative view of the situation and one likely to have weight in cabinet circles was made available by Sir Thomas Inskip, attorney general of the national government, who said:

"I feel that war is a good way off yet, and that the league is the greatest factor toward obtaining world peace."

Sir Thomas said the League of Nations would survive Germany's departure just the same as it had done the departure of Japan, but that there was no doubt the league would be weaker as a result of Germany's withdrawal.

Scores Hitler Method.

Among outstanding points made in London's morning newspaper editorials regarding Germany's action at Geneva are that peace in Europe is in no wise necessarily threatened and that peoples and governments must keep cool heads and work all the more earnestly for peace.

The Times scored Hitler for introducing into foreign affairs "the ways of a swashbuckler and a hothead which answered him well in internal politics in Germany." The paper urged the government to publish as soon as possible "the scheme Germany rejected on the eve of its conclusion."

The London Post, which from the inception of the league of nations opposed and ridiculed it and admired America's refusal to join, said: "There is less occasion for panic than for relief that so much humbug has been swept away."

Right of Protest.

The Telegraph said: "No grounds exist for the fear that peace is endangered, although the league suffered a disastrous shock. The prospect of disarmament today is no worse, and there is still a possibility it may be improved."

The News Chronicle maintained that Germany had right on her side in protesting the failure of the allies to effect their promise to disarm, but took the worst possible way of attaining her ends.

The Mail contended Hitler's action brought no startling change in position, saying "the danger at the moment lies in the possibility that his move will prompt other powers to take counter measures which might be pregnant with grave results."

The Labor-Socialist Herald blamed the allies and especially Sir John Simon's speech at Geneva Saturday for the situation. "Germany was not invited to negotiate a compromise; she was asked to accept a humiliation," the paper said. Wherever war comes the United States won't be there, and we should stay away, too."

WORKER DIES OF INJURIES.

Martin Gabrys, 44 years old, 940 Will street, died yesterday in the West Side hospital of injuries received Oct. 1 when he was struck by a sheet of metal dropped by a crane in the Otto Zobler boiler works, 532 North Oakley boulevard.

Washington Approves Davis' Aim to Keep Conference Alive

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Threads of information from European capitals were drawn together tonight by American officials in an effort to form a policy of diplomatic action in the crisis created by Germany's surprising withdrawal from the league of nations and the arms conference.

There was no disposition to minimize the magnitude of the challenge to the whole disarmament movement presented by the Hitler government's sudden action, but definite steps have not taken shape. Washington officials expressed agreement with the decision reached at Geneva by the major powers to recommend a recess of the arms parley for a brief period, but to stand firmly against a final adjournment.

At the state department it was said the chief of the American arms delegation, Norman H. Davis, had authority to join in such a recommendation without consulting his home government.

Mussolini May Be Rescuer.

The recess was regarded as desirable to enable the parley to recover somewhat from the blow dealt by Germany's withdrawal and to enable the world's statesmen to work out a solution if one can be found. In some quarters it was felt that Benito Mussolini might emerge as the leader of efforts to reconcile the conflicting views of Germany and the former allies.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull today pored over the few official reports received from Berlin, Geneva, and other European centers. The state department maintained contact with the White House. Conversations between President Roosevelt and Hull and perhaps telephone conversations between Washington and Geneva are planned before a definite American move will be made. Davis, however, will carry on more intensively than ever his quiet efforts at Geneva to reconcile conflicting viewpoints.

Here were some of the questions in the minds of American officials today to which no definite answer has been given:

Can Germany be brought back to the arms conference as she was last December when her delegates walked out? The opinion in official circles was that this cannot be accomplished, at least for a long time.

Does Germany intend to denounce the restrictive provisions of the peace treaties and rearm in spite of them? Officials noted with interest a press report that a German spokesman said the withdrawal did not mean that Germany would rearm in spite of the treaties.

Can anything be accomplished in the way of disarmament with Germany out of the conference? The American position at present is that the conference should be saved from a breakdown which might mean an end to all efforts for disarmament and the beginning of a great international armaments race.

U. S. Opposes Rearmament.

A few important points bearing on American policy became plain:

The United States is firmly opposed to present rearmament by any nation and in this it stands with its one-time allies, notably France and Great Britain.

It recognizes Germany's right to equality of armaments "in a system which would provide security for all nations" but believes this must come about by stages and through reduction of the military power of the heavily armed states rather than through German rearmament.

In endeavoring to bring this about it is employing diplomacy marked by careful consideration of the national feelings of Germany and other nations.

PORTUGAL SEES GERMAN THREAT TO HER COLONIES

[Copyright, 1933: By the New York Times.]

LISBON, Portugal, Oct. 15.—Portuguese officials said privately today that Germany's quitting the league of nations was probably an attempt to obtain friendly conciliation.

There has been considerable fear expressed in the press that a large part of the Portuguese colonial empire, which is the third largest in the world, would be handed back to Germany by the powers as a concession. A large part of the Portuguese colonial empire was formerly German, having been ceded to Portugal after the war, in which she fought on the allied side.

U. S. HELPS SAVE DISARM PARLEY FROM GRAVEYARD

Powers Decide on Brief Adjournment.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Oct. 15. — America, through her membership in the disarmament conference, today stepped into one of the key positions in the European crisis precipitated yesterday by the withdrawal of Germany from the conference and the league of nations.

It was Norman H. Davis, President Roosevelt's ambassador-at-large, who, in a secret conclave of representatives of the big four—the United States, France, Britain, and Italy—and officials of the disarmament conference steering committee, today blocked a movement to adjourn the conference indefinitely after tomorrow's meeting of the general commission.

To Adjourn for Brief Period.

Instead, the conference will adjourn for a brief period—tentatively set at ten days. During this time the various delegations will consult with their governments—the French with their allies and the British to see if continuation of the parley is possible.

The United States likewise is participating in the answer which will be sent to Foreign Minister Konstantin von Neurath's telegram announcing Germany's withdrawal from the conference. This reply, the text of which is being kept secret, is understood to refute the German accusation that the conference did not intend to bring about general disarmament and that the former allies were unwilling to disarm.

The repudiation of the German accusation further binds the big powers to carry out the disarmament pledges of the treaty of Versailles.

By implication the reply thus reminds the Germans that they, too, are still bound by the treaty until their signature is added to a disarmament convention replacing it.

Meet in Hotel Rooms.

The conclave at which these decisions were taken was held in the hotel rooms of Arthur H. Henderson, president of the conference. Besides Davis, there were present Joseph Paul-Boncour, French foreign minister; Sir John Simon, British foreign secretary; Sig. Soragna of Italy, Joseph Avenol, secretary general of the league; Henderson, and officials of the steering committee, Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia, and Nicholas Politis of Greece.

After this morning's meeting, which was devoted to the working out of an agreement as to the general tenor of the answer to be sent to Germany, a second meeting was held in the afternoon. It lasted from 5 o'clock until 9 o'clock, while the experts, including Allen W. Dulles for the United States, collaborated on the draft reply to Germany in another room.

The principal question to be decided was whether the conference could continue at all without Germany. The Italians were the principal champions of adjournment sine die as they still are dreaming of a five power conference under their leadership.

Davis Threatens to Leave.

The factor which determined the decision to take only a fixed adjournment for a few days was a threat by Davis to pack up his bags and leave the "future combatants" a free hand and all of Europe to fight it out. When Soragna suggested that while the conference was adjourned, Davis could visit the principal capitals and act as a mediator between them, the American envoy is understood to have replied that he had no mandate to carry on anything but a disarmament conference so that if the conference adjourned sine die he would be obliged to return to America.

This was interpreted by the European delegates as meaning that if the conference can be kept going in even the most perfunctory form the United States will continue to consult with the former allies over the threat to peace created by Germany's action—a subject directly and obviously connected with disarmament.

The conference thus unofficially will take the place of a permanent league assembly. Consquently it is the hope of Europeans that if the menace of German rearmament becomes more acute the United States can be drawn through the conference into collective sanctions to make Germany respect treaty obligations.

Seek to Keep Parley Alive.

The league and international pacifist circles are keenly interested in the maintenance of the conference since, as long as it exists, there is a common world front against Germany, while without it Europe would immediately line up into two hostile blocs ready to fly at each other's throats.

It remains to be seen whether the French and their allies will trust to international coöperation in the framework of the conference or whether they will feel obliged to force an immediate showdown over German rearmament, leading almost certainly to war. That is why a brief adjournment after tomorrow's perfunctory session of the general commission is necessary.

It will enable the different governments concerned, mainly the French and their supporters, to fix a concrete policy toward Germany. On the return to Geneva there will be either a formal session winding up the conference—which means war sooner or later—or else the powers will continue to frame a treaty without Germany. It was strenuously affirmed on all sides today that there is no question of trying to bring Germany back into the fold.

Germans in a Hole.

Obviously the application of any treaty framed would have to be made conditional on Germany's eventual adherence. The theory is that by signing a convention agreeing to disarm, the war victors would be fulfilling their obligations under the treaty of Versailles, which the Germans say they have ignored. Then world opinion could be mobilized for bearing down so hard on the Germans—possibly carrying out an economic blockade—that they would either be obliged to yield or else Chancellor Hitler's régime would be thrown sky high.

In the light of all this the answer to Von Neurath's telegram is extremely important. The reply will be conciliatory in tone, leaving a loophole for Germany to come back into the conference at a future date, but repudiating point by point the accusations made by Germany.

The message will be submitted to the general commission tomorrow by Henderson, who will send it to Berlin if no member of the commission disapproves the text.

Denounces Germany at Rally.

The present spirit of the disarmament conference was symbolized by a huge mass meeting held under the auspices of Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, veteran league partisan, here tonight. This meeting has much more significance than the general run of pacifist manifestations since President Roosevelt, Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain, Premier Daladier of France, and Premier Molotov of Russia sent messages supporting the cause of disarmament.

The audience cheered frantically when Lord Cecil, the principal speaker, denounced Germany for quitting the conference and predicted that her people would one day rue this decision. They cheered even more frantically when the British peer declared the conference must go on to work up a "fair treaty" to be presented to Germany for a "yes" or "no" answer.

The Italians have come out clearly supporting Hitler. A Stefani news agency dispatch from Rome praises the pacific tone of the German chancellor's radio speech and stresses the necessity of an indefinite adjournment of the conference while hinting at a five power conference to be held in Stresa.

This made the French wild and they ridiculed the suggestion.

Navy Is in Revolt

PENANG, Federated Malay States, Oct. 16. — [Monday.]—(AP)—Passengers arriving today from Bangkok, Siam, said the Siamese navy had joined rebels in their attack on the government and seized the national arsenal. They reported also the important station of Petchaburi was captured.

Seizure of the arsenal means that government troops will be unable to replenish ammunition when the present stocks are exhausted. The Federated Malay States railway is issuing no tickets for points beyond Petchaburi.

[The Siamese navy, according to latest information available in London, has a personnel of 5,000 with 20,000 in reserve. Naval equipment includes two 1,000 ton cruisers, three destroyers, four torpedo boats, and various small gunboats and other minor craft.]

FRANCE STICKS BY GUNS; REJECTS FOUR POWER DEAL

Declines to Engage in Private Arms Talks.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 15.—Adolf Hitler's bold blast has not shaken France from the determination to stick to her guns at Geneva, it was authoritatively declared in Paris today. It has, on the other hand, moved France to indicate clearly that she will not be maneuvered by Germany or Italy into continuing disarmament negotiations within the framework of the four power pact.

If the disarmament conference is gasping for breath, the four power pact is stone dead as long as Germany stays away from Geneva, says France, and the officially expressed opinion in Rome that the conference should be adjourned in favor of private negotiations falls on deaf ears here.

Daladier Calm in Crisis.

Premier Daladier is the personification of cool headedness. He will not even bring up the German bombshell before the chamber of deputies when it meets Tuesday, according to reliable information today.

"France has not modified her line of conduct which is well known," the source of this statement added. "She went to Geneva to sign a disarmament convention. She showed herself ready to make heavy sacrifices to favor its achievement. She has no reason today to change this desire to obtain concrete results within the framework of Geneva.

"Consequently our government maintains its propositions and makes its own the words of Sir John Simon British foreign secretary, 'the conference continues.' The decision taken at Geneva by the disarmament delegates, as well as the British reaction, shows that international opinion is with us."

The reasons that France will give for refusal to negotiate under the four power pact were indicated in the semi-official Temps today. Discussing the German action in a leading editorial the Temps said:

"There existed undoubtedly the ulterior thought that by causing the failure of the disarmament conference the reich could attempt to have the problem of armaments taken up in another diplomatic terrain, for example, by bringing the four power pact into play. But that would be a new error, for under the terms of its preamble and essential stipulations the four power pact is linked with the league of nations.

Insists Arms Parley Subsist.

"It calls for confident collaboration within the league. It imposes on the four principal powers an obligation to make every effort to assure the success of the disarmament conference from which Germany excludes herself. The truth is that the disarmament conference subsists, that it will not be given up because of the voluntary absence of Germany, and that the policy of solidarity among the powers as realized at Geneva will continue."

The opinion of Paris is very wary as to the speech of Chancellor Hitler. As one commentator put it: "We are not used to that sort of thing, so a little distrust must be excused us."

Others saw it as a maneuver, by throwing bouquets at Daladier and renouncing any designs on Alsace-Lorraine, in order to wean France away from its increasingly close understanding with Great Britain, not to mention Poland and other eastern allies.

In most quarters Hitler's "hands across the Rhine" speech was answered by a plea for France to strengthen her alliances with other countries which is hardly what Hitler calculated to do. Ere Nouvelle, a paper very close to former Premier Edouard Herriot, sees as a necessary sequel to the speech an attempt by France to tighten the links with Russia and Turkey.

ITALY INSISTS ARMS PARLEY SHOULD END ITS DELIBERATIONS

ROME, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Stefani, the official news agency, issued a statement today saying official Italian quarters admit the disarmament conference cannot continue its meetings because of the withdrawal of Germany from the conference and the league of nations. The Stefani statement follows:

"In official Italian quarters the decisions taken by the German government, although unexpected, were learned with the greatest calm.

"Nobody denies that these decisions are serious, chiefly in their eventual development, but in the present state of things one must look at the situation as it is and determine how it is possible to direct affairs toward an agreement.

"The substance and the tone of the speech of Chancellor Hitler [delivered yesterday after Germany's withdrawal was announced] and his message to the German people do not shut all the doors, inasmuch as the desire on the part of Germany to collaborate for peace was categorically reaffirmed.

"In official Italian quarters it is admitted that because of Germany's withdrawal the disarmament conferences cannot continue its meetings and that an adjournment is necessary.

"It is expected that necessary and sufficient conditions to permit reexamination of the whole problem will arise."

FEAR CRUSHES REAL GERMANY, EINSTEIN SAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 16.—"Distracted Germans," Dr. Albert Einstein thinks, "are easily cajoled into a new venture, because they think they cannot change for the worse. The real spiritual forces of the country are not extinct but crushed into silence: there is all manner of dissent, but the intellectuals have been lacking in courage and in the dictatorship that has been established, it is impossible to guess how large numerically the dissension opinion is."

That was the reaction of the world famous scientist to the wireless message received on shipboard telling about Germany's resignation from the league of nations and her decision to take no further part in the disarmament conference. Dr. H. L. Stewart, noted author and professor of philosophy at Dalhousie university, said here tonight.

With the exception of a welcoming delegation of Halifax Jews who presented a bouquet to Frau Einstein, the university professor was the only person granted an interview.

NAZI LABOR HEAD ANSWERS A. F. L. BOYCOTT IN U. S.

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Wilhelm Reichardt, secretary of the Nazi "workers-front," said today of the American Federation of Labor boycott:

"It is untrue that it has been made impossible for workers in Germany to organize themselves—that is only a lie of those emigrants who by their betrayal of the workers have plunged German working classes into the deepest misery."

Reichardt said no other country gives more attention to the unionising of labor than Germany.

CATHOLIC PASTOR DEFENDS HITLER; ASSAILS PRESS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Uniting the theater, the press, and the tavern as a triumvirate of potential evils, the Rev. Peter F. Dietz, pastor of St. Monica's catholic church of fashionable Whitefish Bay in his sermon today entered a defense and praise of Adolf Hitler for the steps he has taken to control them.

"Hitler has thrown out of Germany the corrupt, filthy, and vicious stage; the same stage that is permitted to corrupt the oncoming generation of American youth," the priest said. "Here as in Germany, it is the same corrupt and immoral influence that is responsible.

Put End to Corruption.

"We know what they are doing and we also know what we have to do and that is put an end to the theatrical corruption, and that goes for Hollywood and its unspeakable viciousness also; these things are an abomination and a stench and those who are responsible and profit by them must be castigated and ostracised from our country as well as from every other Christian land.

"There is also the sacrosanct 'freedom of the press,' another outworn, liberal fetish. There is no free press. The people who own newspapers control the policy and they will print only what suits themselves. That is true of all newspapers. They are private enterprises for self interest and profit and, I for one, do not blame Hitler for throwing out of the country bag and baggage every newspaper that by its lewd, vicious, subversive, and unpatriotic character had no right to exist anyway.

"Only a discriminating reader is fit to use a newspaper; the press is not disinterested. It makes no particular appeal to intelligence and its moral influence is almost altogether bad.

Drag In Sex Appeal.

"The liquor problem is another example. We hear a lot about what the brewers want and the tavern keepers, and now what the barmaids want. Everybody knows the brewer is out to make money; the tavern people cry that they can't make a living at the price of beer the brewer exacts and they drag in the sex appeal and the bar maid.

"There is no reason for the barmaid and the darkened two by four dance halls and the curtains. A decent community will not have it. The tavern must be a place where a man can take his wife and his children and where he will find the tavern keeper a host and not a tawdry exploiter.

"We must not lend ourselves to the corruption of the theater or the press or the tavern. These institutions are legitimate in themselves and answer to a legitimate need. Let them be clean and help in our social problems.

"Under the NRA it ought not to be too difficult to recognize that there are moral standards that cannot be disregarded. While the people are not organized to create the kind of environment that will minister nobly to their needs, they may yet rise in holy anger and make decisions in the interests of higher ideals."

WARM WEATHER PACKS STREETS WITH AUTOISTS

Warm, sunny weather yesterday gave residents of the Chicago area an ideal opportunity for outdoor recreations, and they took advantage of it. The parks were filled and motoring was so popular that traffic congestion became a problem.

The temperature reached a maximum of 78 at 3 o'clock, unusually warm, but not a record for this time of the year.

One of the worst traffic jams in the city yesterday was on Foster avenue, the connecting link between the new outer drive extension and Sheridan road and Ashland avenue. New police signs informed motorists that there was no parking on Foster avenue, but these were ignored and parked cars on both sides of the narrow thoroughfare caused long delays.

PAINTING PRESENTED TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

"Amber Light," a painting by Jonas Lie depicting the schooner Amberjack passing a fishing fleet off Campobello island, New Brunswick. It has been presented to President Roosevelt by the artist and now hangs in the White House study as a memento of the President's cruise during the summer.

ROOSEVELT ACTS TO FREE MONEY IN CLOSED BANKS

Will Loan Billion on Frozen Assets.

of these loans, will be recruited from representative local bankers, business men, and farmers.

"It is estimated," Mr. Roosevelt added, "that the maximum available loanable value of the assets of banks closed during the year 1933 will not exceed one billion dollars and it is hoped that the distribution will approximate that amount. The exact amount that can be distributed will be governed by the appraisal of the actual assets of each closed bank. Until that appraisal is made, the amount involved cannot be more accurately stated.

Supplemented by Insurance Funds.

"Funds for the liquidation of deposits will be supplied by the Reconstruction Finance corporation. These funds may be supplemented later by the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation.

"I am particularly anxious that this matter be handled with dispatch and to that end solicit the coöperation of all who may have official or other authority in connection with any closed bank.

"The United States government has authority over closed national banks and can speed up distribution in those banks if those directly will coöperate, but the government is without authority over closed state banks. If delays occur in the case of state banks, they will be due to reasons beyond the control of the national government."

FITS WITH STATE PROGRAM.

State Auditor Edward J. Barrett was not in the city last night but representatives of his office said that President Roosevelt's plan of liquidating deposits in closed banks was right in line with what the auditor has been trying to do. Every possible effort to expedite the securing of loans with which to pay deposit dividends to depositors in the 532 closed banks in Illinois will be made by the auditor, it was stated at his office.

Barrett's representatives pointed out that a loan of $460,000 was recently obtained from the RFC and that a 25 per cent dividend was paid by the Ridgley Farmers bank at Springfield.

The auditor's assistants did not believe that it would be necessary to appoint local appraisal boards for state banks in Illinois because the receivers and deputy receivers, who have been trying to dispose of real estate and farm mortgages, already have the best available knowledge of their value.

POLICEMAN RACES STREET CAR AND GRABS A BURGLAR

Policeman Patrick McHale of the Des Plaines street station outran a street car last night to seize a young burglar. The prisoner identified himself as Samuel Francisco, 17 years old, of 1947 Emerson avenue. His companion, Albert Forts, also 17, of 538 North Leavitt street, was captured too.

The pair broke into William J. Conlon's tavern at 184 North Halsted street. When police arrived at the place Francisco ran away and jumped upon the rear platform of a north bound Halsted street car. Policeman McHale followed on foot, overtook the car, leaped on the rear platform, and collared Francisco on the front platform.

Meanwhile Policemen Henry Caraher, John Howard, and Patrick Gilhooley found Forts inside the tavern, beside a pile of cigars, cigarets, and other loot.

JAIL MYSTERY WOMAN GIVING NAME OF DU PONT

A woman who gave her name as Helene Mercedes du Pont, but who surrounded her identity with mystery, was locked up at the detective bureau yesterday on the charge of defrauding the Congress hotel of $45 in room rent.

She refused to say whether she is related to the family of Delaware and New York capitalists, but three women who visited her during the day hinted that she is. She gave her age as 35, but later said that she was a magazine writer more than thirty years ago.

At the hotel she had said that she flew her own plane to Chicago from New York ten days ago, landing at the Municipal airport, but attendants at hangars there said they knew of no such plane. She will be arraigned today before Municipal Judge Erwin J. Hasten in the Women's court.

3 Yale Students Arrested for Trying to Scale Cliff

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Three Yale sophomores today attempted to scale East Rock, a 365 foot cliff, and were arrested for their effort. James Fleit Jr. of Glen Ellyn, Ill., and James F. Ferguson of New Haven, changed their mind after negotiating part of the climb and returned to the bottom. Crawford J. Campbell of Cristobal, C. Z., cohtinued until he got to within 25 feet of the summit. There he became stranded. Fireman James McCullom was lowered to the ledge by fellow members of engine company No. 8 and Campbell was hauled up to the top with a rope only to find police waiting for him. All three were charged with violating the city park rules.

FIND A WITNESS WITH NEW FACTS ON PLANE BLAST

A new witness, who was watching the progress of a transcontinental air liner a few seconds before an explosion destroyed it near Chesterton, Ind., with a loss of seven lives, was discovered yesterday and will be questioned by agents of the United States division of investigation today.

The witness is Francis Wiseman, a farmer, who lives about a mile east of Chesterton. His arm in a sling—it was injured recently—Wiseman was walking near the scene of the disaster yesterday when he met Henry R. Corbett, an insurance actuary, of 78 Abbottsford road, Winnetka, who had driven over from the Dunes to look over the ground where the air liner crashed last Tuesday night.

Tells of Seeing Explosion.

In the belief that Corbett was an official investigator Wiseman approached him and said:

"I saw that airplane blow up, but this is the first time I've seen one of you inspectors to tell you about it."

Corbett explained that he was not an official, but said he would like to hear the story. Wiseman told him he had not appeared at the inquest into the airplane disaster because of his injured arm. The farmer then told his story to the insurance man, which was later relayed to government inspectors.

"I was outside looking at the plane, which was about 2,500 feet up," related Wiseman. "The motors were working as they should. I saw two red lights and one yellow light on it. Suddenly I saw the two red lights dip about 45 degrees and saw the yellow light fall perpendicularly. Then a second or two later I heard a terrific explosion. The motors slowed down, then zoomed out again, and the red lights shot straight up in the air, maybe 1,000 feet. They were quivering. Then they zigzagged down and disappeared out of sight."

Wiseman declared he saw no flash or flames from the explosion. He saw the red lights dip before hearing the explosion, although he was convinced both occurred at the same time. He attributed the time delay in hearing the blast to the fact the sound of the explosion probably required two or three seconds to reach him. He was insistent about seeing two red lights and one yellow light on the plane.

Wiseman is believed to be the only witness who was watching the plane when the explosion occurred. Other witnesses, who testified at the inquest, told of hearing the blast and then seeing the motor section of the plane roaring to the ground, a mile away from the point where the tail section landed.

Meanwhile, federal agents were continuing their investigation all along the line from Chicago to Newark, N. J. One theory of their inquiry was that escaping gas fumes, mixing with air, was collected in a pocket in the baggage compartment, where the plane was dismembered, and exploded.

Solve "Mystery Package."

Newark, N. J., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Investigators working on the wreck of the United Air line plane last Tuesday have already cleared of suspicion one of the ship's passengers who carried with him a paper wrapped parcel when the plane left the Newark airport. A Negro porter reported seeing the passenger remove the small package from a traveling bag, saying he wanted to keep it with him during the trip.

Investigators were quoted as saying nitroglycerin was the probable cause of the explosion.

Weds on Friday the 13th and Look Where He Is Now

The bad luck which Joseph Miller, 22 years old, ran up last Friday the 13th, didn't catch up with him until yesterday, but then it landed him in a detective bureau cell. On Friday, Miller and Miss Joan Rodeghier, 20 years old, got a license and were married in the county building. A newspaper photographer took their picture. Yesterday an anonymous telephone call sent a police squad to 320 Townsend street to arrest Miller. He confessed that he broke into the La Salle Cleaning and Dyeing plant, 158 West Division street, on the night before his marriage, and took 50 men's suits.

We've a treat in store for you . . . it'll come on the 24th and stay all winter . . . a feast fit for the gods . . . for you . . . grown in the rich and loamy lava beds of IDAHO . . . a buttery, hot and flaky, beautiful feast for YOU.

LONG DELAYED MURDER TRIAL TO OPEN TODAY

Trio Accused of Killing Bank Cashier.

AUTOMOBILE THEFTS.
Stolen, 60; recovered, 47; stripped, 6 [from police records for twenty-four hours ending at midnight Saturday].

Following a series of delays including seven court continuances, three youthful gunmen charged with slaying a Niles Center bank cashier during a holdup last May, are scheduled to go on trial today in the Criminal court of Judge William V. Brothers. The prosecution has announced that it will seek a jury qualified to impose the death penalty.

The defendants include John Scheck, 20 years old, who is already under a sentence of death for the murder of Policeman John Sevick during an attempted escape from the courtroom of Judge Charles P. Molthrop. The other defendants are Carl Grundhoefer, who has admitted killing Harry Mueller, the bank cashier, and Frank Keglovitz.

Reports of a "Fix."

The many continuances in the case have been accompanied by rumors that a politician is seeking to save Grundhoefer from the electric chair. The fact that the state's attorney's office has given Grundhoefer's name to the defense as a prosecution witness has caused James M. Burke and George Crarie, attorneys for Keglovitz, to charge that a deal for leniency has been made in behalf of the actual slayer.

"It is certainly unusual when the prosecution indicates by its actions that immunity is to be granted to the actual killer and an effort is to be made to impose the death penalty on those who fired no shots," said Emmet Byrne, attorney for Scheck. "The prosecution is reversing the usual order of things in this case. Usually one of the co-defendants is granted immunity to testify against the actual killer."

Judge Brothers is expected to decide a motion for a separate trial filed by Attorney Burke in behalf of Keglovitz. Immediately following this ruling, the judge indicated, the case will start to trial. A delegation of Niles Center citizens is planning to visit the court room to protest against any further delay of the trial.

Another Murder Trial.

Another murder trial scheduled to begin today is that of Kenneth Rucker, Edward Kandall, and Russell McAtee, charged with slaying a garage attendant during a robbery. The trial will be in Judge Epstein's court.

Another case continued many times, which is on the docket for today, is that of James Catuara and William Palmero, alleged henchman of James Belcastro, "king of the bombers." They were caught early in the year with a bomb in their possession. The case is on the call of Judge Molthrop.

A campaign to dispose of the fifty-six murder cases now pending in the Criminal court was announced yesterday by Chief Justice Philip L. Sullivan. At the same time the chief justice released statistics compiled by Clerk George Seif of the court, showing that the present group of Criminal court judges has struck the pace set in the month of August by Judge John Prystalski, former chief justice, and a group of volunteer judges who launched the crime war.

"The last week has shown a hopeful trend for the cleanup of crime in this community and we are catching up with the dockets so that we can assure speedy trials for criminal offenders," said Judge Sullivan as he commented on the records which show that the judges have begun to dispose of cases faster than the grand jury can return indictments.

Of the 56 murder indictments on the dockets 40 have already been set for trial this month, and Judge Sullivan has asked the judges to make a special effort to dispose of them without delay.

The jury venire, which was blamed in part by some of the judges for an epidemic of not guilty verdicts earlier in the month, returned 15 guilty verdicts against 3 acquittals during the last week, the records show.

Jurors Aid Crime Drive.

"The citizens called on for jury service certainly did their share during the past week," said Clerk Seif. "One of the difficulties is that it takes a jury a week or more to get acquainted with the procedure in the courts before it functions properly. The jury terms should be made longer than two weeks."

During the first two weeks of October the grand jury returned 71 indictments while the courts disposed of 180 indictments. Many minor cases are now being disposed of by Judge Thomas Green in the Felony court, which cuts down the number of indictments and allows the Criminal courts to dispose of the more serious cases.

In the past week, the records show, the Criminal court judges imposed a total of 35 sentences, although one day was a court holiday. These sentences included six for murder, seven for sex crimes, ten for robbery, and four each for burglary and automobile larceny.

GIRL OF 20 DIES AFTER MYSTERY PARTY SHOOTING

Companions at Roadhouse Held by Police.

Evansville, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Mary Elizabeth Robb, 20, formerly of New Harmony, died early today in the Walker Welborn hospital of a gunshot wound in her head received under mysterious circumstances which, officers say, indicate murder. Police are holding Edward Gumbel Jr., 23, son of a local business man; Cyrie Staab, 20, son of George Staab, local traffic officer, and Beulah Bender, 18, Evansville.

Girl Shot in Forehead.

The four went on a party last night and were at the Brown Derby roadhouse when the shooting occurred about 2 o'clock this morning. There are no known witnesses to the shooting. Miss Robb's wound, in the middle of her forehead, was of a nature indicating that the bullet was fired from some little distance. Young Staab insists the girl committed suicide.

According to statements made by Gumbel and Miss Bender, police state, the three put the wounded girl in the rumble seat of the car and started to bring her to the hospital. Gumbel and Miss Bender said all were drinking. Staab, the pair said, according to police, wanted to leave the girl beside the road, but the others refused to consider it, insisting that she be taken to the hospital.

Put Girl in Rumble Seat.

With the dying girl in the rumble seat they drove about the city for about 20 minutes hunting for a place to hide the gun, according to the story told officers, and finally did hide it out on the water works road. Staab carefully wiping his fingerprints off the handle with his handkerchief before it was hidden.

Police report there is evidence someone had probed for the bullet before the girl was taken to the hospital.

Accountant Crushed to Death by Hotel Elevator

J. C. Figg, 55 years old, 1106 East 65th street, was crushed to death yesterday by a descending elevator car in the Berkwood hotel, 6150 Greenwood avenue. Figg apparently thrust his head through the doorway of the shaft just as the cab descended. He was an accountant for the Illinois Central railroad.

FILIPINO EXHIBIT GIVES US PEEP AT U. S. STEPCHILD

Colony Comes to the Fair Despite Handicap.

BY JAMES O'DONNELL BENNETT.

The Filipinos wanted to make a big comprehensive exhibit of their treasures, natural and cultural, at the World's Fair.

They thought that a people whose stepchildren they have been for thirty-five years would be interested in an American possession as large as Illinois and Iowa combined and with a population—twelve million—equaling the total population of Illinois and Michigan.

So the native legislature voted a World's Fair appropriation of 300,000 pesos [$150,000] which was vetoed on grounds of economy by that eminent proconsul concerning certain of whose volatile campaign utterances trenchant Al Smith once remarked from the hustings—

Despite the veto the natives went ahead via the Philippine Tourist association, which is financed in part by the government.

See the Wonderful Muslin.

The result is a small but extraordinarily choice exhibition on the upper floor at the north end of Travel and Transport palace on the Fair grounds, and it would be difficult to pack more interest and information into so limited a space.

See, for example, the incredibly fine muslin which Filipino peasant women, who have been taught the art from childhood, make from pineapple fiber. It is called pina muslin and the specimens of it which especially will cause American housewives to gasp with admiration comprise two long table runners, twelve plate doilies, and twelve glass doilies, each of a different and exquisitely delicate design.

It took two women five years to make that luncheon set and it is priced at $1,000.

The Expiatory Pig.

See, too, the ceremonial spoon—called "a medicine spoon"—in which the more remote and sequestered tribesmen of the archipelago make a magical kind of brew that is poured over a pig which, being then turned loose, is supposed to carry away the sins of the people.

Beholding those two exhibits—the pina muslin and the medicine spoon—you span at a glance the gap between Filipino proficiency in arts and crafts and an ancient Filipino superstition—a superstition older than the legend of the unfortunate, but—I always have felt—far from culpable Gadarene swine.

The Filipinos were right when, despite the proconsul, they thought that you, their stepfathers, would be interested in the people, the work, and the ways of your possession that includes 7,083 islands extending for a distance of more than a thousand miles.

Like Traditional Hot Cakes.

When the Exposition was young Mr. James King Steele, tourist commissioner for the Philippine islands, put out, for visitors one and all in Travel and Transport to take, a thousand copies of a handsome 34 page booklet illustrated in color with vivid native paintings.

The thousand copies were gone in forty-one minutes.

"Let's see," said Mr. Steele, "it is nineteen days' steaming from Seattle to Manila and twenty-three from San Francisco to Manila. At this rate of consumption we shall have to bring over these books by the shipload. There isn't time. Guess I'll have to put a price of 10 cents each on them."

So he did. But still the demand exceeds the supply.

An average of two thousand people an hour visit the tiny exhibit—asking countless questions and, said Mr. Steele, "buying pretty liberally of the fabrics made in native designs from cotton, hemp, jusi [woven from the banana plant], and pina—pretty liberally, I say, considering that the Tourist association sells no trash."

All University Girls.

Not the least interesting part of the exhibit is four young Filipino women who have gentle manners and pretty English. They talk informingly, and when they slip over their American gowns the decorative parts and the headdresses of native costume they make a charming picture.

All of them are university girls—graduates of the University of the Philippines, which, superintended by the native government, is twenty years old and has a coeducational enrollment of six thousand students.

"And, of course," added Mr. Steele, "you know"—only I did not—"that the oldest university under the American flag is in the Philippines. It is the University of Santo Tomas, founded in 1611 and still conducted by the Jesuits. It has two thousand students."

The four university girls who exhibit and explain the weapons, the brass food bowls, and food boxes, the buyo boxes which the Moros make from hammered brass for holding betel nuts, the silver rings, the black coral bracelets and brooches, and the beautiful garment chests, made from narra, the Philippine mahogany, inlaid with mother of pearl, are Miss Ronquillo, Manila province; Miss Florita Diaz, La Union province; Miss Eleuteria Mangibin, Pampanga province, and Miss Francisca Dacany, Ilocos province. Miss Marie Bruce, an American from the islands, is their director.

The Flag of Their Hearts.

Mr. Steele was very interesting on conditions in the archipelago.

"The civilized Filipino today," he said, "is living on a higher level than any other people in the orient and—economically—he is tickled pink with the results of his affiliation with the United States. In the islands we had no bank holiday and no bank failure during the world-wide depression.

Where Nobody Starves.

"And nobody has starved. One reason for that is that you don't have to fight climate. No man can freeze to death and he can always get fish, rice, and fruit. Always, too, 'the pariente' is there to look after him. That is the family system, and it won't let a member or a retainer or even a hanger-on starve.

"There are 6,800 miles of good paved auto roads in the islands—main-ly in Luzon—and in Baguio, 175 miles from Manila, there is an area that last year was, for its size, the third richest gold producing region in the world. It is being worked by Americans who last year paid 40 per cent to their stockholders. In Baguio, too, is the governor general's summer palace, which was built by Taft under your elder Burnham's direction, and there the temperature is 60 degrees all the year 'round. It is fifty-five minutes by plane and six hours by auto from Manila."

What of Japan?

"How about the so-called Japanese peril, Mr. Steele?"

"I don't think it is a military peril. It won't have to be. It will be peaceful penetration, for already the Japanese and the Chinese control 60 per cent of the retail business in the Philippines. But English is the official language, compulsory in the schools, and the language of the courts.

"The United States"—this from an observer who in the last twenty years has crossed the Pacific sixty times, which is Keokuk born Mr. Steele's record—"has done a wonderful job in the Philippines, although at times our policy has been wishy washy. So different from that of the French and the Dutch! Nobler, too, I suppose. In French Indo-China everything has got to pay a profit to France, and in Java everything a profit to the Netherlands."

$18,000 a Year Governors.

The Filipino personnel on the World's Fair scene is not unanimously rapturous about our governors general—the consensus of opinion being: "Harrison always taking the easiest way; Gen. Wood too iron-handed; Stimson shilly-shallying; T. R. the younger, a washout, and Frank Murphy still a large interrogation mark."

But about Dwight Davis there was enthusiasm, thus: "Good and beloved, and he had a policy."

The governor general receives $18,000 a year [gold], a palace in Manila, another in Baguio, a yacht, and a special train when he wants it—all paid by the native government.

Where Paris Beat Chicago.

The Filipinos were right when they voted the ultimately vetoed $150,000 for an exhibit at our World's Fair. For at the Colonial exposition in Paris in 1931 they actually spent that amount on their exhibit, won first prize for it, and gained a handsome increase in tourist trade and trade in goods.

But, modest as is the current Century of Progress show from the islands, it repays an hour's attention, for you see the interestingly primitive carvings from solid blocks of narra by the Igorotes, the hammered brass by the Moros, who are the fighting men of the south; the lantakas or tiny brass cannon copied from old Spanish pieces and used on Moro canoes, and other specimens of craftsmanship made by the pagan mountain people of Luzon who are living as their ancestors did fifteen centuries ago.

A small exhibition, but it widens your horizon.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Twenty-three special trains and extra sections of regular trains on the New York Central lines brought in 10,600 visitors to the Fair yesterday. The "Exposition Flyer" of the Michigan Central arrived in seven sections from Boston, and a special train brought 562 members of the Massachusetts farm bureau. Other special trains arrived from points in Michigan. Special trains over the Southern railway and the Big Four brought 1,608 passengers from Tenessee, Kentucky, and other southern states. The figures equal or exceed the week-end records set in August and September.

Four student groups from the Waukegan schools will visit the Fair this week. The Andrew Cook school will be represented today and the Whittier school tomorro the West school Wednesday, and the Flora school Hhursday. The parties will come to Chicago by special motor coaches.

American flags, NRA Blue Eagles, and pictures of all descriptions are among the designs worked out in preserved foods on display in the International Canning contest being held in the Court of States. The contest is sponsored by the Ball Institute of Home Canning.

Helen Watson, composer-pianist, will be guest artist in another of the Illinois composers' series of programs in the Illinois host house tonight at 8 o'clock. She will be assisted by Stella Roberts, violinist; Hulda Blank, soprano; Cordelia Pardee and Mary Virginia Wallace, duo pianists, and the Girls' Glee club of North Central college.

Toshi Go, chief representative of the South Manchuria Railway company in the United States, will arrive in Chicago today. He will be host at a luncheon for World's Fair officials and several prominent educators and railroad men Wednesday.

Fifty members of the Glenola club will participate in a tour of the Fair as a part of the activities of North Side day at the Fair on Friday. Mrs. John J. Enright of 1101 Loyola avenue, civic chairman of the organization, announced yesterday that the group will leave the Loyola station of the elevated at 9 o'clock Friday morning.

The official Filipino flag was presented to the Philippine community settlement, 837 North La Salle street, last night by James King Steele, tourist commissioner of the Philippine islands. Following the presentation ceremony the Philippine exhibit in the Travel and Transport building at the Fair, a short address on "The Modern Philippines" was given by Mr. Steele. The Filipino flag, first used by Gen. Aguinaldo in the revolt against Spanish rule in 1896, is divided into two sections, the upper blue and the low red with a white triangle at the left. In the triangle are three stars, representing the major divisions of the islands, and a rising sun

Sacred drums and the dancing of Ashanti warrior last night entertained some eight thousand Fair visitors in the court of the Hall of Science. Duke Kwesi Kuntu, director of "Darkest Africa" at the Fair, led the warriors in the Golden Stool ceremony and the Royal Appreciation dance.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

NICE, France, Oct. 15.—Charges by a syndicate of employes in two of the largest gambling casinos on the Riviera, at Juan les Pins and Nice, that dishonest tactics were being used caused a sensation here tonight. Deputy Paul Deudon is understood now to be on his way to Paris to lay the case, allegedly supported by documentary proofs, before Camille Chautemps, minister of the interior. It is said that Jack Coats, English gambler who committed suicide last year after losing all his money, was swindled to the extent of 15,000,000 francs [currently about $900,000].

Fickle Phyllis doesn't know Why her shoes all hurt her so

● Phyllis has been chasing around buying shoes hither and yon—all sorts of shoes by all sorts of makers on all sorts of lasts! No wonder her feet hurt! What she should do is drop in at any I. Miller store and find the perfect-fitting I. Miller last that's especially designed for her type of foot—and then stick to it!

There's an I. Miller last for every type of foot. And the fact that I. Miller shoes are made in I. Miller's own factory is your guarantee that you do get the same last every time you ask for it. Once you've discovered your correct I. Miller last, you should ask for it (or its corresponding sister-lasts) every time you buy a pair of pumps, oxfords or evening slippers! I. Miller last numbers and sizes are marked in every pair of I. Miller shoes. I. Miller shoes come in sizes 2 to 10, widths AAAA to D.

Mark Established Week Ago Is Broken.

Saturday, Oct. 14, 1933.....279,758
Saturday, Oct. 14, 1893.....200,891
The Columbian Exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May 27.

BY EARL MULLIN.

A new record for the second largest day's attendance at the World's Fair was established yesterday. At 11:30 p. m. 325,134 persons had been registered at the turnstiles since the opening of the gates at 9 a. m. The old record for the second largest day was made on Oct. 8, just a week ago, when the total attendance was 304,560. The maximum for all days was made on Sept. 3, with a mark of 367,004.

At 6 p. m. yesterday, when 311,508 persons had entered the grounds, the second largest day's attendance at 1893 Exposition, a total of 309,924, had been exceeded. At that hour the crowds had been pouring into the present Fair grounds at the rate of twenty to twenty-five thousand an hour.

New Week-end Record.

The crowds yesterday made the week-end of Oct. 14 and 15 the second largest since the Fair opened with a total attendance for the two days of more than 600,000.

The two day week-end attendance records at the Fair up to yesterday were:

First—The week-end of Sunday, Sept. 3—the Sunday when the present high daily record of 367,004 was hung up—a week-end total of 623,684.

Second—The week-end of Sunday, Oct. 8—the Sunday when the second high daily day was established with 304,568—a week-end total of 428,081 paid admissions.

Other Records Set.

Several other records were made yesterday. During the first hour 43,359 visitors were registered at the turnstiles, a record for the entire Exposition. New hourly records were made until 1 p. m. when the reading was 177,299 as compared to 178,113 at the same hour on Sept. 3. The hourly count yesterday exceeded the hourly count of the second best day on Oct. 8 all through the day by from twenty to thirty thousand.

Only 16 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair

The hundred thousand mark was passed yesterday shortly before 11:30 a. m. The 200,000 mark was passed shortly before 2 p. m.

During the present Exposition all the record breaking days have been Sundays, with a majority of the crowd entering the gates before 9 p. m. A comparison of October attendance at the 1893 Fair and the present may be obtained from the figures for corresponding Saturdays. At the 1893 Fair the October 14 attendance was 200,891, while last Saturday's attendance was 279,758.

To equal the October attendance of the 1893 Fair, the present Exposition must maintain the high average of the last week-end. The October attendance in 1893 was 6,819,364; the October attendance so far this year has been only 2,528,228. During the first 14 days at the old Fair 3,158,417 admissions were recorded.

Want Fair Closing Delayed.

With increasing pressure from Chicago business men, railroads, and exhibitors it was indicated yesterday that some decision will be made soon in regard to keeping the Exposition open until after Armistice day. Maj. Lenox R. Lohr, general manager, said that he had received more than five hundred letters asking that the Fair remain open.

Exhibitors announced that they had held a meeting at which the plan to keep the Fair open was unanimously approved. The concessionaires took the same stand and the railroads will hold a meeting Wednesday to vote on maintaining the present reduced rates, scheduled to come to an end on Oct. 31.

Twenty Millionth Visitor Arrives.

The twenty millionth visitor was recorded yesterday when Mrs. B. B. Barnes of Rockford entered the 31st street gate shortly before 12:30 p. m. She was accompanied by her husband, a printer with the Rockford Morning Star; Mr. and Mrs. O. Olson of Rockford, and John and Norman Wolff of 3046 North Sawyer avenue, Chicago.

Mrs. Barnes was presented with an official World's Fair medal and the entire party was escorted to the Victor Vienna café where they were guests of the management. Among the other gifts to Mrs. Barnes were a round trip ticket for an airplane trip to Minneapolis, presented by James N. Mills, Chicago representative of Travelaide, and tickets to several concessions at the Fair for the entire party.

The next meeting will be held at 67 West Monroe street on Nov. 4.

CUBAN STUDENT KILLS SOLDIER; HAVANA ALARMED

HAVANA, Oct. 15.—(AP)—A student, Homero Valdes, shot and killed a soldier, Joaquin Camejo, 28, on a street corner tonight and student and army circles were thrown into excitement.

Camejo was waiting for a bus when Valdes and three companions—José Tiara, a chauffeur, and Ismael Rodriguez and Rafael Pozada, students—approached him in an automobile. Valdes alighted and shot the soldier four times with a revolver.

Soldiers and traffic policemen surrounded Valdes and his companions, confiscating the revolver and a shotgun, and removed them to the Eighth police station. A brother of the slain man, Armando Camejo, said that Joaquin killed Valdes' brother, Rafael, Dec. 9, 1932, "in self-defense while carrying out his duty," and that Homero has been "gunning for Camejo" ever since.

Shortly after the four were taken into custody a group of ten heavily armed soldiers went to the police station, announcing their intention of killing the prisoners. The three soldiers posted there and all available policemen drew their guns and rushed the prisoners through the threatening soldiers into a police patrol wagon which hurried Valdes and his friends to Principe prison.

3 Awaiting Court Martial Escape Military Prison

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Three men awaiting court martial in the Mitchel field military prison escaped tonight amid a hail of bullets from guards who saw the trio dash across the prison yard. The men clambered over a seven foot wire fence and got away in a waiting automobile.

MIDWEST BACKS KELLY'S PLEA TO KEEP FAIR OPEN

Letters Say Many Would Attend Next Year.

Mayor Kelly's demand for a continuation of A Century of Progress during 1934 has met with approval throughout the middle west as well as in Chicago, according to letters received during the last few days at the mayor's office. The consensus of the letters is that a returning prosperity would bring millions of visitors to Chicago next year who have been unable to attend the Fair this year.

The letters, written from five states, including Illinois, followed a speech delivered by Mayor Kelly at the Chicago day celebration a week ago. He said then:

"Right now as mayor of Chicago, knowing that I express the sentiments of all the people in Chicago, I demand that this Exposition be continued during the next year. We know what it has brought to Chicago, and realize that it will continue to be a pump for city and national prosperity."

Plea to Continue Fair.

A. G. Erickson, secretary-treasurer of the Springfield [Minn.] Publishing company, publishers of the Springfield Advance-Press, wrote in part as follows:

"I note that you are urging A Century of Progress to continue another year. There is no doubt that if prosperity comes back next year, even moderate prosperity, millions would attend the Fair, if open. Hardly any farmers in this rich agricultural section have gone to the Fair. How could they on 4 cent hogs and 5 cent cattle? They require another year to catch up. It would be unfortunate to close the Fair at the end of the worst depression in our history.

"I know hundreds of people who would have gone to the Fair had times been better. I hope your efforts will be successful. I am writing merely to give you an idea of conditions up here which prevented many from going this year. They should be able to go next year."

From a Missouri Publisher.

Another publisher, Eugene B. Roach of the Carthage [Mo.] Democrat, also expressed the opinion that millions who had not been able to attend the 1933 Fair might be financially able to make the journey next year.

"I want to concur whole heartedly in your suggestion to continue the Fair," he concluded, "and in this ambition and enterprise, I wish you unlimited success."

"I have heard many people say that they were unable to attend the Fair with conditions the way they have been during the last year or so, but were hoping for a better year during 1934 that would enable them to attend if it was still in progress," wrote B. Barnes of Lansing, Mich. "That applies to many farmers who were too busy to attend during the warmer months."

Believes Many Would Attend.

"There are millions of people in this country who, owing to economic conditions, could not see the Fair this year," wrote J. W. Yule of St. Louis, Mo., "but if business improves—and we have every reason to believe that it will—would attend next year.

"The Fair is the greatest exhibition of its kind that the world has ever seen. Chicago has advertised itself to the world as not a city of crime and sin, but as a city of hospitality. I hope that your attempt wil lbe successful, and that I may be able to return with millions of others to your city next year."

L. Kjerulff of Kansas City, Mo., said that only one of his family of seven had attended the Fair this year, but that if the Fair is open next year and business conditions have improved, the entire family would visit Chicago.

"I know that there are thousands who would join with me in pleading with you to keep up the fight until you have won the Fair for 1934," wrote S. G. Davis from Horatio, Ark. "Many who attended this year had to stint themselves so that they could not see it all or stay long enough. With few exceptions, those who went from this section went 'on the rods.'"

Visitor at Both Fairs.

T. W. Hay, general manager of the Hay Press, Carmi, Ill., attended the Columbian Exposition forty years ago and also came to Chicago to see the 1933 Fair. It is his belief, he said, that there are many persons living within a radius of 300 miles of Chicago who were unable to attend the Fair, but who probably would be in circumstances to do so next year.

In nearly all of the homes into which Dr. James H. Rachels of Danville, Ill., was called, there was a whole family or a family member who looked forward to visiting the Fair if it were continued into 1934. He wished Mayor Kelly success in convincing those in authority of the necessity and importance of continuing the Fair another year.

CIVIC GROUPS TO DISCUSS PLAN FOR CONTINUING FAIR

A meeting of representatives of 606 Chicago service clubs, chambers of commerce, exchanges and neighborhood organizations will be held in the Florentine room of the Congress hotel at 8 p. m. Wednesday to discuss proposals to continue the World's Fair in 1934.

Harry N. Fowler, president of the South Central Kiwanis club, will be chairman of the meeting. The conference was called after discussions by Mr. Fowler with World's Fair officials. Among the groups to be represented will be the Kiwanis, Rotary and Lions clubs. The movement has been named the "1934 World's Fair Initial Organization Committee."

"The purpose of this meeting," explained Mr. Fowler, "is to find out what the city-wide reaction would be towards continuing the Fair in 1934. The question we will seek to answer is: 'Is there a demand for the Fair in 1934?' These 606 organizations can find the answer not only in Chicago but throughout the country. Our feeling is that the city and the country want the Fair next year."

DR. INAZO NITOBE, JAP STATESMAN, DIES IN CANADA

VICTORIA, B. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Dr. Inazo Nitobe, Japanese statesman, died here tonight following an operation. He had been ill for a month.

The operation involved the opening of the back on the left side and draining an abscess.

Dr. Nitobe contracted pneumonia while en route home to Japan from the Pacific relations conference at Banff.

Dr. Nitobe reached the most dramatic point in his career when he told the league of nations Japan had decided to quit the league, following the report of its commission censuring the island empire for its invasion of Manchuria and creation of the state of Manchukuo as an outlet for colonizing and trade projects.

Experience of U. S. and Wisconsin Cited.

Urged to Help Cities.

The income tax has been urged as a panacea for financially sick cities. But the experience of the government indicates that the income tax is a fizzle as a dependable source of revenue during times like these. It brought in money in times like 1929. But no one has predicted that times like 1929 are coming back. Certainly no government can base its expenditures and revenue plan upon the presumption that the boom will be right back and last a long time.

The difficulties of cities arise from the inflating of their expenditures during boom times and the belief that somehow enough can be obtained to keep the old spending orgy going. The record of tax collections during the depression shows that nothing like sufficient money is to be had from the property tax. And public funds cannot be obtained more readily from the income tax than from the property tax. In fact, the experience of the United States government on the one hand and of local governments on the other shows that funds cannot be obtained as readily from the income tax as from the property tax.

Experience of the States.

And if the deplorable experience of the federal government with income tax is not conclusive, an examination of what has happened in the states which have income taxes will clear up any doubt.

It will not be possible to review the record of each of the 22 states which have income taxes. Reference will be made in this article only to the state of Wisconsin, which is commonly regarded as having done most with this type of tax. Wisconsin's rates are highest—its tax administration has been thorough.

Wisconsin was first in demonstrating that a state income tax can be made to function at all. Previous to 1911 it was the consensus of tax experts, a judgment that was based upon experience in a number of states, that a state income tax was bound to be a failure. In 1911 Wisconsin put into operation a law based upon its constitutional amendment of 1908.

Tries Where Others Failed.

The state tax commission from the beginning was conscious that it was on the spot—it was trying to succeed where others had failed. While other states might live by the unjust property tax, Wisconsin was going to apportion taxes upon genuine capacity to pay taxes—upon income.

The administration of the tax by the state has been vigorous and conscientious, thanks to a considerable extent to advice and direction from the economic department of the University of Wisconsin. The accountants, engineers and statisticians of the Wisconsin tax commission have been regarded as the ablest available. Income tax administration in Wisconsin has been able and stern.

And yet an examination of the records will disclose that after 20 years of experience with the income tax, it has not only not been effective in bringing about a reduction in the property tax but it is a comparatively minor source of income of the state. With revenue from the income tax to supplement its revenues, Wisconsin is on par with Chicago, which is without the benefit of income taxes. The one rewards its teachers with "baby bonds," while in Chicago the scrip is called a tax anticipation warrant.

Mounting Property Tax.

Year—	Amount.	Pct. increase over 1911.
1921	96,268,625	213.8
1926	99,948,768	225.8
1931	120,855,119	293.9

Year—	Amount.	Pct. total revenues.
1916	$ 1,950,982	5.7
1921	6,034,828	5.1
1931	20,812,430	11.5

From the foregoing figures it appears that there was a steady gain in the general property tax levies after the income tax went into effect. The increase in the property tax bills went on throughout the 20 years since the income tax went into effect.

The income tax therefore has not operated to relieve the people of Wisconsin of the burdens of the general property tax. There is ground for saying that the income tax was merely an additional tax and made the basis for new expenditures by the units of government sharing in the tax.

Study of Illinois Levies.

And that same fact appears from an examination of the levies based upon the general property tax in Illinois for the same period. Figures for the same five year intervals in the state of Illinois are as follows:

Year—	Amount.	Pct. increase over 1911.
1921	259,506,000	170.9
1926	334,930,000	349.6
1931	395,000,000	312.3

Thus it appears, despite the scandalously wasteful government which Illinois, and particularly Chicago, has had much of the time, and despite the fact that Illinois and Chicago have not had the benefits of an income tax, the general property taxes in this state have increased since 1911 only at about the same rate as in Wisconsin, which has in addition collected an income tax.

There is a further conclusion to be drawn from the foregoing figures. Although Wisconsin tax rates are the highest of any of the 22 states which have income tax laws, the income tax for which the state is renowned is a comparatively small part of the total revenue of the state. In 1931 the income tax produced only 11.3 per cent of the total revenues, and last year only 10 per cent. It seems highly probable that the percentage will be still lower for 1933.

In Wisconsin much has been made by the exponents of the income tax of its merit in collecting taxes according to ability to pay. However, there has not been assiduous devotion to that principle.

Collection Nearly Constant.

Income taxes in 1929 amounted to $17,883,196 and in 1932 to $17,259,212. One would judge from this that the people of Wisconsin had escaped the depression which was bearing so hard upon the people of other states. As a matter of fact, Wisconsin did not escape the depression, and though the people of that state paid nearly as much in income taxes in 1932, they did not have anything like the capacity to pay in the later year as in the earlier.

The explanation for the remarkable constancy of their income tax revenue is found in the fact that in 1927, Wisconsin adopted as the basis for taxes to be paid in any year, not the income of that year or the year preceding, but an average of the three preceding years. Thus in 1932 the taxes which were paid on income were based upon the incomes of 1929, 1930 and 1931. And this year the taxes are based upon the average of the incomes for 1930, 1931 and 1932.

This is obviously a great hardship and by no stretch of the imagination can it be called a tax upon ability to pay. It is a tax which for last year was based upon, not what the individual was able to pay but what he would have been able to pay if he had made the money he did in 1929 averaged with the two succeeding years. That was income tax in name only. Throughout the depression, Wisconsin has been confiscating the property of such of its citizens as were unfortunate enough to have had substantial incomes in boom times. The collections were called income taxes—making possible the remarkable showing set forth.

This is the last year for the three year average plan, it having been repealed by the legislature earlier this year. The decline in receipts has also been checked by the increase in tax rates under the name of surtaxes.

State's Share Increased.

Considered as a means of getting urban income, the experience in Wisconsin does not commend itself to the cities of other states in some other respects. Originally intended for local revenues almost exclusively, the farm element in the legislature has been able to seize for state purposes increasing portions of what was collected.

By the original income tax law, only 10 per cent of the tax was retained by the state. Ninety per cent was returned to the locality where it was paid—70 per cent to the city and 20 per cent to the county. In 1925 this was changed and the state's share was made four times as large as it had been originally, the county's share being cut in half and the city's share reduced to 50 per cent.

What further encroachment the state will make up the local sources of revenue one may only guess.

Illinois Income Tax Asked.

In Illinois the income tax is being proposed as a means of getting the cities out of their difficulties. But assuming that an income tax was adopted, downstate would probably appropriate as large a portion of the income tax for state purposes as was done in Wisconsin. And the incentive to do so is probably stronger in Illinois, for whereas only about 45 per cent of the state income of Wisconsin comes from Milwaukee, in Illinois much more than one-half of the income of the people of the state is earned in Chicago.

If Illinois adopted an income tax it would probably be found that the city which was seeking relief from its burdens would benefit little if at all. We may be sure that a considerable portion of the extra revenue that might be taken in from income tax would be appropriated to state purposes to be used largely outside of Cook county. Thus it might happen that the city would be actually worse off with an income tax than without it. For, if people had to pay a state income tax, it would reduce their capacity to pay their property taxes.

Considering the federal experience with the income tax, the income tax is no solution for the problem which confronts the municipalities of this country at this time. Relying upon the income tax, the federal government has suffered more than have municipalities relying upon the property tax. Considering the experience in Wisconsin there is much more to be said against the income tax as a means of clearing up Chicago's financial condition. For not only does the income tax not provide sufficient revenue, but applied to Illinois it might reduce the total of revenue for this city.

"DOWN where I come from in the Blue Grass section of Kentucky is where White Burley grows.

"You find the pipe tobacco in a certain place on the stalk. It's not light or chaffy tobacco. At the same time it's not rank or strong.

"I used to pick the leaves for my smoking, air cool 'em, twist 'em into rolls, and put 'em away to mellow. That was before I found out about Granger.

"Now I'll have to hand it to old man Wellman. His method gives to Granger a flavor and mildness that I couldn't get.

4 MERGER PLANS ARE DRAFTED BY TRANSIT GROUPS

Fisher Reports Progress on Consolidation.

Steps have been taken, it was learned yesterday, toward the first definite consideration of the merger of the surface and elevated lines. Four separate reorganization plans have been drafted. Three of them represent the views of the rapid transit first mortgage bondholders, the street car first mortgage bondholders, and a group of holders of junior securities of both systems.

The fourth plan is that of Attorney Walter L. Fisher, appointed coördinator by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson, to bring the conflicting financial interests into an accord. Attorney Fisher, a traction expert with 40 years' experience, said that these four proposals bearing on the distribution of securities of the new consolidated traction company will be exchanged for consideration by the various financial groups affected by the reorganization.

Holds Series of Conferences.

Attorney Fisher's plan was arrived at after he had analyzed financial data of the properties and after a series of conferences with the spokesmen for the security holders.

These spokesmen were Albert W. Harris and Melvin A. Traylor, bankers, and chairmen of two first mortgage committees of the surface lines' bondholders; D. F. Kelly, State street merchant, and chairman of the "L" lines' first mortgage bondholders, and Frank J. Durham, La Salle street broker and president of an association of owners of underlying securities.

They have been attempting to bring their respective groups into an agreement on a reorganization plan. It was indicated yesterday that the views of these groups have been reconciled on a number of points.

Among other details they have submitted to Attorney Fisher and to each other tables of earnings of the two traction companies for the last ten years. The elevated bond protective committee submitted to Mr. Fisher and to the surface lines' bond committee figures on earnings of both systems, and the surface line's interests did likewise.

In Conflict on Earnings.

It was reported that the two groups are still at variance on these income figures. One conflicting point has been the matter of earnings as a factor in the reorganization negotiations. The "L" line bondholders have argued that the earnings over a long period should be considered in evaluating the securities of the company. The surface line bondholders have maintained that only the earnings of recent years should be considered.

The reason for this lies in the recently depleted earnings of the rapid transit lines, attributed to the depression and to a higher fare. Another is the fact that the elevated company has been in receivership since 1930, when the first reorganization plan was agreed upon.

COURTNEY TO ASK EARLY TRIAL FOR MACHIR J. DORSEY

State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney yesterday announced that his staff will demand an early trial for Machir J. Dorsey, indicted president of the defunct Security Life Insurance company. The announcement followed upon the conviction of Ernest J. Stevens, former president of the Stevens hotel and a former vice president of the Illinois Life Insurance company, by a jury Saturday night. Stevens was found guilty of embezzlement.

Dorsey and eight others were indicted last April on charges of conspiracy to defraud stockholders of the insurance company and its affiliates of more than $1,000,000 by means of inflated mortgages. Assistant State's Attorneys Vernon Thompson and Benjamin Nelson have been in charge of the case.

Stevens is the present manager of the Stevens hotel, which is under receivership, at a monthly salary of $3,000. Receiver Arthur B. Hall yesterday declared he has not considered ousting Stevens. A decision on this question may not be reached before Nov. 4 when Judge Michael Feinberg is to hear arguments for a new trial, he said.

1,000 Expected to Attend Dinner for Gen. Parker

More than 60 veterans', civic, and patriotic organizations will take part in the American Legion national defense dinner honoring Maj. Gen. Frank Parker to be held at the Palmer house next Wednesday. Edward A. Hayes, newly elected national commander of the American Legion, and George Rossetter, head of the Association of Commerce, will be the principal speakers. Advance reservations indicate an attendance of more than 1,000. The dinner will be one of the last affairs to be given for Gen. Parker before he leaves to take command of the department of the Philippines.

Code to Be Topic

A recovery code will be the main subject of discussion by 1,000 members of the National Poultry, Butter, and Egg association which opens a two day convention today at the Hotel Sherman. The association consists of receivers and shippers of produce from every section of the United States. In 1929 the poultry and eggs sold by members of the association were valued at $848,000,000. An exhibit of machinery used in the handling of eggs and poultry will be displayed in conjunction with the convention.

CO-EDS FLEE IN PAJAMAS; DORM BURNS AT DEPAUW

Son of President Injured in Rescue Efforts.

Greencastle, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special]—A bevy of co-eds, clad in pajamas and other scanties, fled early today before the flames which destroyed Mansfield hall, ancient dormitory for women students at De Pauw university.

Robert Oxnam, freshman in the university and son of President G. Bromley Oxnam, was cut by falling plaster when he and his father ventured to the second floor of the burning building to make sure that all of the co-eds had escaped. His father assisted him from the building, and he was placed in a hospital.

The whole student body of 1,400 men and women turned out when the alarm of fire was sounded shortly before 4 a. m., and student crews manned the hose lines of the two pumpers of the local fire department. There were only three regular firemen on duty at the time.

Fire Apparatus Deficient.

Lack of apparatus which would have carried hose lines to points where they could be played on the blazing roof of the building frustrated efforts to save it, but efforts of the student firemen and the fact that little wind was stirring prevented the flames from spreading to adjoining dormitories.

These were Rector and Lucy Rowland halls, both the gifts to De Pauw university of the late Edward Rector, Chicago patent attorney. He died in 1925, leaving a $2,500,000 scholarship endowment to the university, and his body is buried on the campus.

Also near by was the armory used by the student R. O. T. C. A quantity of ammunition was stored there, and for a time the firemen feared the flames would reach the explosives.

The fire started on the third and uppermost floor of the dormitory, in the room of a student who left early in the evening and who had spent the night with friends. Authorities believe the cause was either defective wiring or an electric iron or curling iron which the girl had left turned on.

Students Lose Belongings.

The fire was discovered by Miss Marabelle Martin, a sophomore and daughter of a missionary living in Kobe, Japan. She spread the alarm and the 68 women living in the building fled to safety. Those on the second floor left by the stairs, but occupants of the third floor rooms had to use the fire escapes. Outside the building Miss Katherine Alvord, dean of women, mustered them and called the roll, making sure that all had escaped. In their hasty flight twenty of the girls lost all their personal belongings.

They will be reimbursed for these, President Oxnam said. He estimated the loss at $84,000, and added that it is covered by insurance. The roof and third floor of the building fell, and the lower floors were ruined by flames and water. The fire was not extinguished until nearly noon. The dormitory across the street from the main campus, was one of the oldest buildings at De Pauw, having been built in the late '70s.

Give for Relief Purposes, Roosevelt's Plea to Public

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt tonight assailed "buck passers" who "ave it all to the government in providing relief for the needy. He appealed to all to give to local organizations carrying on welfare services.

Opening the four weeks' charity drive of the 1933 mobilization for human needs in an address from the White House, Mr. Roosevelt reëmphasized his position that local and state responsibility come first in the relief program.

A "steadily growing reëmployment of the unemployed has taken many families and individuals off relief rolls," the President said. But he called the needs of those still on relief rolls "proportionally greater than it was before."

Private Charity Important.

"I have spoken on several occasions," the President said, "of the vital importance to our country that private charity, in all that that broad term covers, must be kept up at least to the levels, and I hope even beyond the levels, of former years.

"At this opening of the four weeks 1933 mobilization for human needs I want not only to reaffirm what I have said before but to stress the fact that the fine teamwork in the recovery program cannot be successful if an important horse lying back in the traces.

"It is true that I have declared that government must not let any one starve this winter; but at the same time this policy is based on the assumption that the individual American citizen will continue to do his and her part, even more unselfishly than in the past.

Need Relief Agencies.

"Let me stress that a great many people wil still need the help of relief agencies this winter. It is true that because of a partial, but I believe a steadily growing, reëmployment of the unemployed, many families and many individuals have been taken off the local relief rolls.

"But, on the other hand, the needs of those who are still on the rolls is proportionately greater than it was before, and, in addition to the work of direct relief, it is necessary for us to continue our support of the permanent hospital and welfare services that exist in every county and in most communities.

"A number—I am glad to say a small number—of people have written to me to express the thought that all relief work should be taken over by the government, and have intimated that they would not feel any duty this year to subscribe to local relief or local charity.

"These people have a wholly wrong slant on the fundamental basis of our American civilization. They deny the civic responsibility of the individual, and would seek to toss every problem into the lap of government. They are 'buck passers.'"

First Individual's Duty.

"On the other hand, the overwhelming majority of the American people understand clearly that it is first the duty of the individual and the local community to do all that they can to maintain relief and welfare; that it is then the obligation of the state government to supplement local efforts, and that finally if all of this put together is not sufficient, the federal government stands ready to help.

"This mobilization for human needs will keep the long established hospital and welfare services going. These services existed long before the depression; they will exist long after the depression is over.

"I ask every citizen to give his or her support to the community chests and to other organizations that raise funds for the regular welfare services—bodies which express the instincts of charity, of humanity, and of neighborliness. They are an essential to the whole American scheme of life. Their meaning is expressed in the name—the mobilization for human needs."

LIBRARY LEADERS OF U. S. MEETING HERE THIS WEEK

Convention Expected to Bring 3,000 Visitors.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

For the first time in 40 years Chicago will be host this week to the annual conference of the American Library association, in a gathering expected to attract approximately 3,000 persons. It will be a momentous event for those who write books, those who read them, those who buy, and those who dispense them through libraries of the world. The first general session is scheduled for 8:30 o'clock this evening in the grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel.

Harry Miller Lydenberg of the public library of New York City, president of the association, is expected to sound the keynote of this conference in his official address tonight. He will, it is anticipated by the general membership, voice the conviction of the average librarian that the institutions in which their interest centers are due to experience a vast acceleration of activity and of public contact as the result of the leisure sought for the average worker as a major objective of the NRA.

See Greater Use of Library.

That trend toward greater public use of the library constitutes one of the items that will focus discussion on the numerous departmental and auxiliary organization sessions of the next few days. Another topic that will occupy much time and argument is the possible effect of the NRA upon the library working staffs and the hours, and the wages of the librarians.

At 10 o'clock this morning the council of the association will convene to debate such questions as the future of the library under the newer economic order; the influence on libraries of publishers' codes; the possibility that federal aid to public institutions will increase prices, etc. Participants in the discussions will include some of the most prominent figures in the library world.

Throughout the week each day will be crowded with smaller gatherings for the exchange of information from foreign representatives as well as delegates from many parts of this country. The general sessions in the grand ballroom of the hotel, the only gatherings at which the main body of delegates and visitors will meet, will be held tonight, Wednesday, and Friday mornings, and Saturday afternoon.

Reception for Delegates.

The largest social function of the program will be a reception for delegates at 3:30 o'clock Thursday in the Illinois Host house at A Century of Progress. Hervey Allen, author of "Anthony Adverse" and the winner of the Newberry medal for distinction in juvenile literature, to be announced during the conference, will be guests of honor.

Among the notables of the literary world who are expected to be present are Harriet Monroe, editor of Poetry magazine; Llewellyn Jones; Fanny Butcher, literary editor of THE TRIBUNE; Lloyd Lewis; Edgar J. Goodspeed, editor of the Rockefeller McCormick New Testament; Howard Vincent O'Brien; Henry Justin Smith; Mignon Eberhart, author of "Dari Garden"; Vincent Starrett, president of the Society of Midland Authors; Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank; Mrs. Margaret Ayer Barnes, and Horace Bridges.

A dinner last night at the Stevens constituted a reunion of the librarians who attended the 1893 conference. It was arranged by Mrs. Henry James Carr of Scranton, Pa., wife of a former president of the association. Twenty-two pioneers attended.

A huge cake in three tiers, with rows of small tapers adorning the top, was one of the features of the "pioneer dinner," which was attended by nearly 100 persons. Among those present were Dr. E. C. Richardson, consultant in bibliography of the Library of Congress, Andrew Keogh of the Yale university library, Miss Gratia Countryman of Minneapolis, president elect of the American Library association, and Mrs. Emily Dewey, widow of Dr. Melvil Dewey, association president in 1893.

SPEED AWARDS OF CONTRACTS FOR C. C. C. CAMPS

Contracts calling for an expenditure of more than $2,000,000 on semi-permanent barracks in the winter camps of the civilian conservation corps in the states of Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin are being awarded to contractors at the corps area headquarters at 1819 West Pershing road. This was announced yesterday by Maj. Gen. Frank Parker, commander of the Sixth corps area.

More than 50 contracts have been awarded and the building work in 140 camps is being speeded. Capt. Harold O. Godwin, assistant to the corps area quartermaster, is in charge of the construction and will award the remaining contracts soon. It is expected that all of the camps' living quarters will be completed before cold weather starts.

Figures made public by Gen. Parker show that more than 6,000 new workers have been enrolled in the area since the corps began recruiting to fill the vacancies caused by men leaving the corps after their first six months' period expired. The quotas for the three states to fill vacancies in this area are as follows: Illinois, 8,769; Wisconsin, 2,438, and Michigan, 1,230. There are now 178 new army and navy officers, assisted by 455 reserve officers, on duty in the camps in this area, Gen. Parker said.

Honor Bride, Member of Fair Queen's Court

Relatives and friends attended a reception yesterday in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Norman Harris, whose marriage took place on Oct. 2 at Gary, Ind. The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. S. Saper, 1352 South Avers avenue. Mrs. Harris was Miss Belle Saper and was a member of the queen's court during the opening festivities of A Century of Progress last summer. Mr. Harris is an instructor in French at Wendell Phillips High school.

KIN OF MISSING STUDENT AWAIT KIDNAP MESSAGE

Police Appear Skeptical of Abduction Theory.

Investigation by federal agents, police, and the state's attorney's office into the reported kidnaping of William Walton Hall, 21 years old, law student and part owner of the Sea Dog inn, 335 East Illinois street, took a turn yesterday into his personal activities to uncover, if possible, a motive for his disappearance.

Young Hall, heir to part of a $200,000 estate, has been missing since Friday night, following his departure from classes at the Kent College of Law, where he is a sophomore. Two mysterious letters, one of them reputed to have demanded $5,000, were received by him before his disappearance. Two others were subsequently received by his wife, Julia, daughter of a wealthy Freeport lumberman.

Wealth Tied Up in Realty.

The investigators concentrated their efforts on Hall's wealth to determine if it was sufficient to attract kidnapers. Reports on this point conflicted. Hall's family, it was said, has been prosperous, but their wealth was reported to be tied up in real estate holdings.

In any event members of Hall's family have got together an amount of cash to pay for his freedom and are awaiting further word from the supposed kidnapers, according to Attorney J. G. Latimer, who was retained in the case yesterday. In the Hall home at 613 Thomas avenue, Forest Park, Latimer expressed hope that police would keep off the case so as to insure Hall's safe return. The family, he said, is convinced the young man is in the hands of kidnapers.

Chief of Police Fred Licht of Forest Park and H. L. De Lisle, president of the company which operates the Sea Dog inn, expressed some skepticism about the kidnaping theory.

Friction Over Estate Reported.

Chief Licht said he understood that there had been some friction between Hall and relatives over the $200,000 estate left by his father. The chief also pointed out that Hall formerly was a resident of Freeport and that two of the four letters figuring in the case were mailed from that city.

De Lisle, questioned by Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney, was more emphatic in his opinions. The kidnaping, he asserted, "sounds like a lot of hooey."

"I am sure there is no tieup between his absence and his connection with this business," said De Lisle. "His personal finances, of course, would have no relation to the inn. As a matter of fact, Hall was not active in the business, usually coming here every other morning or so. I haven't seen him for several days. He is an irresponsible sort of fellow and might have trotted off somewhere for a couple of days and pretended he was kidnaped."

It was reported from other sources that Hall had given a number of predated checks in payment of bills. Just how this would weave into the case was not suggested, except as an incident affecting his personal finances.

Police Smell Rudolph's Breath and Lock Him Up

Rudolph Menke, 34 years old, 5609 Drexel avenue, who came to Chicago from Bremen, Germany, in 1924, appeared yesterday at Calumet avenue and 22d street in his shirt sleeves and armed with a pistol. He announced to passersby that he was looking for Charley Ranna, his boss as janitor of one of the concessions at the World's Fair. Charley, he said, had spoken unkindly to him. Police smelled Rudolph's breath, then locked him and his pistol up on separate floors at the detective bureau.

TWO CHICAGOANS LOSE LIVES IN WISCONSIN CRASH

Two Chicagoans were killed yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by an east bound interurban car on the Dousman crossing east of Oconomowoc, Wis. They were John Ledin, 2248 Argyle street, an employé of the International Harvester company, and Oscar Magnusson, 2210 Giddings street, a foreman in the warehouse of Marshall Field & Co.

The two men were on the way home after a week-end fishing trip. The scene of the accident is an open grade crossing protected by an automatic red light.

Donna Hartwell, 1 year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hartwell, 7030 Rhodes avenue, was fatally injured when the automobile in which she was riding collided with another car at 103d street and Torrence avenue. Seven relatives of the girl and three occupants of the second car were injured in the crash.

The injured are Mr. and Mrs. Hartwell, Donna's parents, their children, James Jr., 3 years old, and William, 3; Mrs. Joseph Schaefer, 45 years old, mother of Mrs. Hartwell; Hartwell's cousins, Lucy Hartwell, 17 years old, and Martha Hartwell, 23; Steven Medoza, 33 years old, 3308 East 78th street; Jesus Santano, 30 of 10723 Torrence avenue, and Victor Vorgas, 29, 10712 Hoxie avenue.

Curtis Jones, 25 years old, of 2545 Mont Clare avenue, was killed last night when he lost control of his car and crashed into a support of the bridge over the sanitary district canal at Western avenue and 31st street. Two companions, Louis Dunne and Frank Ferraro, both of Essex, Ill., were injured and taken to St. Anthony's hospital.

The deaths of Jones, the Hartwell baby, and four other persons increased the Cook county motor fatality toll to 820 since Jan. 1. The other victims:

Fanno Galati, 21 years old, 1513 Hudson avenue. Died in the Berwyn hospital of injuries suffered on Friday when he lost control of an automobile he was driving and the car plunged into a ditch. The accident occurred on Illinois route 4 west of Lyons.

John Steinmetz, 58 years old, 5400 25th street, Cicero. Died in St. Anne's hospital of injuries received on Oct. 9 when the automobile in which he was riding blew a tire and overturned near Palatine.

Peter Ciebien, 58 years old, 1023 North Hermitage avenue. Died early today in St. Mary of Nazareth hospital of injuries received last night. He was struck at Augusta boulevard and Paulina street by a car driven by William Seck, 226 North Parkside avenue.

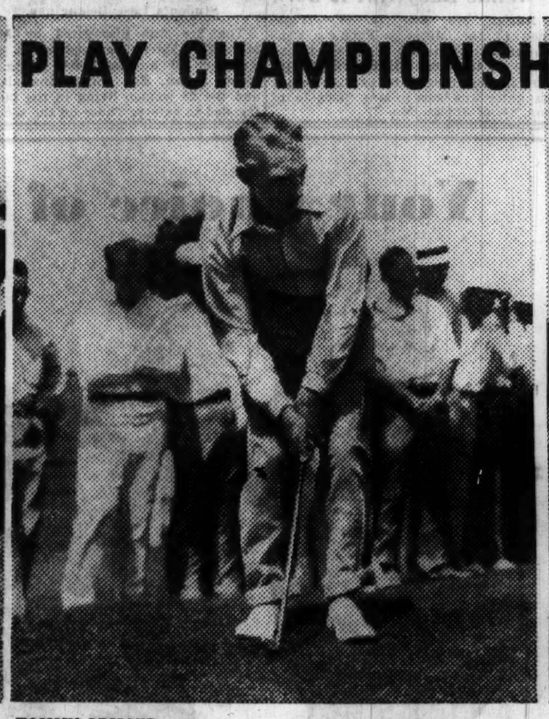
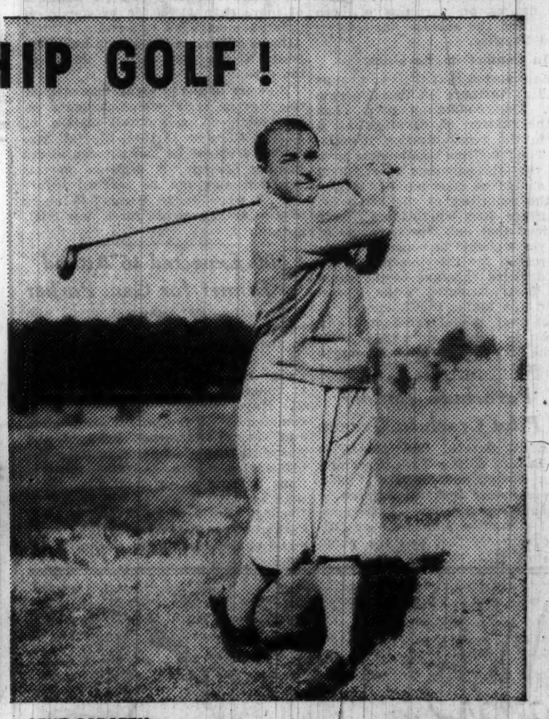
IT TAKES HEALTHY NERVES TO PLAY CHAMPIONSHIP GOLF!

DENSMORE SHUTE—Britons gasped and gaped when he won the 1933 British Open over St. Andrews' deceptive fairways and angry bunkers. Golf prophets say Shute will line up with Golf Immortals. Answering a question, Shute recently said: "I have tried all the brands, and long ago found that Camels are milder, and what is even more important to any golfer, they do not jangle the nerves."



TOMMY ARMOUR—Often called "Wizard of the Irons," Armour has won a flock of championships, including the U.S. Open in 1927, the P. G. A. in 1930, the British Open in 1931. Tommy knows his golf and his cigarettes. "What do I think of Camels? They are my brand and have been for years. I smoke a lot but I must be sure that my nerves are healthy and my head is clear—that's why I prefer Camels."



GENE SARAZEN—This great golfer began his winning ways in 1922 when he became U. S. Open Champion. He has been a consistent tournament winner ever since. This year he won his third P. G. A. Championship. On the subject of cigarettes Sarazen says: "I agree with Shute and Armour—I smoke Camels, too. They always taste good—and they never interfere with my nerve control."

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

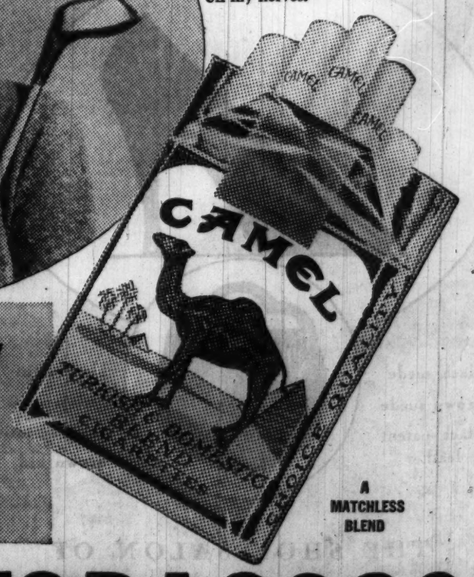
Men and women whose work and play demand healthy nerves and level heads prefer Camels. Active people agree that they can smoke these fine-flavored, milder cigarettes without fear of jangling their nerves.

Another thing about active people—they are pretty generally steady smokers... And, as anyone who smokes Camels will tell you, you can smoke as many of these cigarettes as you want—and never have a "cigaretty" aftertaste. The last cigarette at night tastes as good as the first in the morning, if you smoke Camels.

Try a package of Camels today... Enjoy the superior flavor of their costlier tobaccos. If you are a steady smoker you will appreciate the fact that Camels never get on your nerves, never tire your taste.

HE: Nice drive! Have a Camel. They are milder, you know.

SHE: Thanks, I will! I've smoked them for years. I know they taste better. And it is the one cigarette that never gets on my nerves.



IT IS MORE FUN TO KNOW
Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE tobaccos than any other popular brand. You will find Camels rich in flavor and delightfully mild.

COUNTY HIGHWAY POLICE ORDERED TO WORK IN OPEN

Collins Complains Men Aren't Being Paid.

BY HAL FOUST.

Chief William F. Collins of the county highway police yesterday renewed his orders that motorcycle men while on duty must patrol the roads in full view of the public. According to reports, the county men have been parking their wheels at hot dog stands or filling stations ready to pounce upon any passing automobile that looked like a good prospect.

"This is one of the first orders a policeman receives in going to work in this department," said Chief Collins, "but it has to be repeated every once in a while. You know the conditions under which we are operating aren't very good. The county police haven't received any pay since July 1. They haven't received money even for the gasoline they burn, and they have to eat and pay rent."

How Can They Live?

"How can they live without getting money from a motorist once in a while?" the chief was asked.

"I haven't received any complaints of shakedowns," Collins replied. "The police are getting by the best they can, hoping the county will pay them some day."

Circuit court judges, acting as an employment committee for the county, authorized salaries for the highway police, but the board of commissioners last summer adopted an annual budget without an appropriation for these salaries.

"It's an unwholesome condition to have these unpaid motorcycle men on the highways," said Joseph H. Braun, generla counsel for the Chicago Motor club, who has been fighting speed traps for the last 15 years. "Healthy men are going to provide food for themselves and their families. There is no legal way that the county highway policeman can obtain money from his day by day job.

Reports of Bribe Paying.

"We have received saveral reports recently of motorists having paid money to policemen who have stopped them on the highway. The policemen have not been identified. The county men cannot be suspected any more than the unpaid constabulary in some of the villages of the metropolitan area.

"If a motorist is taken before a justice of peace, the county highway policeman is not supposed to receive any fee for making the arrest. However, if there is a conviction, the justice of peace receives 'costs.' In the past, we have gathered evidence indicating that certain justices of peace were splitting their fees with the arresting officers.

"Police Should Be Paid."

"If the county police are going to continue to patrol the highways, they should be paid. Regardless of whether they are paid, the motorcycle men should stay out of hiding to make arrests. At present there is no law in Illinois under which the ambushers can be prosecuted. In California there is a statute banning speed traps. The motor club is drafting a bill to be presented at the next Illinois legislature requiring the highway police to remain on the open road where they can be most effective in curbing reckless driving."

POLAND ACCLAIMS BENNETT BALLOON RACE WINNERS

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Capt. Frank Hynek and Lieut. Burzynski Zbignien, victors in the Gordon Bennett cup balloon race in the United States this summer, were welcomed royally at the Warsaw aviation field today.

Government authorities and cheering crowds massed at the field despite a pouring rain.

The two balloonists flew here by airplane from Gdynia where they were received ceremoniously this morning. They landed 24 hours late because their ship, the Kosciuszko, was delayed by a gale off Scotland.

Boy Is Killed, 3 Injured in Crash Near South Bend

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—An 8 year old boy was killed and three other persons were injured, one his mother, when their auto overturned in a ditch eight miles west of here. The boy is Robert Hall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Hall, Detroit. The mother, Mrs. Ruth Hall, 38, is in a serious condition with back injuries. Mrs. Fannie Watts, Mrs. Hall's mother, received a severe leg fracture. Harold Burr, 34, Detroit, friend of the family, received lacerations to his face.

JEAN HARLOW IS OPERATED UPON AT 4 IN MORNING

Suffers Sudden Attack of Appendicitis.

Dr. Sidney R. Burnap, who performed the operation, said she was resting easily and would recover, barring complications.

The actress, who a few weeks ago eloped by airplane to Yuma, Ariz., and was married to Harold G. Rosson, film camera man, was taken to the hospital at 4 a. m.

She appeared to be in the best of health until last night, when she complained of pains in her abdomen. The case was diagnosed as acute appendicitis and she was taken to the hospital, accompanied by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Marino Bello, and her husband.

U.S. Government ALASKA SEALSKIN SAMPLE COATS

Values to $495.00

Come in and see the exhibit of Alaska Sealskins, showing the process of plucking, tanning, and dyeing the skins before they are made up into coats. On display in our Fur Department.

● Long before the St. Louis Auction in August, we bought thousands of dollars' worth of skins—selected the choicest of pelts at low prices that are history now. Prices began to rise, and by the time the semi-annual fur auction was held in St. Louis, pelts of this quality were auctioned at dollars more per skin. So, we're enormously enthusiastic and can't emphasize too much this UNUSUALLY LOW SALE PRICE.

● Then, too, we liked the idea of being able to have the coats made up in styles which are newer than those launched earlier. Copies of models featured in the Paris openings. Black or Logwood Brown. Sizes 16 to 44 included in this group.

If you prefer, you may select your own bundle of skins and your own canvas model (copies of imports) and we will make a coat to your own special measurements, at a slightly higher price.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE CRIME OF GOLD.

Attorney General Cummings has come to grips at last with the gold holdouts. A New York lawyer whose gold holding represents a fair sized fortune has been indicted and will be prosecuted criminally. As a lawyer he has invited this attempt to deprive him of his property and to send him to jail. The names of eighteen citizens in Chicago have been sent to District Attorney Green for action here and there are twenty more cases in Wisconsin.

Mr. Cummings apparently has been reluctant to undertake criminal action, realizing, as a lawyer and as the head of the department of justice, that he has some perplexing problems ahead of him. The possession of gold by any one person in an amount over $100 is a criminal act, according to the anti-hoarding provisions of the emergency statute. If the person is called a hoarder, as he is, the case seems to be made out against him in advance. If he is called a property owner, as he is, the case does not seem quite so clear. Mr. Cummings and his assistants probably wish it were clearer.

This new type of criminal, for as such he appears, holds as property the commodity which the United States government has pledged its word in its obligation sold to its citizens and to foreign investors to give on demand and satisfaction of its debts. He has the commodity or its token equivalent which must be used in the settlement of international trade balances. He has the only money that is money the world over and the government does not assert that in getting it he committed a crime, did anything against the laws of the United States, was guilty of sharp practices or cheated.

The government will concede in proceeding against this man as a criminal that he has earned his property honestly, that it is his, legally come by, and that its increased value is due to the fact that the government has disavowed its own obligations, now refuses to hold to the letter and spirit of its word as a debtor, and has impounded the commodity upon which it bases its currency. The possessor of this property has not falsified his accounts, has not repudiated his obligations, and has elected to retain his property in the form in which the world over at this time it is the most secure and the most valuable. It is not a question of failing to pay his taxes, of defrauding the government [on the contrary, the government wishes to defraud him], or of cheating his fellow man, except as government edicts and laws put him in a more advantageous position than other citizens. Other citizens have been forced to take their losses; this man has not as yet yielded.

The department of justice has been slow in proceeding and it is probably because it does not see its way quite so clearly to deprive the citizen of his property without due process, whatever that may be construed to mean, and in addition put him in jail because of the preference he had regarding the form his property should take.

The gold hoarder has a hard name and people probably regard him as a selfish man, indifferent to the social good, such a man as might hold out biscuits for himself in a lifeboat and hide one of the two kegs of water. These hard names do not make the case against the property owner more lucid in law, if the law is construed as a protection of the individual in the possession of property honestly come by. A farsighted view might disclose that if this form of property loses legal protection whenever an administration considers itself confronted by an emergency, no property of any kind has any legal standing. It may be an uncomfortable dilemma to face, but the answer may be communism suspended only at government will.

LOCAL TRANSPORTATION.

A recent editorial on the subject of Chicago's archaic street transportation system has elicited replies from both Mr. Guy A. Richardson, president of the Chicago Surface Lines, and Mr. Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and North Western railway. That was the purpose of the article—to provoke discussion of Chicago's antiquated transportation system. Both objected to THE TRIBUNE proposals, but at the same time admitted the existence of the problem.

Mr. Richardson takes exception to the statement that New York is to be rid of its tramways in a year and one-half. We had no intention of conveying the impression that all street car rails in Greater New York would be removed in that time. The project is to substitute buses for street cars in the Manhattan district. Mr. Sargent maintains that electrification of railways under the New York plan would not pay for itself and submits the thought that self-propelled gas units offer a better solution.

We are not partisans of any scheme of betterment, but the fact is that it takes far too long to reach the business section of Chicago from the residential districts and that time and money are being wasted by the congested condition of our main arteries, which are being rendered impassable for fast motorized traffic by street car interference. Our institutions are metropolitan, but our transportation facilities are of the small town type. Far too little use is made of the elaborate system of railways which enter the world's greatest railway center.

The Pennsylvania railroad borrowed from the Reconstruction Finance corporation to complete its electrification project between New York and Washington. More money is available at the same source for an improvement of Chicago's transportation facilities. If a reduction in the time that our citizens must spend on local transportation lines is offered patronage is assured. Small, fast moving units, such as Mr. Sargent suggests, have proven their superiority, so why continue to lag and threaten the growth of the city?

THE LAST OF A VICIOUS SYSTEM.

The abuses of a system die hard. Even now, with only three states needed to end the régime of the Volstead act in the United States, the federal Supreme court has upheld the right of the government to protect its agents against the laws of the states. Colorado's determined effort to bring a prohibition killer before its own bar for trial has been finally defeated by a decision in Washington sustaining the right of Federal Judge Foster Symes to retain jurisdiction in the case of Henry Dierks and denying the petition of the state that the accused be returned to the jurisdiction of Colorado.

Colorado was aroused by the killing of Melford Smith by the prohibition enforcer and has tried to sustain its laws, has exhausted legal procedure, and is rebuffed. The king's agent is under the protection of the king's judge.

The most vicious feature of prohibition was that government agents were sent out armed with instructions to shoot on little excuse or none. When they committed murder, as they often did, they were taken under protection of federal courts where juries were sometimes fixed and where witnesses were generally intimidated. Agents of the government were accessory to murder, both before and after the fact.

The unanimous repeal of the eighteenth amendment is the people's answer to this reign of crime. May it not soon be let loose again on some other moral pretense.

A CANADIAN EDITOR ON FREE PRESS.

Evidently the insistence of the American press upon explicit reservation in the NRA code of its rights under the constitution has interested Canadian editors. At any rate, Maj. John Bassett, vice president of the Montreal Gazette, one of the leading Canadian newspapers, took the occasion of a convention of the Ontario press to say that "the real function of the newspaper is independence—applauding the government when it does right and as heartily criticizing it when it does wrong."

It is not surprising that responsible Canadian editors should be interested in signs across the border of a disposition in politics to restrict the freedom of the press by laws or administrative regulations. Maj. Bassett and his colleagues were born to the same traditions and principles of a free society as the American press and people inherited and maintain. Similar interests in politics are inimical to a free press regardless of national lines and the maxim that eternal vigilance is the price of liberty is as valid in Canada as in the United States or any other free country. Maj. Bassett was certainly not wasting his breath in reminding Ontario editors and all editors in every free nation still remaining that independence is the first essential of a responsible newspaper and its duty to praise and blame the operations of government its chief duty in a nation of freemen.

Editorial of the Day

[Decatur Herald.]

One reason for the distressingly small success of most of our efforts to end depression may be that nobody yet knows what depression is. There is never any shortage of opinions, but there is a sad shortage of ascertained facts.

Many people think depression is a shortage of money and demand accordingly the cure of inflation. Others see the cause of our woes in a surplus of goods and propose to legislate cures for that. There is suspicion that the too great efficiency of machinery has undone us and suspicion that the throttling of export trade is a prime cause of our woes.

For every supposition about the cause of the malady there is a different set of prescriptions, but from the beginning to end all proposals rest upon nothing better than supposition. Nothing is so hard to find in the whole literature of the subject as hard facts. There are whole libraries of books filled with theory and conclusion, but rarely a single volume to show exactly what has happened.

Nobody knows to this day how many persons in this country are unemployed, all discussions of that subject being founded upon more or less expert guesses. Nobody knows whether the world supply of food is or is not larger in proportion to the needs of the world population than normally. Nobody knows, indeed, what "normal" may be in that vital ratio. Nobody knows how people adjust their living and spending habits to depression—the millions of families whose incomes are lost or greatly reduced, yet who manage somehow to keep off the relief rolls.

A startling reminder of this lack of reliable data for legislating and theorizing is a little booklet recently published by the Harvard school of business on "The Behavior of Consumption in Business Depression." The author, Arthur R. Tebbutt, has been at great pains to collect some facts. And, as usual, the facts prove to be sensational. A few figures blow whole libraries of impressive theory into scrap paper.

What American, and particularly what American farmer, is prepared for this statement, for example: Consumption of meat, butter, tobacco, grain, textiles, and clothes in the United States during depression years has fallen off very little—in some of the items not at all.

A dozen plausible guesses about the nature of the agricultural problem and its solution are annihilated by the explosive power of one small page of statistics establishing those facts. There has been a lot of guessing that because people had no money they were eating less and wearing less. Actually, except for a negligible minority, they have been eating and wearing clothes in the same quantities as in 1928. The prices paid are another matter—and so is the loss of the farmer's foreign market.

In contrast with the evidence of normal consumption for consumers' goods it is revealed that consumption of steel, lumber, and most metals has fallen during depression to less than half the previous amounts. A very strong inference suggested by this fact is that unemployment, far from being a result of the displacement of men by machines, is an affliction that comes upon us when industry stops buying new machines. It is, at any rate, in the resumption of demand for producers' goods that we must look for the means of recovery.

And that, presumably, is what President Roosevelt is thinking about when he gives the railroads of the country an imperative suggestion to go out and buy quantities of rails.

SONNET.

I have known Death, on whom men look and die,
But I have seen him face to face and felt
His hand, where yours had rested on my thigh.
Oblivion came here and with me dealt
As with his own, nor cared that it was I,
Who, living only to your wish had knelt,
And dying, sought no other lord than you.
No knowing infidelity was this,
But dumb submission to the stranger kiss,
Death took me for his own, nor ever knew
I was not his, so deathly had I lain
Since you had gone, and going, left me slain.

"NOVELS," said Hugh Walpole in the course of a talk to a literary club in London, "are the curse of England." And then there's English coffee; American tourists think that's an awful calamity. And there's cockroaches. English novelists are hardly more of a curse to England than the English coffee, but they're worse than the cockroaches.

SELF-CONTROLLED BLOOD PRESSURE.

THERE is an old story of a man who mounted his camel and rode far over the world looking for diamonds. Finding none, he became reconciled and returned home. When he watered his camel in the home brook he noticed diamonds in the stream.

Surely some captious correspondent will offer correction to this story, for it has been told many times with many variations. A very popular lecturer once told it in one way, matched it with similar stories, and made the whole into a lecture, the subject of which was "Acres of Diamonds." The theme was that rewards lie right at our feet and we can have them if we look for them there.

There is no health subject of more general interest than high blood pressure. Many who have it mount their camels and search the world for a remedy, and remedies by the score are found. The trouble about most of them is that they don't work.

There is more than one kind of high blood pressure and more than one cause for it. The cause and cure for one important variety of it, possibly the most prevalent kind, lie within rather than without. Having ridden the camel across the Desert of Sahara and into many foreign lands, we come back home and find the diamonds in our own brook. If, on repeated examinations, the blood pressure is found to be high but uneven, rising and falling through a range of fifteen points or more, the probability is strong that the principal cause of the trouble is emotional in character. We often hear of blood pressures that drop twenty or more points. In such cases it is reasonably certain that emotional disturbance was the cause of the peak pressure and emotional calm was responsible for the drop.

In all this great group of high blood pressure disorders the most important part of the control is the cultivation of calm, poise, equanimity, and emotional control. If dieting has any place it is of secondary importance or less. Treatment by drugs ranks even lower in the scale. Overcoming constipation and colonic flushing are of trifling importance.

The procedures for the development of equanimity belong in two categories, the not-to-do's and the to-do's. The nots include worry, anxiety, and all other forms of fear. Also anger and the more active emotions. If some one suggests insomnia, the answer is that poor sleeping is merely a manifestation of a lack of equanimity.

The do's consist in adopting an attitude of hopefulness and good cheer. Buoyancy of spirits is a good attitude, provided one does not let it run to exuberance. The radiation of good cheer may be carried to the point where it overheats the radiator and scorches the radiated.

All of this is a matter of self-medication, not meaning thereby taking medicine out of a bottle.

REDUCING.

Mrs. J. F. writes:

1. What method should I use to reduce? I am married and 45 years old.
2. I have a reducing machine. Should I diet also?
3. I do not lose fast enough.

REPLY.

1. Dieting.
2. Doing so will help, provided you do not make that increase your food intake.
3. Reducing is not worth while unless it is well planned and properly executed. People who are impatient and want to reduce rapidly rarely have a plan. As a rule, they are acting on impulse and will quit as soon as the mood changes.

A proper plan is one that regulates the diet and exercise so as to cause a reduction of about five pounds a month until the proper weight has been reached; and after that, a regulation of eating habits, appetite control, and exercise or work that will hold the weight at the desired point for ten years.

If one forms proper habits and sticks to them for ten years, the chances are they will be continued throughout life.

IT IS NOT SERIOUS.

Miss M. C. writes: What is the cause of audible cracking of the jaws while eating? This is a recent occurrence. I am normal otherwise and 24 years old. If it is lack of exercise can you suggest a corrective?

REPLY.

It is due to a mild arthritis. It is not serious or liable to become so. Are your teeth, mouth, throat, and nose in good condition?

GALL BLADDER.

H. W. writes: Tell me about gall bladder infection, particularly when there are adhesions. X-ray shows no stones.

REPLY.

Most cases get along very well if the sufferer lives on simple, plain foods, never overeats, eats very little fats, not much meat, and no condiments, and never drinks alcoholic beverages. Cases of this type were formerly called dyspepsia. If there are adhesions there is or has been considerable infection of a more serious type and operation probably is necessary.

MUSIC WHILE YOU SLEEP.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—[Friend of the People.]—Can anything be done about the teacher of music on the second floor where we live? When he moved in he was supposed to be an accordion teacher. Lately he has been teaching an orchestra of five or six people. You can imagine the noise. My brother works nights and would like to get some sleep. M. B.

The officer assigned to investigate reports that he interviewed the music teacher in question, who conducts a studio in his home, and informed him of the nature of the complaint. He was assured that henceforth the teaching would be conducted and rehearsals held from 1 to 9 p. m. The officer further reports that the music teacher has conformed to this schedule upon his subsequent visits to the premises.

TRUST DEED.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Would a ninety-day legal notice of default given under a power of sale in a trust deed, in California, be rendered ineffective by the intervention of the moratorium before the 90 days were completed? 2. Would a trustee's sale on April 22, 1933, in which the printed notice called for a sale "to the highest bidder for cash (payable in United States gold coin at time of sale)" and the trust deed containing the clause calling for payment "in gold coin of the present standard of weight and fineness" be legal? 3. Could the trustee under the power of sale legally hold a sale and accept payment in other forms of money than gold under the printed notice? 4. How should we proceed to take advantage of the statute of limitations, which became a bar during the running of the 90 days' notice of default—that is, in case the legal notices above referred to are defective? At the present time the sale stands postponed until Nov. 16, 1933. W. W. J.

1. We see no reason why it should be defective as far as the facts stated are concerned, but obviously we are not in a position to give you advice of any value without having the trust deed before us.
2. There are many such questions on which there are no decided cases and on which the only present answer can be that the law is unsettled.
3. See 2.
4. In general, the instituting of court proceedings prevents the statute from running. Presumably, attorneys have been employed in the proceedings and if so, they are in a better position to advise than we are. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FRIEND OF THE FARMER

[Inquiries on problems of farm management, financing or governmental regulations sent to this department must be accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope for reply.]

C. J. C. asks: What will be the interest and cost of getting a farm loan on a 40 acre farm on which there is a mortgage of $5,500 with interest at 5 per cent? This farm is located in Dodge county, Wisconsin.

Answer: Make application to the Federal Land bank at St. Paul, Minn., which has jurisdiction over federal farm loans in Wisconsin. The interest is 5 per cent when the loan is made directly by the federal land bank or land bank commissioner. A rate of 4½ per cent is obtained where you are able to join a local farm loan association, which in turn is able to rediscount the paper through federal intermediate banks.

J. D. B. asks: I am an experienced farmer, have been employed in the city of Chicago for 10 years, but have been out of work now three years and would like to return to the farm on account of being unemployed, but have no money to buy one. I found a farm in Michigan which would sell for $25,000. The buildings are insured for $8,000. Will the government loan enough money for the full price of the farm, or how much can be borrowed for the purpose of buying a farm?

Answer: For complete details in making application for a loan on the farm which you may buy we suggest you write the office of the agent, federal land bank commissioner, in St. Paul, Minn., who has jurisdiction over farm loans in the state of Michigan. The procedure in granting these loans includes an appraisal of the farm after the application has been investigated. The government then may loan up to 75 per cent of the appraised value of the farm and buildings. The amount of insurance would not necessarily be similar to the appraisal.

J. J. K. asks: I have 85 acres of land near Monterey, Ind., which I rented out last year and this year. I did not allow tenant to plant corn or other products; I only allowed him to use land for pasture, and I know he and the other neighbors will want to rent it for 1934, as the rent I get is nominal. I would just as soon let it lie idle and grow into weeds if I can be of any help to keep farm produce regulated.

Answer: Unless you have been growing wheat, cotton, tobacco, or corn on your farm the last five years you would not be eligible for a government bonus for leaving a part of your farm idle next year. There will be regulations issued by the secretary of agriculture in the near future governing the reduction in corn acreage for 1934. If you will watch the papers you will see the announcement and will then know how to proceed with your plans for the coming year.

GRAND FOLLY AT GRAND COULEE.

Portland, Ore., Oct. 12.—A hundred miles up the Columbia river from Portland, Ore., one may look upon the region's most monstrous monument of pork barrel waste. I doubt if its equal may be found in the entire nation. This folly is officially known as the Celilo locks. These locks were built at a cost of $13,000,000 in the decrepit days of the Columbia river steamboat traffic. The traffic was dead by the time the locks were completed. They have remained an utterly useless gorge of concrete and steel from that day to this, except for occasional grain barges. They do not even serve as an object lesson in pork barrel waste, for they lie in a desert, viewed only by jackrabbits, rattlesnakes, and Siwash Indians.

Now the folly of the Celilo locks is being gigantically repeated. The public works board has allotted $83,000,000, with many more millions to come, for the construction of power dams amid the sagebrush and lava barrens of the Columbia river gorge in Oregon and Washington. The Grand Coulee and Bonneville dams are projects of fantasy no less monstrous than that of the Celilo locks. The same massed forces of bemused boosters have driven the projects to acceptance by the government. The bemused boosters have revived all the arguments that were used so effectively in achieving the locks. Substantially, the arguments contend that such projects in the desert barrens will waft great new industries and commerce into being as with the touch of a fairy wand. In the case of the Celilo locks the steamboat traffic was dying. The argument for the locks said that they would open a new empire of trade to the steamboats and cause the Columbia to flow under an endless banner of smoke. It was useless to point out that there was no trade demand in the upper country for steamboats. The boosters replied that when the steamboats once reached the upper country they would create a demand.

The force that actually achieved the locks, however, was the organization of the region's population into a political army for a single purpose. The same method has been pursued in grabbing the allotments for the Grand Coulee dams. In all the cities and towns of Oregon and Washington the newspapers gave most of their front pages to the cause; the roar of the radio stirred the citizens from dawn to midnight; luncheon clubs, lodges, Legion posts, churches, schools—all whooped into the fray; our congressional delegations were fortified with truckloads of petitions, letters, and telegrams, reinforced by mayors and political leaders; with the force of a terrific and intense mass action the raid was carried on until Senators Dill and McNary brought home the bacon to their respective states.

So we of the northwest are realizing another vasty dream, another grandiose fantasy of boosterism. We are still the incredible people Kipling portrayed in his American notes. Our liars are even more prodigious than the liars of California, for we of Paul Bunyan's land can talk ourselves into believing our own whoppers. And so we have grabbed $83,000,000 away from the congested and festering centers of unemployment in the east. We are mighty, mighty cute, you betcher.

JAMES STEVENS.

A PAIN IN JEFFERSON'S NECK.

Chicago, Oct. 11.—The destruction vs. production program of our self-styled Jeffersonian Democrats does not seem to accord with the fundamental political doctrine and presidential campaign slogan of Jefferson himself and his immediate followers, that in civil affairs "that government is best that governs least."

The sage of Monticello was accustomed to "speak right out in meeting" with everything he had to say, and it is easily believable that could Jefferson rise up and speak to the self-avowed Jeffersonian Democrats of today, in his exasperation he would select as the text of his address that bald statement of a much earlier exasperated ruler, David, that "all men are liars." Then he might appropriately close his discourse with the oft stated doctrine, relative to supply and demand, of that later day simon-pure Jeffersonian President, that "when ever and wherever man has undertaken to interfere with the laws of nature and nature's God he invariably has made a mess of it." And were either here, in body and in spirit, the surest bet in the world would be that he would raise the devil with our alleged Jeffersonian democracy.

AIRSHIP MACON AT BASE AFTER 70 HOUR FLIGHT

Navy Dirigible Is Moored in California City.

Sunnyvale, Cal., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The silvery-hued Macon, empress of all man's skyships, came to her home base here today after spanning the nation from Lakehurst, N. J., in 70 hours and 17 minutes to the time when her nose was placed in the cup of the mooring mast here.

While a brilliant sun reflected from her shimmering sides and 30,000 persons watched the giant navy dirigible nosed slowly up to the mast and made fast at 4:17 p. m.

Lines Thrown from Ship.

Lines were thrown from the dirigible as she hovered some 300 yards south of the mast and these were connected by the ground crew to a line from the mast to which the ship was slowly pulled by winches.

The pumping of ballast into the dirigible's tail to bring it down to earth was immediately started.

The Macon sailed slowly over San Francisco and other bay cities before returning southward to her base, named for Rear Admiral William A. Moffet whose life was lost in the crash off the eastern coast of the Macon's ill fated sister ship, the Akron.

Pushed Into Hangar.

Shortly after 5:30 p. m. the Macon's great tail was brought down and tied fast to the stern car, running on a circular track around the mooring mast. Pushing the 785 foot dirigible into its hangar was a simple task.

The dirigible's commander said the 70 hour trip across the continent was without the slightest mishap and that the big craft had responded "magnificently" in weathering several storms.

REGISTRATION IN NEW YORK NEAR HIGHEST RECORD

Foes of Tammany Cheered by Figures.

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—A tremendous registration, generally interpreted as indicating a city wide revolt against Tammany, a surprising show of strength for F. H. La Guardia, fusion candidate for mayor, and a steady flow of support for Joseph V. McKee, independent candidate, most of it seemingly from Tammany, are the major developments in the city campaign.

The progress of the campaign continues to indicate that the fight for the mayoralty would be between La Guardia and McKee, with the fusion candidate leading at the moment and also in the better position. Deserted by the Bronx Democratic organization headed by Edward J. Flynn with the Brooklyn organization, headed by John H. McCooey, split in two, and with the Queens and Richmond organizations impotent, Tammany and John F. Curry, its leader, are endeavoring to repair their shattered machine and put pressure on wavering organization Democrats. Despite Tammany's great activity, there has been, as yet, no indication that Mayor O'Brien can do better than run third.

Points Against Tammany.

The final registration figures exceeded all estimates and by no stretch of the imagination can they be interpreted as anything but unfavorable to Tammany. The total registration this year is 2,322,382, only 16,422 less than the record for the presidential election last year, and 769,449 more than registered for the last regular city election in 1929.

Brooklyn	814,214	820,787
Bronx	430,408	426,978
Queens	419,749	420,037
Richmond	65,971	63,824

Mr. McKee's sudden entrance into the mayoralty race has failed, so far, to dislodge La Guardia from his place as the seemingly leading candidate. Mr. McKee and his sponsors were undoubtedly correct in sensing a revolt against Tammany and in diagnosing the weakness of Mayor O'Brien as a candidate.

Study Digest Poll.

The results of polls taken throughout the city show that La Guardia has great popular strength. The Literary Digest poll, which showed the fusion candidate leading on the first publication of results, also will show him leading on the second publication, it was said. One informal tabulation of this poll, not necessarily that which will be published in the next issue, is said to have shown 136,000 votes for La Guardia, 102,000 for McKee, and 36,000 for O'Brien, approximately.

Mr. McKee also appears to have been hurt, at least temporarily, by the charges of anti-Semitism, injected by La Guardia with regard to a slurring reference to Jewish students supposedly written in 1915 while Mr. McKee was a teacher. This appears to have more than offset the slight damage done the fusion ticket by Samuel Seabury's criticism of Gov. Lehman, whom he charged with responsibility for failure to prosecute certain criminals he said had been disclosed by the city investigation.

McKee Issues Denial.

McKee last night issued a denial that he ever had attacked any race and objected to the interjection of the racial question into the campaign.

"If the quotations from Mr. McKee's article, gravely reflecting upon the then younger generation of the Jews of this city, are correctly reported," said Untermyer in a statement, "Mr. McKee's statements on that subject are false, distorted and a gross libel upon 30 per cent of the people of this city and will be deeply resented.

"Such a sweeping and all-embracing indictment of a patriotic, useful, law abiding people sounds to me more than anything else like a reverberation of Hitlerism, except that instead of being inspired by hatred, bigotry, and fanaticism, which it is not, it is due to a sad and ignoble conception of our people, among whom he has dwelt many years and should have better understood.

"The revelation of this state of mind of Mr. McKee comes to me as a great surprise and shock, for I have known Mr. McKee many years and have respected and admired his occasional upstanding course in party affairs, when he was free to act independently of party ties, which has, unfortunately, for the city, not been often permitted.

"I hope that the fate that will almost surely overtake Mr. McKee at the polls unless he can explain away this attack will not be visited on Mr. [Ferdinand] Pecora, who is an ideal candidate for district attorney, or upon Mr. Nathan Straus Jr. [Independent nominee for aldermanic president]."

PORTO RICANS PLEDGE LOYALTY TO ROOSEVELT

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Oct. 15.—From a balcony outside the throne room of Fort Aleza, where for four centuries captains general ruled for sovereigns of Spain, Gov. Robert H. Gore, representing the United States, today witnessed thousands proclaiming their loyalty to President Roosevelt and his new deal in Porto Rico.

Throngs lined the streets as 6,000 Porto Ricans marched. The paraders carried banners reading "President Roosevelt, 1,500,000 Porto Ricans Support You," and "Roosevelt and the New Deal." Other banners pledged equal support for the President and his representative, Gov. Gore. The demonstration was sponsored by the coalition of legislative majority composed of Union Republicans and Socialists.

The demonstartion lasted for more than two hours. At the close of a spirited speech, Rafael Martinez Nadal, senate president, turned to Gov. Gore and gave him a typical Porto Rican embrace. The crowd cheered his assertion that Porto Ricans had "in La Fort Aleza," a brother, and in the White House, a father."

HEAD OF FINLAND SEES NATION ON RECOVERY ROAD

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 2.—[By Mail.]—Finland's economic condition is steadily improving, according to the prime minister, Prof. T. M. Kivimaki. The premier said the country has passed through hard times, but is on the road to becoming one of the sound countries in the world.

Prof. Kivimaki, whose party represents the progressive business interests of the country, is cautious in his optimism, but optimistic he is, and as a cautious man he insisted on the results of our talk being put into final form for his approval.

Favors Free Trade.

Here is the interview as finally passed by him:

"The economic foundation is generally sound in Finland. We have been able to avoid resorting to restrictions on trade and currency transactions; as a matter of fact, the trend of economic thought in this country is antipathetic to a policy of economic self-containment and favors free trade, which in view of the economic structure of Finland—the great dependence of the country on exports—is perfectly natural.

"The policy followed has proved to be to the national advantage. Our foreign debts, not very large in themselves, have been punctually met, in which we have been helped by our favorable balance of trade. The industries working for the home market are doing well, the volume of output during the last few years, and especially this year, showing an increase. Our export industries have suffered greatly from the heavy fall in prices of wood products, toward which Russian competition has largely contributed, and as recently as a couple of years ago, and similarly last year, the position of these industries was to some extent difficult.

Prices Up, Wages Down.

"This year, however, prices have risen and the position of the industrial enterprises based on export trade has improved. This improvement has been assisted by the elasticity possible in the wage scale, owing to the lack of any influence on the labor market by trades unions or legislation. Skilled workers' wages have not risen and forest workers' wages have fallen.

"In spite of the prevailing high rates of interest—the maximum interest charged by the commercial banks, even after a continued fall, is 9 per cent, and 5 to 7 per cent on commodity credits—industry has succeeded for the above reason in strengthening its position and even in liberating itself in large degree from the burden of foreign debts. Another factor that helped these industries was the low price of their raw material, timber.

Standard of Living Falls.

"On the other hand, the same factors have been responsible for unemployment and a deterioration of the economic position and standard of living of the farmers. In some fields, fortunately restricted, wages fell immoderately. The farmers, for whom income from forests has always formed a considerable additional income and economic reserve, have lost at least 50 per cent of this income since 1928, which is all the more unfortunate in that at the same time the prices of agricultural produce have greatly fallen.

"The standard of living, never high in this country, has declined during the last few years, mostly in the towns. This is chiefly for the reason that the very lively rate of building in 1925-1928 attracted large numbers of workers to the towns from the rural districts, and now that stagnation has reigned in the building trade those out of work found it difficult to secure any employment. Reduced forest cutting caused further unemployment also in rural districts.

Unemployment Under Control.

"Nevertheless, unemployment never reached unmanageable proportions and now, with the increase in industrial activity, it has again diminished so that on Aug. 1, 1933, the total was only 22,646 out of a population of over 3,500,000. The unemployment policy adopted by the government has aimed particularly at inducing workers who had migrated to the towns to return to the country and find a livelihood on the soil.

"At the present time the economic outlook is more promising than, for example, a year ago. We are well aware, however, that if the world markets take an unfavorable direction, we, too, shall not be spared our difficulties. Our trade treaty policy, which has imposed sacrifices on the home market industries in the case of the commercial agreement with Great Britain, has aimed at nullifying the effects of a deterioration of the market situation. We hope also that the tight capital market and high rates of interest, the weakest points in our economic life, will become easier if conditions, as we hope, are allowed to develop in peace and along normal lines."

RIOTING FLARES IN ULSTER AFTER REPRISAL KILLING

BELFAST, Northern Ireland, Oct. 15.—Daniel O'Boyle, Belfast saloon keeper who was shot in the back by gunmen, died in a hospital today. The crime occurred last night after O'Boyle had locked up the premises.

Police chased the bandits and searched houses, but failed to locate the culprits. An outbreak of rioting followed and much property was damaged. The affair is believed to have been a reprisal for the murder of Constable Anderson last Monday.

In a further roundup of suspected Republicans last night, two arrests were made. Harry Pollitt, secretary of the communist party of Great Britain, was detained by Ulster police today on his arrival from England and Sean Murray, the party's Irish secretary, was detained later. Police invaded an Independent Labor party meeting to take him into custody.

LIMITATIONS LAW IN MALONE CASE IS STUDIED BY STATE

State investigation of the cash receipts of William H. Malone, former chairman of the state tax commission who was indicted Friday by the government on income tax fraud charges, hinges upon the dates involved, State's Attorney Courtney said yesterday. Under the statute of limitations prosecution for bribery must be inaugurated within three years after the act, and indictment for conspiracy must be within 18 months of the last act of the conspiracy.

The government's charges that Malone's bank accounts showed evidence of the receipt of part of the fees paid to lawyers who represented corporations in securing tax reductions before Malone concerned the years 1929 and 1930. Malone was indicted on charges that he failed to pay income tax on the split fees during those two years. Malone resigned as chairman of the tax commission on Jan. 7, 1931, and the following year was a candidate for governor. The government began its investigation of Malone's income in 1930. As matters stand now, the prosecutor said yesterday, the state would need evidence that Malone accepted split fees on or after Oct. 16, 1930, in order to prosecute him. The government's evidence is said to involve only the early part of 1930 and the full year of 1929, none of which could be used in a state prosecution. Malone is still in Germany, as far as officials could learn.

Temple Ruins Disclose Idol and Human Skeleton.

BY C. N. GRIFFIS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LIMA, Peru, Oct. 15.—After the key discoveries of a stone and earth idol, a skeleton, and two broken columns decorated in relief and colors, Dr. Julio C. Tello, leading Peruvian archeologist, is proceeding with excavation of the Temple of Punkuri and study of notable examples of the so-called Chavin culture which antedated by several hundred years the period of the Inca empire. [11th century A. D.] Many important fragments of pottery have been uncovered.

The Chavin culture apparently is related to the Tiahuanaco which flourished on the southern shores of Lake Titicaca. The temple ruins now being explored are on the British San Jacinto sugar estates in the Nepena valley, north of Lima, and were first pointed out by the British minister C. H. Bentinck. The first discovery was made when a light railway was being laid through one of the many Indian mounds in the vicinity.

Idol's Head 5 Feet High.

The latest discovery is the idol, a huge demon head 5¼ feet high and painted in various colors. The grotesque head rests on two large slabs at the front of which are enormous claws. These stand on the the lowest step of a stairway painted slate gray.

Boring seven feet under the idol's base, Dr. Tello found a human skeleton surrounded by objects which gave the first evidence of the presence of people of the Chavin civilization found on the site. The skeleton lay east and west. At its side were two priceless stone objects, a large vessel and a maul, both decorated with figures in relief. Additionally there were turquoise beads in shapes of cylinders and discs, a snail shell trumpet decorated with burned figures, 70 specimens of land snails, a pair of mollusks, and portions of skeletons of guinea pigs and birds nearly reduced to dust.

The two broken columns stand at either hand of an entrance of what appears to be a sanctuary hut which has not as yet been completely laid bare. In fact the excavation of the temple has scarcely begun.

Platform Fronts Temple.

The temple occupies an area of about 21,528 square feet—being about 132 by 164 feet and 25 feet in height. So far only the northern facade of the temple has been bared. Before it is a platform, resembling a porch, roughly 65 by 16 feet and 8 feet high. It is reached by four huge steps, about 12 feet from side to side. Behind the platform rises almost vertically a wall decorated with large panels in colors and relief, though parts are worn away by erosion.

The temple is the product of three or four periods of Chavin civilization with buildings superimposed on one another. The buildings were probably used for some time, then partly overthrown and filled in with hand made bricks of adobe which now split up in to large clods. The lowermost buildings are the most beautiful and the best preserved. They are constructed of conic bricks. The relief work and paintings are almost intact. The buildings which form the apex are constructed of rectangular bricks in the Muchik style.

FIFTY CHILDREN'S CHARITIES SHARE IN TAG DAY TODAY

Women taggers for fifty children's charities in Chicago will be on loop street corners and those in outlying business districts today in the 26th annual Tag day of the Chicago Children's Benefit league.

Mayor Kelly has issued a proclamation asking citizens to support the Tag day. Children's hospitals, children's wards in general hospitals, day nurseries, orphanages, and schools for the deaf will share in the receipts.

Their share, as in former years, will be that portion of the day's receipts taken in by the workers for each particular organization.

REOPEN MINE IN WHICH 54 DIED.

Taylorville, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Sixteen pit carloads of coal, mined on Dec. 23, 1932, the day before the Mowcaqua mine disaster took the lives of 54 miners, were hoisted to the surface from Mowcaqua mine Saturday, the first coal to come up since the fatal accident.

THIEF KNOCKED OUT TWICE AND THEN LOCKED UP

Joseph Bandzera, 35 years old, 13425 Burley avenue, had to be captured and knocked unconscious twice early yesterday before he was lodged in the East Side police station on the charge of stealing several boxes of soap and canned goods from a warehouse at 13248 Brandon avenue.

Two steel mill employers, John Stok, 1346 Buffalo avenue, and Stanley Wicenski, 13325½ Houston avenue, first caught him removing the boxes, and in the scuffle which followed knocked him out. They tied him with handkerchiefs and called police.

While they were doing this Bandzera recovered and started to run, his hands still tied. Sergt. Jerry Corcoran, center fielder on the south side police baseball team, brought him down with a tackle which again knocked him out. At the police station Bandzera admitted that he had served a sentence in Joliet penitentiary for burglary.

FOUND DEAD IN HER BED.

Mrs. Catherine Kucera, 80 years old, was found dead in bed yesterday in the cottage in the rear of 1070 North Hermitage avenue which she occupied alone.

MUTINY ONLY A COMEDY, BRITISH ADMIRAL CLAIMS

LONDON, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Vice Admiral James of the British navy, arrived aboard the battle cruiser Hood at Banff today and described the origin of rumors of a mutiny in the navy last week as in reality a sham battle comedy, being part of the fleet exercises consisting of miniature war games.

Four cutter loads of seamen or pirates were landed at Nigo in Cromarty firth. The Hood and the battleship Renown then landed large parties of marines to deal with them. The marines attacked the "pirates," rounded them up, and took their captives to the boat. The local inhabitants, said Admiral James, watched the maneuvers and it was believed their surprise at seeing the sailors realistically chased by the marines with fixed bayonets started the mutiny story.

It was learned that the admiralty takes a serious view of the sensational reports spread in foreign countries, particularly in South America and the far east, and the matter has been referred to the foreign office.

Do as your dentist does—

USE POWDER

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth
—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleamingly white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dull Teeth Become White

Dentists everywhere recommend Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, because—teeth simply cannot remain dull and film coated when it is used.

No Grit—No Pumice

Free from all grit or pumice, Dr. Lyon's cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel, as years of constant use have shown.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Lasts Longer—Costs Less

Once you use Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder, you will never be satisfied to use anything else. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

What has department store advertising to do with renting apartments?

DEPARTMENT store advertising is addressed largely to women. To reach the greatest number of women who are able-to-buy, Chicago department stores place more advertising in the Tribune than in any other Chicago newspaper!

Practically all apartments-to-rent advertising is addressed to women. Why not make your biggest bid for tenants among the group of women that the department stores value most—the women who read the Tribune?

Far more women read the Tribune than read any other Chicago newspaper. The Tribune prints far more news and features of interest to women than any other Chicago newspaper prints.

TIME TO FIGHT

THE time has come when the intelligence of the country must speak its mind on the question of currency inflation, and speak it forcibly. It can no longer, it seems to this newspaper, stand by and permit the impression to gain ground in Washington that the Pittmans, the Thomases, the Bankheads and others of their kind are representative of the responsible and thinking mass of opinion in the nation.

There can be no question that those who understand monetary matters and who are familiar with the history of previous experiments in currency inflation are irreconcilably opposed to subjecting the country to the grave dangers inherent in these fatuous proposals. Unlike the inflationists, however, this great body of thoughtful citizens lacks, at the present time, the leadership and the organization that are essential if it hopes successfully to combat the uninformed but highly articulate propaganda of those who would resort to the printing press.

Any counter-movement launched against the inflationists should be non-partisan politically and should have leadership in which people could place confidence. Its objectives should be two: first, to educate the public in the dangers and fallacies that underlie demands for paper money inflation; second, to organize informed opinions so that the latter would make itself effectively felt in Washington.

Those who do not already realize it should be made to understand that there is no more vicious illusion in the world than the illusion that a shortage of money can be remedied by placing an official stamp on paper and declaring that such paper shall have a stated value. During every paper-money inflation of the past, whether one takes the case of the French assignats, the German marks or our own greenbacks, the result has always been the same: the faster the paper was printed, the greater and the more poignant the cry of a "shortage of currency." The reason for this is, of course, that such paper depreciates in value much faster than the printing press can produce new supplies. This is the essential fallacy of paper-money schemes. It is this fallacy which makes paper-money inflation, as an eminent German authority, Dr. Peter Reinhold, has put it, "the most terrible thing that can happen to any civilized state."

But it is the record of inflation of the currency that its evils do not end with an accentuation of the problem that it is expected to remedy. In the process it works an inequitable and a cruel redistribution of a country's wealth. As one historian has trenchantly written, "It leads to the absorption of the means of the workingman and the man of small fortune; it impoverishes men living on fixed incomes, salaries or wages, and creates on the ruins of this large group a small class of debauched speculators, the most injurious class that a nation can harbor—more injurious than professional criminals, whom the law can reach and throttle; it stimulates production at first, and leaves every industry prostrate afterward; it breaks down the idea of thrift and develops social and political immorality."

We want no experiments of that sort in the United States. But there is grave danger that we may have them forced upon us if those who are aware of their hidden dangers do not make their opinions felt. Friends of sound money cannot afford to permit an issue fraught with such grave economic and social consequences to go by default.

BY PERCY WOOD.

States which do not provide regulatory laws for the manufacture and sale of whisky are likely to find themselves inundated by a sea of liquor on Dec. 6, according to lawyers who have studied the situation. Illinois may be one of these unless the legislature, which is now wrestling with the idle relief problem, evolves a program in a hurry.

Present indications are that six states will vote to banish the 18th amendment on Nov. 7. Thirty-six states are needed for ratification and 33 have already voted to ratify, so the only action to be taken after Nov. 7 will be the action of the ratifying conventions, the last of which will be held on Dec. 5. Then prohibition will cease to exist, save in the bone-dry states—including Kansas.

It is expected that the last three states to ratify will send their notifications to Washington by wire on the night of Dec. 5. It appears now that on the morning of Dec. 6, the use of intoxicating spirits once more will become legal in the United States.

Street Peddling a Possibility.

In fact, lawyers say, so open will be the franchise that whisky may be peddled on the street at State and Madison streets if the legislature gets into a wrangle—as it has been known to do—and no legislation is approved by the deadline.

The state liquor commission, appointed by Gov. Horner on authorization of the assembly and composed of five citizens, five senators and five representatives, has not drafted any proposed regulatory laws. Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago] held hearings in both Chicago and Springfield, but not even a tentative report has as yet been drawn, it was said.

In Chicago the commission found many witnesses — principally representatives of the tavern and restaurant associations—pushing the old-time open saloon. But this would conflict with the state and national platforms of both political parties and the commission did not seem much impressed by arguments that the "shroud be removed from the whisky bottle and an end put to hypocrisy."

Druggists Seek to Sell It.

The druggists appeared with the plea that they had handled whisky as the legalized agency since prohibition and should be permitted to continue in that rôle. They favored the sale of liquor only in packages and advocated that it not be consumed on the premises. The brewers appeared not much interested in the manner by which whisky is handled, but urged that a low tax be placed on beer so that it might be available to all as commonly as soda pop.

Then the scene moved to Springfield where the committee held further hearings but did not proceed far. Since the relief session is now tangled in a bitter partisan and Chicago-downstate fight it could not be estimated how soon that perplexing problem will be settled and the consideration of liquor laws begun. Even when the commission presents its program, a strong fight is anticipated from the small bloc of bone-drys who could, if they wished, drag out proceedings.

Local Option to be Problem.

One of the problems which will unquestionably be placed before the assembly is that of local option. Corporation Counsel William H. Sexton believes that the beer legislation last spring wiped out most of these laws, save in such sections as the old town of Hyde Park which, with a long prohibition history following its annexation, may still be allowed to rule out liquor stores or whisky saloons. Beer being classified as a non-intoxicating beverage did not bring out Hyde Park's status. It may have to be settled by the Illinois Supreme court.

Most advocates of the liquor store system before the commission seemed to favor the Quebec style of such regulation. The recently enacted regulatory laws for Montana are also receiving scrutiny.

RUSSIA GETS NO WORD OF JAPAN'S MOVE ON SIBERIA

MOSCOW, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The soviet capital was uninformed today of any reports of Japanese troop movements toward Siberia.

Authoritative Tokio sources revealed Saturday that Japanese troops had been dispatched to three points in Manchuria. These were indicated to be Harbin, Changchun and Mukden. It was said that the movement was to ward off bandit activities.

U. S. MAY CREATE VAST INLAND SEA BY PLANS ON MISSOURI RIVER

Glasgow, Mont., Oct. 15.—(AP)—A vast inland sea, may be created within a year in a broad northeastern Montant valley for irrigation and control of the turbulent "big muddy" Missouri river.

When finally harnessed behind the massive Fort Peck dam, a dream of years evolved into reality by federal subsidy, the waterway will open a channel for steamer traffic from Kansas City northward.

The reservoir will be 174 miles in length, with a shore line of 1,520 miles, embracing a great basin holding 17,000,000 acre feet of water. Three hundred ranches and two small settlements will be submerged. It will cost about $59,000,000.

PROPOSE GRADED TAXES ON LIQUOR OF 700 MILLIONS

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Rockefeller liquor survey said today that "proper" taxes on alcoholic beverages should yield about $700,000,000 yearly.

"This estimate," the survey said, "does not include the normal state, local, and federal taxes which the liquor trade will also bear."

The survey said it is convinced "a considerable part of the total taxes to be levied on the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages should be fastened upon the manufacturer and upon the retailer in such form that it cannot be shifted readily to the consumer."

It suggested a tax rate on alcoholic beverages should bear a "reasonable relation to each other."

"For example," it said, "standard whiskey contains 12 and one-half times as much alcohol as the present beer. On the basis of alcoholic content, the tax would vary 12.5 to 1."

Variations in value should also be considered, the survey said.

Hence:

"Standard whiskey of ordinary grade costs to manufacture from 40 to 60 cents per gallon, as compared with beer at 17 to 20 cents. The ratio here is about 3 to 1."

Variations in the "social desirability of consumption" should be considered too, the survey said.

"From our point of view, there is no reason for an artificial restriction on light beer and light wines through the medium of price control," it continued.

"For spirits we think a handicap of three times the cost of manufacture is the safest point at which to begin."

The survey said it "set a purely arbitrary ratio of 1, 5 and 3 as between spirits, liquors and champagnes, respectively" on contention a person able to drink sparkling wines is able to pay taxes.

It said manufacture and sale are the chief points at which special taxes on alcoholic beverages may be levied and argued that the manufacturers and retailers should pay a "considerable" part of the total taxes to be imposed on liquor.

ESTONIA POLLS RECORD VOTE ON CHANGE IN RULE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TALLINN, Estonia, Oct. 15.—The second day's voting in the national referendum on the proposed change of the Estonian constitution, drastically limiting the powers of parliament, passed without disturbance today. A record vote was polled. The voting concludes tomorrow.

Of Estonia's 703,000 qualified voters, 60 per cent already have visited the polls and before the balloting ends at 2 p. m. tomorrow, it is expected that 80 per cent of the voters will have participated. At the last referendum, when the amendment was defeated, 66 per cent of the voters cast their ballots. Early returns indicate passage of the amendment, which requires 382,000 votes.

Although meetings and other methods of agitation are prohibited by the government, an amusing incident occurred when an enterprising Socialist delegate to parliament stationed his wife in front of a voting booth, lecturing her loudly the entire day about the danger in passage of the amendment. When police remonstrated, he retorted that he was speaking with his wife. The political conversation lasted ten hours.

Minor Hoodlum Wounded; Refuses to Give Details

Lawrence Passeri, 23 years old, 951 West Erie street, a minor police character, was taken to the bridewell hospital yesterday after he had appeared at the office of Dr. Vincent Filetti, 2350 West Grand avenue, with a bullet wound in his right leg. He refused to tell where he was wounded, but Patrolmen James Rawley and Arthur Bauman of the Shakespeare avenue police said they believed he was the man at whom they fired when he fled after they had stopped him for questioning at Hervey and Lincoln streets.

THE COMPACT CLEVELAND MARKET

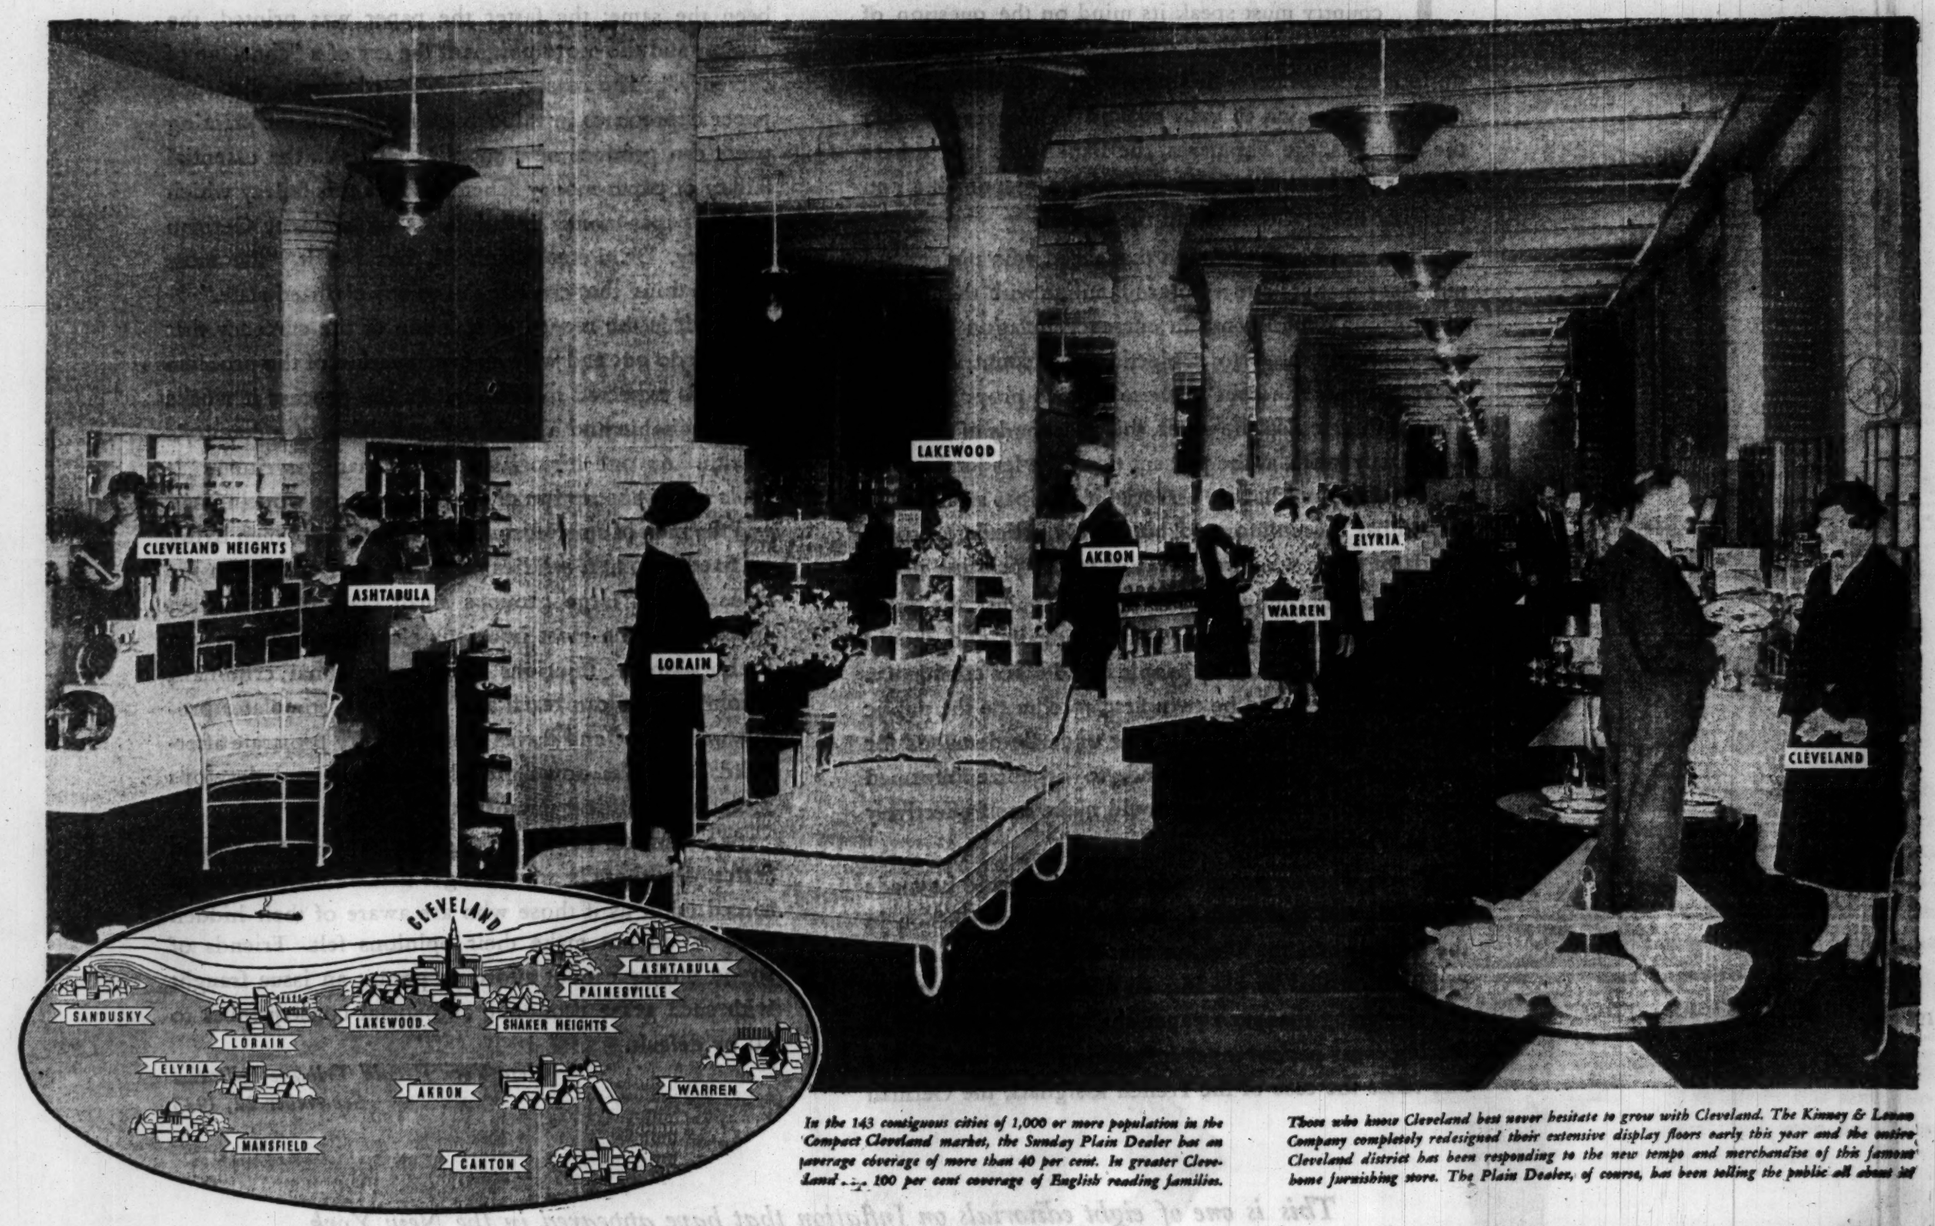
TO ITS ONE SUNDAY NEWSPAPER



In the 143 contiguous cities of 1,000 or more population in the Compact Cleveland market, the Sunday Plain Dealer has an average coverage of more than 40 per cent. In greater Cleveland . . . 100 per cent coverage of English reading families.

Those who know Cleveland best never hesitate to grow with Cleveland. The Kinney & Levan Company completely redesigned their extensive display floors early this year and the entire Cleveland district has been responding to the new tempo and merchandise of this famous home furnishing store. The Plain Dealer, of course, has been telling the public all about it!

HERE, in Cleveland, you have one direct, well worn sales path to the doorstep of this entire triple-million community.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer is the only Sunday newspaper in the compact Cleveland market—just as the daily Plain Dealer is the only morning newspaper in this important trading area.

Advertisers, both local and national, have been quick to see the selling economy as well as the selling certainty of covering such a vast and vitalic market by one sales plan, in which no duplication is possible.

There is no waste coverage when you use the Plain Dealer. Every Sunday it goes into all of the English reading homes in Cleveland. And the Plain Dealer also reaches 41% of the families in the 143 Northern Ohio cities and towns that are Cleveland-dominated in all of their purchasing habits.

Check up the Cleveland market with any Cleveland merchant. You will find that the stores which draw their trade from all over the compact Cleveland market regularly use the Plain Dealer for complete coverage. The buyers who crowd these stores are there because "they saw it first in the Plain Dealer."

Of all major markets, none has a more clear-cut selling process than the Plain Dealer command of the entire Cleveland situation. For here is economical selling in very fact—the Sunday Plain Dealer milline rate is down to $1.47.

Look at Cleveland through the statistical eyes of the Plain Dealer research staff—get the facts first-hand—and this ever expanding, ever responsive Cleveland market will more than warrant your use of the one right way to win it!

SELL WITH . . . COLOR

The Plain Dealer has it. Brilliant, smashing color that catches the eye and sells the goods. Advertisers are turning to color to quickly secure distribution and to economically sell their product.

The Sunday Plain Dealer has a beautiful distinctive magazine section. This enables the advertiser to make full use of color at a time when the impact of striking color advertising is the greatest force that can be applied to the actual creation of sales. Write for full information.

The cost of color is remarkably low, and excellent positions are still available. Reserve future space now. Sample pages and rates will be promptly sent to all advertisers seeking better results in Cleveland.

Antoinette Donnelly Tells How Noted Beauties Keep Charm

Noted Names Mark List of Library Gifts

Families of Donors to Be Guests at Meeting.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Chicago is great in libraries. This is good gospel to remember. And it is also good gospel to remember that Chicago is great in those citizens who are appreciative of fine libraries.

The names of Ryerson and McCormick, Ayer, Deering, Crerar, and Burnham are indelibly linked with the celebrated reading rooms of the city. They represent the families [and there are many more] that have helped make possible 200 special libraries, 81 business and 20 hospital libraries, to say nothing of the Chicago public library, the largest circulating library in the world; the Newberry library, which ranks among the first of those that specializes in literature and history, and the John Crerar library, noted throughout the country for its scientific and technical collections.

Just as others have shown their appreciation of music and painting through notable gifts and memorials, these generous citizens have turned their attention to books.

For the first time since Chicago's first World's Fair there is to be a meeting of these benefactors or members of their families at 12:30 o'clock next Thursday in the Joseph Urban room of the Congress hotel. Harry Miller Lydenberg of New York, president of the American Library association, which has issued invitations for the gathering, will speak. Edward J. Hughes will represent Illinois in a brief address, and Dr. Horace J. Bridges, Chicago's citizens.

The citizens will recall "Tom" Hughes first of all—the Englishman who endeared himself to all Anglo-Saxons through his "Tom Brown at Rugby" and "Tom Brown at Oxford," for it was he who started new Chicago with a library when the fire of 1871 had wasted $200,000,000 of old Chicago's sham and shingles. Calling upon several of his good English friends—among them Queen Victoria, Carlyle, Gladstone, Ruskin, Tennyson, Browning, and Disraeli—he received a gift of 8,000 volumes and with these founded Chicago's public library in 1873. The first home was an abandoned water tank in the rear of the old Rookery at La Salle and Adams streets. Today a set of books autographed by Queen Victoria in the present library bears testimony to the original gift.

There will be no one at the luncheon Thursday to represent this group of English donors, but there will be many who have since given to this institution and to others. Mrs. Daniel H. Burnham, the junior Daniel H. Burnhams, and the Hubert Burnhams have all been invited as special guests, for it was the senior Mr. Burnham who founded the Burnham library of architecture at the Art institute.

There will be a place for Dr. Archibald Church, since it was his family that gave the medical library to Northwestern university. Another will be spread for Edward A. Cudahy, the donor of the Elizabeth M. Cudahy Memorial library at Loyola university. Through their gift of the Charles Deering library at Northwestern, Mrs. Charles Deering and Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey McCormick will be other guests.

And then there are still others who have made notable gifts to the cultural life of Chicago or other cities through their donations of libraries. They, too, will attend the Thursday gathering. There is Mrs. Robert B. Gregory, whose late husband is commemorated in the Gregory library at the Western Theological seminary in Evanston. Miss Cornelia Lunt's father, the late Orrington Lunt, was one of the founders of the Orrington Lunt library at Northwestern, while Mrs. Kersey Coates Reed, Mrs. John G. Shedd, and Mrs. Charles H. Schweppe have made possible the Lake Forest public library.

Mrs. Sarah Schaffner was the donor of the Joseph Schaffner library in the school of commerce at Northwestern, and Mrs. Martin A. Ryerson made possible the Ryerson library at the Art institute as well as a library building in the city of Grand Rapids. Mrs. Edward L. Ryerson will attend the luncheon to represent the Ryerson endowment at the Newberry library.

Among the out of town gifts is that of the William J. Chalmerses. In memory of their son, Maj. Thomas Stuart Chalmers, they founded a library at Schofield barracks in Honolulu. Mrs. Vesta M. Westover Channon is the donor of the American library honoring Pasteur at Strasbourg, France, as well as the French library in the clubrooms of the Chicago's Alliance Francaise.

Joy Morton's interest in books is manifest in his own home as well as in his gift of a library to Nebraska City. Out at Lisle, where his home is set down in the midst of the well known Morton Arboretum, he has one of the finest horticultural libraries to be found in this country. This he is inviting all of the out of town guests coming for the Thursday meeting to visit.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

ACTING: Warner Oland, who is now called Mr. Chan by his friends when they do not mistakenly address him as Dr. Fu Manchu, plays the Chinese detective with customary cleverness, emitting adages with every breath. Clara Blandick is excellent as the sister of the murdered man. Heather Angel—whose English accent I love—is charming, and other rôles are handled all right.

DIALOGUE: Mediocre.

SITUATIONS: Not so convincing as have been those in some of the Charlie Chan stories. Something labored about them.

DIRECTION: Fair.

SUSPENSE: Considerable. You aren't apt to guess the identity of the murderer until you're supposed to.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Mystery story addicts will enjoy it—if they're not too critical as to technique.

Cigaret Girls for North Shore Party

These three attractive misses, Virginia Melody, Mary Mavor, and Veronese Beatty, are being entertained at a tea that Mrs. Malcolm Vail is giving in her Highland Park home today for the ticket sellers for the Potpourri party that the Highland Park and Ravinia Infant Welfare societies are giving Oct. 28 at the Moraine hotel in Highland Park. While Miss Melody, Miss Mavor, and Miss Beatty are selling tickets now, they are pictured in the costumes they will wear when selling cigarets at the gay affair on the 28th. Miss Janet Bard is the fourth cigaret girl.

Post-Debs and Young Matrons Get Lion's Share of Style Places

BY JUDITH CASS.

TWENTY-ONE of the eighty-eight young women who will parade the autumn's most stunning creations in the annual St. Luke's fashion show Thursday afternoon and evening in the Grand ballroom of the Stevens hotel are to be debutantes of the 1933 season. Although the number represents more than half of this year's lovely coterie of buds, it is also a very special tribute to society's post-debs and young matrons who compose by far the largest group of the mannequins.

The list, printed for the first time this morning, is the product of the selection of Chicago's designers and stylists. Each year the committee in charge of the fashion show calls upon the shops and stores whose dresses and wraps are to be modeled to choose their own mannequins. In case of repetition in choice, and it is frequent, the committee is the jury.

Of course it is impossible for the shops to know all of the debutantes or even all of the young matrons who model clothes strikingly well, so the fact that many of them are not included in the list of 88 does not in any way indicate a lack of style or beauty on their part. All of the season's debutantes who are not modeling . . . and they are 17 in number . . . will contribute to the glamour of the occasion vending flowers and cigarets.

Here Is List of Debutantes.

Miss Betty Alexander, Miss Virginia Ashcraft, Miss Barbara Bastien, Miss Marie Louise Gardner, Miss Lucy Harrison, Miss Margaret Hixon, Miss Charlotte Hubbart, Miss Kean Hughes, and Miss Jean Hyman are a few of the 1933 buds who have been chosen for mannequins.

The others are Miss Leslie Keith, Miss Lillian Lampert and her sister, Miss Myrtle Lampert; Miss Fleury Leonard, Miss Nancy Morse, Miss Jean O'Brien, Miss Roslyn Paine, Miss Jeannette Schreiner, Miss Eleanor Janney, Miss Barbara Shaffer, Miss Josephine Templeton, and Miss Virginia Thatcher.

Mrs. William H. Mitchell who is usually on the list of many shops will appear again this year. The lovely Mrs. Peter Berkey, one of society's most exquisite blondes, will model again this time and so will Mrs. George T. Senseney whose titian hair lends distinction to any gown.

Mrs. Howard Peabody is another striking blonde who will be modeling again and Mrs. Lawrence Williams and Mrs. John R. Winterbotham Jr., will be still other popular "repeaters."

Other Names Are Announced.

The remainder of the list includes the names of Mrs. Robert McCormick Adams, Miss Margot Atkin, Miss Edith Behr, Mrs. Arthur D. Bissell, Miss Doris Bokum, who would have been one of the year's debutantes had she not chosen to become engaged instead; Mrs. Willard N. Boyden, Miss Bobette Boysen, Miss Betty Brawley, Miss Louise Brewer, Mrs. M. Scott Bromwell, Mrs. Paul Butler, Miss Helen Marie Castle, Miss Margaret Chapman, Mrs. Franklin G. Clement, Miss Helen Dawes, Miss Dorothy Dewes, Miss Louise Dewey, Miss Alice May Dickinson, Miss Ethel Dixon, Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr.

Mrs. Arthur Farwell, Mrs. Calvin Fentress Jr., Mrs. Charles F. Glore, Miss Isabel Gordon, Miss Barbara Graf, Mrs. W. Press Hodgkins, Mrs. Robert S. Hotz, Mrs. Philip D. Maher, Miss Caroline McNair, Miss Barbara Morse, Miss Louise Neff, Mrs. William R. Odell Jr., Mrs. Seymour Offut, Mrs. Bartholomay Osborne, Miss Virginia Parker, Mrs. Frederick G. Peabody, Miss Barbara Poole, Mrs. George A. Poole Jr.

Flannery-Walsh Nuptials on Nov. 1.

In a ceremony marked by quiet simplicity Miss Ann Elizabeth Walsh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Walsh, will be married to Roy Leonard Flannery, son of John Leason Flannery of New York, at 4:30 on Nov. 1 in the tiny chapel of St. Chrysostom's church.

Only the immediate families will hear the young couple repeat their marriage vows, and there will be no attendants. After a wedding trip to Bermuda Mr. Flannery and his bride are to be at home on Dec. 1 in Evanston.

Shoppers Find Newest Robes Hard to Resist

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Probably only one out of ten can resist the lure of the new hostess and lounging ensembles—the costumes are spectacular numbers this time with yards of shimmering, liquidly lovely velvet sweeping the floor. There are stunning new silk brocades that are good enough to make the movies.

Until you have seen the one pet model of gun metal velvet that looks exactly like the gray gleam of an electrical storm at night, you have missed a thrill! This creation is long and fits just as snugly as any evening gown . . . the rather shallow flounce is attached to the long sheath outline with cartridge plaits . . . it swirls devastatingly around the ankles and touches the floor.

The long sleeves are full at the top and taper slenderly at the elbow and the new low neckline in front is held in a square formation by clever draping. The ends of the wind-around sash belt are long, long tassels of the velvet.

Other velvets in crimson, or deep plum or a divine shade of apple green, steal the spotlight because of the deep swinging cape that drips with ostrich feather trim . . . you must see them it be impressed properly. Still another velvet goes in for picturesque sleeves in a big way . . . they are long and puffed, imitations of a bishop's sleeve and end in fur trimmed cuffs that match a discreet little band of fur that accents the high neckline.

Thick heavy brocaded silk fashions some intriguing house robes that are as new as they are pictorial . . . they wrap almost completely around your anatomy . . . fasten with wide silk frogs at the extreme left of your chest . . . it has a Chinese looking narrow collar and kimono sleeves that are narrowed to fit the wrist. A luxurious tasseled sash belt completes the costume. You will find these stunning robes in either white or almond green!

The three will be given free trips to Cleveland next Saturday to witness the Army-Illinois football game.

Front Views and Profiles

By June Provines

YOU can make your own commentary on the following. Not long ago a man jumped from the window of a building on La Salle street. An official in an investment house in the same building heard the thud on the fifth floor skylight and went to the window to look out. He returned to his desk, feeling sick and shaken. As he sat down he realized that an office associate also had gone to the window, and a moment later he saw him go back to his desk, hastily pull out a slide rule and get to work, busy as anything. Finally he addressed him, asking:

"What the hell is the matter with you? You saw that poor fellow out there didn't you? What are you so busy about?"

Cold Hearted—Doll—Identity—Hobo—Retaliation.

AS YOU probably know, it is quite the thing to take your dinner party guests to the Art Institute these autumn evenings. The other evening a group, the men in dinner jackets and the women in satins and velvets, were standing before that Toulouse Lautrec circus painting when a debutante of last year made a profound observation:

"I love the circus," she said. "Sometimes I think there's sawdust in my veins."

ON A recent Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Walter Webb Crawford were taking luncheon at the home of the Paul Butlers in Hinsdale and Mr. Crawford found himself chatting with another luncheon guest whose name he had not caught. Assuming he was a polo player or fan, too, because of his apparent intimacy with the Butlers, Mr. Crawford asked if he had seen the polo at Onwentsia in August.

Yes, he had, the fellow answered.

Mr. Crawford commented on the games with enthusiasm, and asked if he had been at all the games and seen this or that play. Yes, he said in answer to each enthusiastic query. It was sometime later that Mr. Crawford learned his fellow luncheon guest was Capt. Wesley White, who umpired all three games.

OVER-FASTIDIOUS readers please pass by. A hobo, full of anti-freeze, sat at Washington and Des Plaines streets for two days twitching and muttering under his breath about "that woman." Pressed for an explanation by a reporter who sensed a story, he explained thus:

"Well, a manicurist over to the barber college done me a dirty trick. I went over for a free shave and she was learnin' manicurin' and insisted on trying it out on me. She filed off my nails real nice and close, and now with barber's itch and other things a botherin' me, and no finger nails to scratch with, I'll sure say she done me a dirty trick."

IT WAS at one of the lectures given at Mandel hall last week by Alfred North Whitehead, one of the greatest of living philosophers. A woman was overheard to whisper to her neighbor, near the end of the lecture:

"Well, I've been able to comprehend only three sentences out of his entire talk so far. Now I'm just watching Mrs. Hutchins [Robert Maynard], hoping she doesn't understand it either, and that it will be retaliation for her diagrammatics lecture."

THIRD AND LAST

By NORVAL RICHARDSON

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila, known as "Bun" O'Reilly, an American, makes a comfortable living abroad by helping fellow countrymen out of difficulties. Fred Crawford, who works on a Paris newspaper, is her friend and counselor. Bun is appealed to by James B. Finlay, an elderly, wealthy American, to help find his young wife, Helene. He wants no publicity. He had met Helene after the war in Bucharest. He had installed her family, the Bobianoffs, in a villa on the Riviera. Her brother, Ferenc, he had brought to America. No trace can be found of Helene and her parents since the last time she returned to visit them. Bun's suspicions are aroused by Finlay's niece, Mrs. Craymer, and her ominous appearing butler. She sympathizes with Finlay and accepts the job and 200,000 francs advance payment. A recent newspaper picture, showing Helene standing with a tall woman in a group at Biarritz, is the only clew Bun has to go on. That night Finlay is murdered. Bun's apartment is broken into by a masked man and woman, her maid, Liberté, bound, and the money Finlay had given her stolen. Bun meets Finlay's son, Robert. His unlikeness to his father and his desire for secrecy puzzles Bun. She feels under obligation to continue the search.

INSTALLMENT XIII.

A THRILLING ADVENTURE.

Bun left Paris early the next morning and reached Biarritz about dark. It was a hard drive, the sort she loved, and when she arrived she was too stimulated to think of resting. Liberté, on the contrary, tried to force her to take a hot bath and go to bed, though this was the last thing she intended to do herself. Arrival at a palace hotel as a companion—and not maid—as Bun informed her she was during the duration of this trip, was like entering a seventh heaven to her. When she was told she was to don the dress Bun had provided for her on such occasions and dine in the big dining room, she forgot all about the bruises which had been uppermost in her mind all that day and left off further suggestions. Her assumption of familiarity with such surroundings and her disdainful attitude towards the waiters kept Bun smiling throughout the meal.

Like most places with a Spanish clientèle, the dinner hour was nine. Bun looked round to see if there were any familiar faces. She found none. The monde was still in Paris awaiting the Grande Semaine. Still accompanied by Liberté, she sauntered into the bar after dinner. Only a few disconsolate gigolos were there, smoking and probably confiding to one another their ill luck in being away from Paris at such a moment. Bun pretended to be unaware of their overtures to pick up an acquaintance with her and wandered out to the lounge and up to the desk. Her intention was to find the hotel director and inspire him with interest, upon which she would work the following day. When she told him she had friends who were thinking of spending August and September there his interest flared at once into life. When she added that she was writing for several papers he became enthusiastic. Feeling that she had blazed the trail, she sent Liberté for a wrap, dismissed her for the night, and strolled down to the beach.

It was a still, lovely night. A moon was sinking placidly into the sea. The curving sandy beach with its jutting points of rock was almost as bright as during the day. She walked down to the water and stood there a long time. How much more beautiful these resort places were out of season! The banality and noise of chattering humanity were delightfully absent. A month more and all this quiet beauty would be ruined by crowds of people trying to make themselves conspicuous.

She wandered along the beach, leaving the lights of the hotel behind her, far from contented, even depressed. She had begun to hate this adventure which had been thrust upon her. The fact that it had become an obligation to see it through had robbed it of its first interest. If she had liked the people involved it might have been different, but she didn't. Somehow they all struck her as unvital—Robert Finlay most of all. Or was Crawford right when he had suggested that they were assuming rôles? That at least would create an element of excitement. She almost wished they were trying to put something over on her. It would be rather thrilling to foil them at their own game. She shook her head despondently. No such luck. They were all merely material persons absorbed only in the money involved in the situation and caring nothing for any spiritual import.

Her thoughts absorbed her to such an extent that she had wandered farther along the beach than she had intended to do. Turning inland, she reached the highway and struck out in the direction of the hotel. A broad shaft of light shot down the road, followed immediately by the roar of a motor. She crossed to the side and let the car pass. A few minutes later she came upon the car again, this time in the middle of the road and apparently at a standstill. Drawing nearer she saw a chauffeur changing a wheel. He had finished the work when she was up with the car and was standing near the door talking to the occupant within. In the reflection of the lights she saw a hand resting on the closed door. She stopped short and remained in the shadow. For almost a full minute, while the occupant within spoke to the chauffeur, her glance was fastened on that hand. It was a man's, meticulously manicured; the nails shining out of the darkness with significant brilliance. A few moments later the car moved off and disappeared. Bun watched it, smiling. Perhaps she had been too hasty in deciding there was no thrill in this adventure. If she were not very much mistaken that hand belonged to Robert Finlay.

She was still feeling the stimulation of this thought when she reached the hotel and found before the door the same car she had seen along the road. The welcoming smile of the director offered a chance to ask questions.

"That car outside," she said casually, "had some sort of an accident along the road. I hope no one was hurt."

The director showed surprise. "I think not. I have just shown the owners to rooms. They did not mention an accident."

"Perhaps it was only a punctured tire. I saw them working at it. Are they from Paris?"

"Only a day or two, I think."

The next morning she asked the manager to direct her to the best photographer. "I'd like some pictures taken on the beach during the season. My paper always likes photographs—especially of well known people."

The director was interested at once. He said he would send for the photographer they employed and would tell him to bring photographs for her to choose from. "Especially any taken during the Easter holidays," Bun added as the messenger was sent off.

The photographer soon arrived with a large collection of prints. Bun looked them over with keen interest, but found none to correspond with the one she carried in her bag. When she had bought a dozen or more, paying through the nose for them, as she expressed it, without a murmur, she produced the one Mr. Craymer had given her and asked the photographer if he had taken it. He smiled enthusiastically and said he had.

"And can I have a copy of it?"

The man was afraid he had destroyed the plate.

"That is most unfortunate. I particularly wanted a copy. I'm not sure, but I think one of my friends is in this group. As the print is not very distinct, I'm not sure." She looked up at the director who had joined them. "Perhaps you can tell me if these people were at your hotel last Easter." She held up the picture and watched his face as he studied it intently. He returned the clipping to her and said he would look over the list of the Easter guests. Perhaps that would recall their faces to him. He was back in a few minutes with a broad smile.

"I don't see why I should not have recognized Mme. la Comtesse de Vernadon at once. Of course, that is she."

"Which one?"

He pointed to the tall woman who was holding the hand of the woman Mr. Finlay had said was his wife.

Bun held her breath a moment. This was rushing towards success much more quickly than she had expected. "The Countess de Vernadon! I don't think I've heard of her."

"Ah! And you are sure this is she?"

"But there is no doubt of it. To see her once is to remember her. Such chic! She was a sensation here."

"And these people with her?"

The director's face fell. "That would be difficult to say. She is usually surrounded by so many."

Bun pretended to study the print. "Im almost sure I know this woman with her—the one whose hand she is holding. It's rather intriguing to know if it is really she." She stopped, suddenly interested in the photographer's expression. He was staring fixedly before him, as if trying to recall something. At last he snapped his fingers as if he had seized a vague memory.

Sees Jealousy Factor in Mae West Opening

Some Feminine Stars Missing at Coast Premiere.

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 15.—Hollywood gave Mae West the biggest compliment that it is possible to give a beautiful woman — jealousy. Least that's what folks hereabout seem to think is the reason that so few stars turned out to the opening of Mae's "I'm No Angel," which was elaborately staged at the Chinese theater.

However, among those brave feminine stars who felt that they could risk being outshone were Marlene Dietrich and Lupe Velez.

W. C. Fields made a bit of a spectacular arrival aboard a beer wagon with six horses, equipped with bells, colored tassels and shining harness. Arlene Judge, wife of Wesley Ruggles, showed she knows her comedy when she cracked into the microphone: "Paramount didn't know whether to call this picture 'Hips, Hips Hooray' or 'Who's Afraid of the Ten Commandments'."

Lupe Velez, happily cooing with Johnny Weissmuller, was solidly armored in diamond bracelets from wrist to elbow, with a few emeralds thrown in for color. The prologue, a circus with trained seals and trick dogs and acrobats, had Lupe falling in and out of Johnny's lap, and in and out of the aisle, with her enthusiasm and "O's" and "ah's" and "daarrlings's" over the animal acts.

Sylvia Sidney, with B. P. Schulberg, back from the runaway trip to Paris, wore that smooth, plain headdress of hers, with a blue coat made quite long and plain, buttoned to the chin, and a lapel full of orchids, purple ones.

Mae West herself gave the audience quite an eyeful in her silver tunic gown especially designed for the opening by Travis Banton; a magnificent silver coat, with huge white fox collar and three bandings of white fox on the sleeves, a huge corsage of purple orchids and lilies of the valley, and enough diamonds to keep the exposed parts of her warm.

Sid Grauman introduced her as "the lady who opened thousands of closed theaters since she made one film, had given fashions to the ladies, and new hope to the men."

As for the film itself, one finds Miss West less intriguing in modern clothes, but always exciting with the flashes in her dialogue. The photography, done during the cameramen's strike, was not as good as in "She Done Him Wrong," but nobody can complain that the film is not entertainment—although, of course, strictly not for children.

Marlene Dietrich made a pun the other day without realizing it when she cracked something about the "wide spread popularity of Mae West fashions."

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE CHALMERS CASE.

"Robbery! Let's go, Fordney," exclaimed Inspector Kelley as he hung up the receiver. "Mrs. Chalmers is a big shot socially and if I muff this . . ."

The professor noted that it was exactly 2:15 p. m.

Seated in the drawing room she told her story. "I left here alone at 1:30 for the bank, it was the chauffeur's day off, to place in my safe deposit box the jewels I wore last night at the Vanstoff party—also some securities. After locking the car, almost in front of the bank, a well dressed young man stepped up, politely doffed his hat and before I knew it, grabbed my bag, jumped into an auto and sped away. I was so stunned and frightened I immediately started for home stopping on the way to call you."

"Certainly."

He gave a hasty glance at the sheet she returned and read: 1 diamond pendant, certificates for 40 shares of Amalgamated Coal and Iron stock, 2 diamond rings, keys to the Rolls, $8 in bills (a five and three singles), handkerchief, compact and the bag in which she carried them.

"Did you scream or offer resistance?" he asked, stuffing the paper in his pocket.

"No. I was too frightened."

"Your jewels, undoubtedly, were insured," he remarked. "Of course the alleged 'robbery' was faked!"

HOW DID HE KNOW?

WHY HAVE GRAY HAIR OR DANDRUFF?

Marvelous, Positively Safe Liquid Works Like Magic!

You, too, can have gloriously beautiful hair, free from GRAY and DANDRUFF.

Don't lose your job or social position due to these handicaps. Try the truly wonderful DOUBLE-ACTING liquid-Nourishine for Gray Hair and Dandruff.

Nourishine is applied like a tonic—so easy to use. You get SAFE and POSITIVE results. Your hair will become soft, lustrous, with a natural appearing color that defies detection. Nourishine is absolutely non-injurious to hair or scalp—is positively beneficial.

"Nourishine's tonic-like qualities make it the BEST hair preparation," every user enthusiastically says this about Nourishine.

No matter what you have tried for gray hair or dandruff, forget past disappointments and try this absolutely different liquid. It is not greasy—does not rub off nor stain scalp or linen. The one liquid imparts any color. You can easily prove it best for gray hair and dandruff. Try Nourishine now!

Write for our free booklet, "Home Care of the Hair." Contains helpful hints on the home care of permanents, marcels, oily and dry scalp, describes coloring methods, etc.

marriage within the year, as we did with the two former junior chairmen, Mrs. Malcolm Henderson [Paula Wilms] and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Jr. [Marjorie Goodman].

Miss Louise Dewey is the new vice-chairman and Miss Ellen Truax the secretary. Miss Barbara Wendell has taken the place of Miss Beatrice Borland as chairman of the juniors' programs.

Society Folk to Give Opera Parties.

Mrs. Philip K. Wrigley, Mrs. F. Edson White, Mrs. Charles M. Hewitt, Mrs. H. Newton Hudson, Mrs. Frank M. Gordon, Mrs. William Tracy Alden, Mrs. Wilhelm Ludwig Baum, and Mrs. Clara Holt Bates are a few of those who will be entertaining parties of friends at the opera this evening in the old Auditorium. The performance of "Lucia di Lammermoor" will usher in the final week in Chicago of the San Carlo Opera company.

So many demands have been made by the Chicago Friends of Music members for seats at the three concerts by the Pro Arte quartet that Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge is bringing here that the concerts have been moved from the Goodman theater to Orchestra hall.

Women's Committee for Horse Show.

Mrs. Austin H. Niblack has been named chairman of the woman's committee for the World's Fair Horse show that is to open Saturday night in the 124th Field Artillery armory in Washington park. Assisting Mrs. Niblack will be Miss Elizabeth Chase, Mrs. Potter Palmer III., Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr., Mrs. Merrill Hubbard, Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson, Mrs. John P. Kellogg, Mrs. John Andrews King, Mrs. Samuel J. Walker, Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen Jr., Mrs. John E. Hughes, Mrs. Kimball Salisbury, and Mrs. William H. Mitchell.

The committee will entertain such interesting feminine exhibitors as Mrs. "Jock" Whitney, Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Carl H. Hanna, Mrs. William P. Roth, Miss Mary Gwyn Fiers, and several others. Then, too, the army officers from the Irish Free State are due today and those from Sweden and Czechoslovakia are already here.

Porter Fox, who is president of the show, will have a dinner for all of the exhibitors next Friday night. On Saturday evening Gen. Parker will be entertained before the show at a farewell banquet. Gen. Parker and his family are to leave the following week for Manila.

Mrs. Robert Gregory Will Return Today.

Mrs. Robert B. Gregory will return today after a summer spent in Geneva, Switzerland, with her daughter, Mrs. Arthur Sweetser. Mrs. Gregory landed in New York last Wednesday and has spent the last several days visiting her grandson, Gregory Durham, at Harvard.

Young Mr. Durham's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Durham of Winnetka, are just back from a ten days' visit with their other son, Raymond Jr., who is a student at the Fountain Valley school in Colorado Springs. Their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Durham, who was graduated from Vassar last June, is back from a European trip, where she also visited Mrs. Sweetser.

Mrs. Hibbard Casselberry, who has been visiting her father, John R. Leonard, in Winnetka, and her husband's mother, Mrs. William E. Casselberry, in Lake Forest, for six weeks, will depart for her home in Winter Park, Fla., today. Mr. Casselberry and their three children preceded her to Winter Park so that the two older ones would be there in time for the opening of school.

Miss Laura Thorne Goes to Arizona.

Miss Laura Thorne, the Robert J. Thornes' daughter, has gone to Arizona with her sister and brother-in-law, the George Gillespies, to spend the remainder of the month and part of November, perhaps.

Having spent the summer in the east, Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Powers and their daughter, Miss Josephine Powers, have returned to Chicago and are staying at the Belmont hotel until after the Christmas holidays.

Miss Jean Wilhelm, who has gone to Boston to assist at the debut parties given for her good friend, Miss Nancy Whitman, Mrs. Chatfield-Taylor Whitman's daughter, will return to Chicago around the end of the week.

Mrs. J. Ogden Armour, who has returned from her Michigan home, is going to remain in town for a while at least, as she is not planning to go abroad just yet—or perhaps she won't go at all.

Miss Grace Dewes Returns from Visit.

Miss Grace Dewes, the eldest daughter of Mrs. Edwin P. Dewes, is back in town after an extended visit with the family of her fiancé, George Stickle Oram, in Rockaway, N. J. The engagement of Miss Dewes and Mr. Oram was announced the beginning of August, but as yet no plans have been made for their marriage.

The T. Clifford Rodmans, who were at the Virginia Hot Springs with the J. Russell Forgans, have returned to their home in Lake Forest. The Forgans will be at home early this week.

Franklin P. Smith and his son and daughter, Hoyt Smith and Mrs. John T. Pirie Jr., are other Chicagoans enjoying the lovely autumn weather at the Virginia spa these days, but they will not return for another week.

Mrs. Conway H. Olmsted, Charles S. Schweppe and his daughter, Miss Jean Schweppe, and his niece, Miss Mary Reed, and Donald R. McLennan Jr. are also at Hot Springs.

Mrs. William D. McIlvaine will preside at the first meeting this year of the board of directors of the Home for Convalescent Women and Children at 11 o'clock today at the Woman's Athletic club. Hostesses for the meeting will be Mrs. James E. MacMurray and Mrs. H. C. Dickinson.

Members of the Glencoe center of the Infant Welfare society are turning their attention to international affairs, with Mrs. Quincy Wright giving a series of lectures on world events at the homes of various members. Mrs Wright will talk today at Mrs. James G. MacMillan's house at 495 Sheridan road, Winnetka.

Corn Pops Up in Numerous Tasty Recipes

BY MARY MEADE.

Just yesterday, figuratively speaking, I was lamenting thus:

But huzzah for the New Deal. For today I'm eating my words and my popcorn together with the discovery that for a cozy twosome or a riotous assemblage around a fire or over a Dutch lunch, there's nothing quite like huge bowls of salty, buttery popcorn as running mates for brimming steins of 3.2.

But perhaps you're no lover of the flowing seidel. Still you're in luck. For with the art of popping once more working its way back into the best circles, we'll certainly be discovering that popcorn has a large assortment of ways of presenting itself temptingly in every course of the meal.

Just as a reminder, first of all, of something I've mentioned before—that a few crisp puffs of popped corn afloat on a creamy corn soup instead of the usual croutons or crackers are most certain to be gleefully received.

And then here's another tip. Popcorn pops only by the grace of the moisture which, turned into steam by the heat, expands and causes each small corn explosion. Therefore if your corn is dried out too completely it will not pop properly. To remedy this, sprinkle the corn lightly with water a day before you wish to pop it, and let it stand covered in a can or jar to allow the moisture to penetrate.

Popcorn as a confection doesn't always need to be rounded up into tooth imperiling popcorn balls. Sugared popcorn is fun to make and still funnier to eat.

2 cups medium brown sugar.
2 quarts popped corn.

Melt the butter and combine with the sugar and water. Let cook until the mixture forms a soft ball in cold water [238 degrees F.]. Pour slowly over the corn, tossing it about with a long handled fork until all kernels are coated. Let dry a little and then serve.

But sweets are far from claiming the exclusive services of popcorn. Something most unusual in the line of puddings turns up with—

POPPED CORN PUDDING.
2 cups finely pounded or chopped popped corn.
3 cups milk.
3 eggs, beaten.
2 tablespoons butter.
½ teaspoon salt.
Dash of nutmeg.

Scald the milk and turn it over the pulverized corn, letting them stand together dozily for about an hour. Dump in the remaining ingredients, give the mixture a thorough stir around and turn it into a buttered baking dish. Place in moderately slow oven [325 degrees F.] to bake until firm. Serve hot or cold with cream or maple sirup.

Southern Charm Graces Quaint Pieced Coverlet

Aunt Dinah's Delight.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Aunt Dinah's Delight" is a quilt pattern as quaintly charming as its name and as obviously southern. It originated in Dixie some generations ago, but modern interpretations of it are still to be seen almost everywhere below the Mason and Dixon line. It is charming in old fashioned green and red prints.

For a quilt pattern in this design send five cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, writing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

Prosperity May Help Children to Be Good

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Automatically one million behavior problems will be solved within the next twelve months.

Or, if not actually solved, they will be solvable. That is my own private prediction based on a statement made in the papers not long ago. The statement was to this effect:

One million families who have been doubling up with relatives and friends will establish their own homes again within the next year due to reemployment. The man who made this announcement was Philip Lieber, newly elected president of the United States League of Building and Loan Associations.

So, provided those one million families have children, one million behavior difficulties will begin to untangle themselves!

Now, of course's that an exaggeration on my part, because many young married people have gone to live with their "folks" and it has been a happy time to them. Grandmothers who are wise and loving have had a chance to know their grandchildren. Young mothers have come to appreciate their own mothers as they never did when they were mere girls at home.

But many of the million families who have doubled up have not had a happy experience, and many of them have found their children suffering from the consolidation of household. Different ideas of raising have been one honest cause of dissension. Too close quarters have been another, meaning the restriction of children's physical freedom and natural noisiness.

Too many eyes to see faults have been another cause of children's sprouting undesirable behavior traits.

Offer Lecture Series on Home Finance Problems

Beginning at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon the School of Domestic Arts and Sciences at 350 Belden avenue is offering a new lecture series on "Home Finance" free to the public. The course will include such phases as the care of household money, the training of children in the right way to spend and save, and the application of home finance principles to institutional finance problems. Mrs. Clara Ingram Judson will conduct the series. An open discussion will follow each lecture.

Radio Artists Show Skill on Concert Stage

Salerno and Allan Grant Please Audience.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Lawrence Salerno, the baritone, and Allan Grant, the pianist, known by those who listen to the radio as two accomplished and resourceful artists of W-G-N, combined their musical resources yesterday afternoon and appeared in a recital at Kimball hall.

It ought to go without saying that they were as much of a success in this form of entertainment as over the air, for it is true. Both are in possession of the secret of how to make music sound attractive, which is sometimes a rarer gift than merely singing and playing well. Mr. Salerno made much of the songs that he has used in radio, songs in Italian, Spanish, and English, with the prologue to "Pagliacci" serving as an approach to the operatic manner. He interprets and projects his numbers with much charm in addition to musical good sense, and his hearers called on him with loud and prolonged applause to add others to the printed list.

Mr. Grant, a highly able accompanist, was also a brilliant soloist in a group by Chopin, Mendelssohn, Rebikoff, and Dohnanyi. He, too, has great ability in the projection of numbers, presenting them in an alert, warm, and altogether persuasive style.

Week-ending with the San Carlo Grand Opera company, now unfortunately going into its last few days at the Auditorium, produced several other good reasons why it has been making people opera minded lately.

One of these was a performance of "The Tales of Hoffman," done with a good deal of style and honest respect for the musical values of a fragile and pretty score. Dimitri Onofrei stands out in memory as by far the best singer of the title rôle of the last twenty years or more. There was a young coloratura soprano in the part of Olympia, the doll. She is Louise Lincoln, and she is going to be worth watching during the next few seasons. From what she showed in this part, she would seem to have a distinctly marked vocal future.

Then there were Ethel Fox and Thalia Sabanieeva, both excellent as the two other other high spots of Hoffman's career, and for once the rôle of the boy, Niclaus, was correctly cast when Beatrice Schalker was put into the part. These and other merits quite outweighed the facts that the comic incidents of the piece were not always completely comic, and that the performance was partly in French and partly in Italian.

Likewise there was a "Carmen" performance introducing another artist who would seem to be important. He is Sidney Rayner, and he sang the part of Don Jose with a fine voice and easy, distinguished manner. He will be on again tonight in "Lucia." Another addition to the cast was Dorothy Hermann, who was excellent as Micaela.

Renaissance Society Will Show First Talkie Tonight

Many northsiders will be traveling south this evening for the first showing this year of foreign talking motion pictures at the International House at the University of Chicago. The Renaissance society with Mrs. Martin Schutze as the president is sponsoring the presentations which will be continued through the fall at 4:15 in the afternoon and 8:30 in the evening every Monday and Tuesday. The picture to be shown tonight is entitled "Emil und die Detektive" and is acted mostly by children. It will be followed by a shorter one, "Babes in the Wood," which is a technicolor symphony.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Kominsky of 3528 Grenshaw street announce the marriage of their daughter, Yetta, to Emanuel M. Singer, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Singer of New York City, which took place yesterday in the Congregation B'nai Isreal of Austin.

Spending Money Isn't Best Way to Be Popular

BY DORIS BLAKE.

"Why is it," the girl asks, "that I'm left out of things, while other girls who do not entertain as much as I are invited every place?" The young woman goes on to tell how she spends more money on people than the girls she talks about. She does more for people, etc.

Well, the bald truth probably is that money spending is all the girl has to offer. She has to spend to be asked anywhere. She has to entertain and obligate people to her so invitations come. But as a guest she is a flop. This young woman is not talking about male attention so much as party invitations, luncheons dates and such.

We may be wrong and brutal in our analysis, but the young woman represents a type that feels it has a right to complain because it does entertain; it does things for people, is more than willing to do things. But as luncheon and dinner guests these people are out of favor because they bring nothing to the party.

Social events of recent times are not the polite give and take affairs of former days. Not in circles where money is free enough to entertain. Maybe it is because money is not so free as it used to be that hostesses today, when they give an affair, choose to exclude folk who are boring. Or maybe it is just a change in the times.

Now, what to bring will be the question asked, no doubt. We can't name it [or them]. But we can say you dare not bring a dull personality, a narrow, boring mentality. The best way to find out just what it is in women that get invited everywhere is to study the type.

Popular guests brings something. It may be a great good humor, a winning manner, qualities as an entertainer, anyway, it's something that the left out girls don't have. A willingness and a fair ability to sit in at any game that happens to be on for the evening is an asset, or that enviable social grace that creates good feeling in others.

Moscow Opera Boxes Are Named for 'Honor' Unions and Factories

MOSCOW, Oct. 15.—The "diamond horseshoe" of czarist days in the Moscow Grand Opera house now displays on the doors of the boxes nameplates of "shock brigade" factories, universities, and workers' unions instead of dukes, counts, and princes.

There are no nameplates for individual "shock brigaders." As a rule the plates represent Moscow institutions, but the Sverdlovsk Communist university has been honored by a plate on Box 14. Box 12 carries the name "Moscow Kondit Pekarii," the leading bread factory.

Hair Operators Voice Charges Against Clients

Say Women Stress Wave, Neglect Locks.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

We see the beauty salon business from our side of the fence. Maybe it would be of interest to get the hairdressers' slant on us.

Recently such an occasion presented itself at a large gathering where representatives of the trade were invited to talk and offer suggestions about patrons.

And do you know what the chief comment was?

Two charges stand against the average beauty shop patron as viewed by operators. One, that women are more concerned with the wave, finger or marcel, than they are with the condition of the hair. Two, women come into shops, have their hair "done" but go out of the salon without having the hair combed out.

Of course, I know and you know the chief reason for this is to save the hair for a big date. You have your hair done in the morning, say, or at noon, and you do not want to comb it out until just a few minutes before you are off for your dinner or evening engagement. Since I have been guilty of the same crime myself, I am in no position to argue.

The operators want us to be better ads for their business than we are likely to be if we leave the shop without getting the hair combed out the way they would appreciate having it done. So few of us, they claim, know how to comb out the hair with the affective little touches their skilled hands supply.

But what we can do about it—those of us who have to hang on to the wave for the big occasion—I don't know.

The other hair complaint commented upon at the meeting, referred to lack of interest in the condition of scalp and hair. They say women are too content with wave and hairdress, not sufficiently concerned with the real beauty of hair, which comes only through attention to scalp, quality and texture of hair.

BEARS' DRIVE IN 2D HALF BEATS CARDS, 12-9

TITLE HINGES ON OHIO STATE, MICHIGAN GAME

JACK BEYNON.

Three conference football teams, last to leave the mark in the 1933 title race, begin their campaigns Saturday. Two of these, Michigan and Ohio State, will meet at Ann Arbor, Mich., and their pre-season records indicate that the winner must be given number one berth in the championship wagering. The other eleven, Chicago, has surpassed optimistic hopes and the Maroons may conjure a major surprise Saturday at Stagg field at the expense of Purdue.

Although the season has only started, Minnesota, Northwestern, Indiana, Purdue and Wisconsin have lost considerable ground. Northwestern and Wisconsin have been defeated and Indiana and Purdue have played tie games with Minnesota, thus practically eliminating the Gophers.

Illini Show Power.

Even more of a surprise than Purdue's 7 to 7 tie with Minnesota last Saturday was Illinois' 21 to 0 victory over Wisconsin. Many thought the Illini might win, but few had guessed a victory by three touchdowns or believed Illinois' defense could completely check the Badgers' attack.

Jack Beynon's generalship, his uncanny selection of the proper pass or run was a deciding factor. But since generalship alone cannot win, the Illinois line and other backs must share equally in the plaudits for Coach Bob Zuppke's team.

Illinois now meets the Army at Cleveland Saturday. The Cadets have had time to develop a powerful attack which overwhelmed Delaware, 52 to 0, last Saturday. Illinois will resume conference play against Michigan on Nov. 4. With two weeks' vacation after Army, Illinois should be ready, physically at least, to meet the Wolverines.

Purdue Strategy Helps.

Dan Toriello, a Purdue quarter back who followed Pardonner and Peelle at this position Saturday against Minnesota, gave a demonstration of signal calling which saved the Boilermakers from defeat. Toriello piloted his team, with George Basker, left half, and Leon Dalley, right half, carrying the ball, on a successful 37 yard march. The drive started after the final play of the third period on which Fred Hecker, regular full back, intercepted a Gopher pass and brought it back 40 yards. Coach Kizer deserves credit for master minding, for he sent in a fresh back field, a guard and a center to take advantage of the tired Minnesota players.

After the touchdown, Paul Pardonner returned to the field and drop kicked the tying point. It was Pardonner's twenty-third successful drop kick for point in twenty-five attempts stretched over three years of competition.

Gophers Waste Power.

Minnesota has a powerful team, but it lacks consistent direction. The Gophers gained 222 yards from scrimmage to less than 70 yards for Purdue, but they ran themselves out in the first half, during which time they registered nine first downs and a touchdown. Minnesota plays undefeated Pittsburgh Saturday at Minneapolis. Pitt whipped Navy last Saturday, 34 to 6. Iowa, Wisconsin, Northwestern and Michigan, later opponents for Minnesota, should worry over Gopher strength.

Purdue now meets Chicago. The Maroons trounced Washington university of St. Louis, Mo., 40 to 0, Saturday, but it isn't logical to expect the Chicago backs to make so many long runs against the veteran Purdue line. The game should be closely fought with Chicago having all to win and nothing to lose.

Iowa Favored Over Badgers.

Iowa meets Wisconsin at Iowa City Saturday, and the Hawkeyes will be favored to win, something that hasn't happened since the days before Iowa's expulsion from the conference in 1929.

Northwestern's scoreless tie with Stanford is encouraging to the Wildcats, who thought the end of their football world had arrived when Dick Crayne and Iowa whipped them two weeks ago. Northwestern engages Indiana Saturday at Dyche stadium. The Hoosiers lost to Notre Dame Saturday, 12 to 2. They have a big, husky team, but so far it has shown no consistent offense.

Notre Dame has had opportunity to recover from the shock of a scoreless tie with Kansas, and the game this week with Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh should furnish another chance to smooth out a ragged running attack and poor generalship of inexperienced quarter backs.

Blocking Wins for Michigan.

Michigan vs. Ohio State is the most important conference game this week, and the natural supposition is that the winner will have the inside course in the championship run. Michigan defeated a green Cornell university eleven Saturday, 40 to 0, with effective blocking that put runners into the open for long gains.

Against Michigan Ohio State will

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Madison, Wis., Oct. 15.—Dr. R. W. Huegel, who as field judge was the official timer and fired the gun ending the game, admitted tonight he observed discrepancies between his watch and the official scoreboard clock over the time remaining to play in yesterday's Minnesota-Purdue football game at Minneapolis.

Players on both teams and spectators were surprised when the game ended, the scoreboard having shown four minutes of playing time remaining, when the gun was fired.

"But what was I to do about it?" Huegel said. "My duty was to act by the watch I carried, which had been provided by the Minnesota athletic department, and I did."

Dr. Huegel, a graduate of Marquette university, asserted that he notified captains of both teams when only three minutes were left to play. He said he noticed then that the scoreboard clock showed five minutes.

"Even when there was one minute to go," he added, "I told Pug Lund, Minnesota half back, so I can't see why the players were surprised when I fired the gun closing the game."

"I always do that," he declared.

"After the game was over," Dr. Huegel continued, "I walked over to the timer on the Minnesota bench. He told me his watch was nearly three minutes off as compared with mine. But that's all there was said. Even Coach Bierman, with whom I talked later, said it was all right and indicated that it might have been one of those things that happen some times where mechanics are concerned."

Blocked Punt Gives De Paul 6 to 0 Victory

Davenport, Ia., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—A blocked punt in the second quarter gave De Paul university of Chicago the break it needed to score a 6 to 0 victory over St. Ambrose college today.

Hansen, St. Ambrose quarter back, was punting from his 15 yard line when Barskis, De Paul tackle, blocked the ball and Delaney, substitute end for Krause, fell on it over the goal line for a touchdown. Kein failed to kick goal.

Fumbles in First Period.

Fumbles marred the first period, but neither team could capitalize on them. Hayes' punt from his 39 yard line was downed on the St. Ambrose 22 yard line to set the stage for De Paul's touchdown in the second quarter. After one line play, Hansen dropped back to punt and De Paul blocked it. It was an easy matter for the alert Delaney to fall on the ball over the goal line.

A drive from the De Paul 39 yard line late in the third quarter almost resulted in a second touchdown. Gains by Stadler, Hayes, and Kein, and a pass, Kein to Stadler, put the ball on the Ambrose 19 yard line as the period ended. On the second play of the fourth session, Hayes' pass was dropped by Oldani in the end zone.

Bowers Dashes 36 Yards.

Bowers' 36 yard run after intercepting a pass on his 30 yard line looked like it would be good for a touchdown, but he was finally tackled on De Paul's 34 yard stripe. On the next play he made seven yards, and then three passes in a row failed of completion. Lineup:

PACKERS CRUSH PIRATES, 47-0, ON SERIES OF RUNS

Goldenberg Intercepts a Pass, Travels 67 Yards.

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Green Bay Packers of the National Professional Football league held a field day at the expense of the Pittsburgh Pirates today, scoring seven touchdowns to win 47 to 0.

The Packers exhibited almost every trick in the bag and did it with a flourish. One touchdown came after an intercepted pass and a 67 yard run by Buckets Goldenberg, substitute full back. Wuert Englemann, substitute quarter back, counted another on a 49 yard dash and Hank Bruder, half back, a third in a 52 yard run.

Green Bay scored early in the first period after recovering a fumble. Line smashes and end sweeps took the ball to the one yard line and Clark Hinkle, full back, plunged over. Bob Monnett, half back, place-kicked for the extra point.

Monnet Scores Around End.

In the second period, Monnett went around right end from the seven yard line to score. He failed to convert. Goldenberg's pass interception on his 33 yard line and brilliant dash followed shortly. Roger Grove, quarter back, place kicked the extra point. The Packers quickly scored again after an intercepted pass. A few line plays and two passes, Monnett to Arnie Herber, put the ball on the three yard line. Goldenberg smashed over. Monnett converted.

Shortly after the second half kickoff, Bruder drove into left tackle, reversed the field and raced 52 yards to goal. Herber drop kicked for the extra point.

Monnett Scores Again.

Two long runs, a pass and Monnett's 12 yard end run soon scored another marker. Englemann failed to convert.

The seventh touchdown came on a lateral pass from Monnett to Herber to Englemann. The latter than ran 49 yards to the goal. Monnett place kicked for the point. Lineup:

DODGERS, 27; REDS, 0.

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The combination of Benny Friedman and Shipwreck Kelly proved too much today for the Cincinnati Reds of the National Professional league as the Brooklyn Dodgers won, 27 to 0. There was a crowd of 12,000.

Scoring in each of the first three periods, Brooklyn outplayed the Ohio eleven throughout. The Reds threatened only once, in the last quarter.

Kelly ran 70 yards to a touchdown in the first quarter. The other three touchdowns resulted from forward passes by Friedman, one of which was caught by Tom Nash, former Georgia star, and two by Kelly. Friedman place kicked for three extra points.

PORTSMOUTH WINS, 13-0.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The right arm and right leg of Glen Presnell today provided the Portsmouth Spartans with a 13 to 0 victory over the Boston Redskins before 20,000 at Fenway park.

Presnell threw a 45 yard forward pass to John Cavosie, left end, for the Spartans' touchdown in the second period, place kicked the extra point, and then booted over two field goals

Hold Funeral Tomorrow for Iowa Player

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Plans for homecoming and the game with Wisconsin Saturday were put aside by University of Iowa football players and other students today as they mourned the death of Arthur Ehlers, Oelwein, Ia., tackle on the freshman team, who died this morning of injuries sustained in practice Thursday. He was 21 years old.

Ehlers died on the operating table after the second emergency operation for the removal of blood clots on the brain. He did not regain consciousness after receiving the injury in scrimmage against a third varsity team Thursday night. Ehlers was hurt when he missed a flying tackle and collided with a stiff arm. He played a few minutes after being injured, then collapsed on the field. He was rushed to the hospital in an ambulance.

Blood Vessel Broken.

Ehlers sustained a broken blood vessel in the brain, causing hemorrhages, but his condition was thought to be improved until a few hours before his death. Physicians said early Saturday that he was "responding" and that they expected him to regain consciousness within another 24 hours. Later, however, his temperature and pulse rate rose and there was a recurrence of hemorrhages.

Ehlers' parents did not blame the university or the game of football for the death of their son. His sister said, "We regard it as inevitable."

Arthur was one of nine children. Those surviving beside his parents are Herbert, Edna, and Lillian, of Chicago; Walter, Harold, Fred, and Virginia, of Oelwein, and Clara of Iowa City.

Solem Is Grieved.

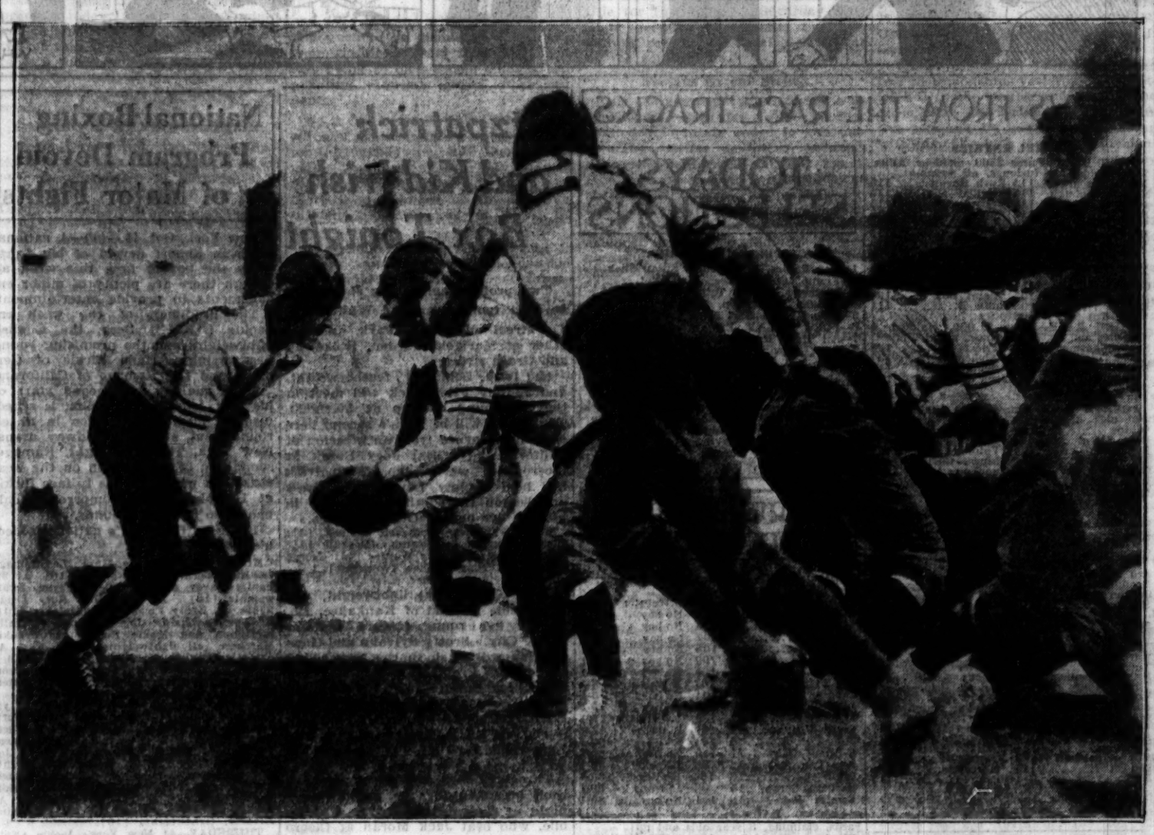
Coach Ossie Solem, when he arrived from Champaign, Ill., said, "I would rather lose all my football games than have anything like this happen to one of my players. In all the years I have been coaching football I have never had a serious accident before."

Ehlers' body was taken to Oelwein this afternoon. Funeral services are to be held there Tuesday.

FRACTURES VERTEBRÆ.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Hospital attaches said today Omah Cannon, Franklin and Marshall guard injured in the football game with the University of Pennsylvania, suffered a fracture of the transverse process of the lumbar vertebræ which will keep him out of the game for the remainder of the season.

BEFORE BEARS STARTED GOING PLACES



Carl Brumbaugh, Bears' quarter back, slips the ball to Johnny Sisk in second quarter of game with Cardinals at Wrigley field yesterday, which was won by the Bears, 12 to 9. No. 24 is Luke Johnsos, end for the Bears. The Cards were leading, 9 to 0, at half time.

Brumbaugh, carrying the ball, runs into trouble in second quarter when Hinchman, full back (No. 32.) and associate Cardinals lay violent hands on him. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

STEEL CAPTURES THREE EVENTS IN CASTING MEET

Frank Steel, who seems to be almost invincible in the Sunday fly casting events of the Lincoln Park club, won three events again yesterday, while Eddie Davis captured the other test.

The season will close Oct. 29 with an interclub turkey meeting at the club. Yesterday's summaries:

Sing Sing Convicts March On; Beat Police Team, 40-13

Ossining, N. Y., Oct. 15.—(AP)—The Sing Sing Black Sheep, prison football team, overwhelmed its traditional rival, the Port Jervis police team, 40 to 13, today before a crowd of 1,100 outsiders and 2,000 inmates. Alabama Pitts, star Sing Sing back, led the scoring with three touchdowns, one on a 50 yard end run.

'Official' Takes Receipts from College Students

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 15.—(AP)—A large man with a large and official looking badge made himself very useful directing crowds which entered Kezar stadium to witness the University of San Francisco-Oregon State college football game.

He made a big impression on Lesley Whistler and Robert Albers, University of San Francisco students in charge of one of the box offices. When he approached them after the crowds had diminished and said, "Well, boys, I'll take the big money over to the main office," they handed him $270.

Police are hunting for the official looking man and the "main office" to which he took the money.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Oct. 15.—Before the running of today's Gran Premio Nacional—the Argentine Derby—the colt Hasta Boy, one of the favorites, was stabbed in the flank and seriously wounded. The assailants, who were successful in keeping the horse out of the race, escaped in a waiting automobile.

The race, which resulted in a dead heat between Requiebro and Tamesis, was a disappointing contest because most of the leading 3 year olds had broken down in the course of training.

Beccali Fails to Lower Own 1,500 Meter Record

TURIN, Italy, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Luigi Beccali, Italian holder of the Olympic 1,500 meter title, today failed in an attempt to lower his own world's record for that distance today at an international athletic meet. He was clocked in 3:49.6 compared with the mark of 3:49 he established last month.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Joe Lillard and his supporting Chicago Cardinal cast threatened to break the string of Chicago Bears' victories yesterday at Wrigley field. Lillard and the Cards ran up a 9 to 0 lead in the first half, but the Bears marched 78 yards for a touchdown in the third period, followed with a blocked kick for a safety to tie the score in the final quarter, and then won the game, 12 to 9, when Jack Manders place kicked from the 30 yard line.

Twelve thousand watched the game. By their uphill pull, a policy the Bears have followed consistently this season, the pro champions, who took the time to hoist their National league pennant prior to hostilities, staged an old time thriller which kept the fans holding on until the final gun shot.

Yesterday's victory was the fourth this year for the Bears and kept them at the top of the race. It also was their sixth consecutive triumph over the Cardinals and fifteenth in the series of 26, six games being credited to the one time south side eleven. The others have been scoreless ties.

Lillard Races 49 Yards.

The Cards got Lillard loose on his touchdown run in the second period. Lillard's quick kick had backed the Bears to their 6 yard line. Nesbitt's long return punt was taken by Lillard on his own 49 yard line. He sprinted to his right and when Bill Hewitt and Bill Buckler closed in, he reversed his course, winding his way down the west side line. Aided by excellent blocking, Lillard crossed the goal line standing up.

Again the Cards forced the Bears back through Lillard's kicking. This time Nesbitt, probably thinking about the receiver who had nullified his previous punt, kicked almost straight up and the Cards took the ball on the Bears' 27 yard line. Hubert Hinchman, a substitute back, thrust through the line for 10 yards in two tries. The Cardinal rally was halted and on fourth down Lillard went back to the 30 yard strip and, with Koken holding the ball, kicked for 3 points and a 9 to 0 advantage which was maintained until the second half.

Bears Start to Work.

After an exchange of kicks in the third period, on which Molesworth of the Bears gave his team possession on their 22 yard line, the champions set to work. They did not stop until they had reached the Cardinal goal.

Keith Molesworth's short sneaks over center, Bronko Nagurski's more powerful smashes at tackle, and Dick Nesbitt's 14 yard gain on a quick opening play inside of tackle, the longest advance along the ground of the march, were the weapons. Deep in Cardinal territory, the drive was slowed down, but a pass from Brumbaugh [he had replaced Molesworth] to Hewitt for 20 yards advanced to the Cards' 14 yard line.

Nesbitt accounted for eight yards in two plays, but George Corbett lost two yards on a lateral pass. On

'WE'LL GET EVEN AT SPORTSMAN'S' SAY RACE FANS

Meeting Opens Today at Half Mile Track.

BY FRENCH LANE.

If it is to be done at all—this business of recuperating the family turf losses for the year—it must be done quickly.

Only fourteen days of racing in Chicago and Illinois are left, any one of which might be Christmas. Of course Santa Claus may not come at all and the old stocking may hang limp and empty after that last number drops into the winner's slot along about dusk on Oct 31.

Anyway, racegoers never give up hope, and they are expecting to see Santa come galloping home on some long shot, a pack of gold on his back, any afternoon during the next couple weeks at Sportsman's park, the gates of which swing open this afternoon as the National Jockey club stages the final race meeting of the year.

It's Popular Track.

Chicagoans like the little half mile track racing. They have demonstrated it many times during the last two years by packing the place day after day.

Maybe it is because they can see everything that goes on in the race. Or maybe they find it more convenient to get the lowdown on what's going to happen from their favorite tipsters. Perhaps they like the unusually large mutuel payoffs, which no doubt are due to what many believe are the uncertainties of half mile track racing.

Yet there are not so many uncertainties after all, for the figures show that the percentage of winning favorites there is as large and in some instances much higher than at the tracks which stretch out over a distance of a mile or more.

Horses of Better Grade.

Greater things are held out for the meeting which gets under way today than any ever offered at Sportsman's park. Racing material of high class is more plentiful than at any previous meeting. This is made possible by the large number of Chicago stables which will race out the season there before the owners put the steeds into winter quarters.

On the opening program horses owned by such well known local patrons as Stuyvesant Peabody, Alderman John Coughlin, Mrs. Emil Denemark, William J. Schmidt, Valentine Crane, Ben Rosenheim, C. E. Davidson, Mrs. Edward McCuan, and W. A. Mikel are scheduled to go into action.

Headed by the Inaugural purse, carrying a prize of $800, the program is the most attractive offered at a half mile track anywhere in America this year. In the Inaugural such fast steppers as Sobieha, Miss Melody, Karl Eitel, Help Yourself, Captain Red and Fair Image come together in a dash at seven furlongs which brings the field twice past the stands and clubhouse.

First Race at 2 o'Clock.

The daily programs include seven races beginning at 2 o'clock, with eight events offered on each of the two Saturdays of the meeting. That should be action enough for anybody, and the ground should be pretty well strewn with that most worthless of all printing matter, pari-mutuel betting tickets on horses that do not win.

Most of the folks who visit the track regularly are expecting to do pretty well at Sportsman's park. Those fellows who have been whispering the names of slow horses into their ears all summer have been comforting them with the assurance "Never mind, I'll get you even at Sportsman's park."

Of course it is just possible that those optimists will say goodbye on the last day of October and comfort their friends again with "Never mind, I'll send you some winners from Florida."

IRISH, U. S. TEAMS TO ARRIVE TODAY FOR HORSE SHOW

With the arrival today of the Irish Free State and United States army teams, the roster of international military jumping for the World's Fair Horse show will be complete.

The Irish riders are coming from Boston, where they landed after their transoceanic trip. The United States army officers were recruited at Fort Riley, Kas., where they have been in training for a month.

A delegation of Chicagoans of Irish decent, headed by Kelvin Kelly, will be on hand to greet the Irish team.

Let by Capt. Frantisek Statecny, the Czechoslovakian jumping team will take their first workout today at the 124th Field Atillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue, where the show will open Saturday night. The other members of the team are Capt. Hynek Bejcek, Capt. Julius Cocek, and Lieut. Vaclav Schantin.

SKATING DRILL OPENS PRACTICE OF BLACKHAWKS

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.] The Chicago Blackhawks held their first preliminary hockey practice at the University of Illinois skating rink this afternoon. The squad of 18 was on the ice for about 20 minutes, during which time only skating was allowed by Manager Tom Gorman.

All of the regulars and recruits appeared to be in wonderful physical condition, and if the advance reports on the prowess of the rookies is half true the Blackhawks should start the National Hockey league season with the best balanced team that has ever represented Chicago.

FIRING SPEED OF NEW GUN MAKES FOR ACCURACY

BY BOB BECKER.

After spending a few hours on the Fort Sheridan rifle range with dozens of small balloon targets, an autoloading gun [more commonly called automatic] and plenty of shells, it is easy to understand why this type of weapon has been called the most efficient killing instrument that can be placed in the hands of the civilian shooter. He has just to pull the trigger five times to empty the magazine and spray lead so rapidly and so accurately that it virtually is a miniature barrage.

Although sportsmen still argue about the ethics of using autoloading shotguns on wild game, we were not concerned with this question at the Fort Sheridan range. The point was to see how fast one could break moveable targets with an autoloader. Right now the U. S. army is considering the adoption of a semi-automatic gun for the infantry, a weapon that will take 10 cartridges in a clip. It is thought each soldier could carry 264 loads.

Automatic Gun Speeds Up Fire.

At Fort Sheridan the autoloading shotgun broke balloons at the rate of five in 5 and 9-10 seconds, another five in 3 and 6-10 seconds, and a third group in 5 and 2-10 seconds. Here was great speed of firing and accuracy due to the fact that continuous aim was possible and the gun automatically reloaded itself. [The U. S. army Springfield, a bolt gun, is good for about one shot in five seconds.]

What a fast, accurate, semi-automatic could do in a war against low flying planes has been described in a possible battle front episode by Maj. Julian S. Hatcher, ordnance officer, in a report. He said:

"Most Shots Will Go Wild."

"The men have been trained just what to do in this case. They aim at the approaching airplane with their Springfields the same as they would at a big chicken hawk with a shotgun and start firing. But after each man has fired he must grasp the handle of his bolt, yank it in desperate haste, slam it forward again, and try to get off another shot.

"Most of these shots will go wild unless the soldiers are extremely well trained.

"Take, however, the same battalion armed with semi-automatic rifles. Each man points his rifle at the approaching plane, presses the trigger again and again and again. Each time he presses the trigger the bullet speeds on its way. The enemy aviators would soon find this to be bad medicine for any airplane."

Becomes Machine Gunner.

The new semi-automatic which the government is testing, a gun capable of firing 30 to 40 shells per minute, has been made in both the .30 and .276 bores. Both weigh the same as the old Springfield. Armed with one of these semi-automatics and plenty of ammunition, an infantryman should become a powerful one-man machine gunner on a battle field.

ARGENTINA PLANS $2,350,000 STADIUM TO SEAT 100,000

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 15.—(AP)—A national stadium seating 100,000 persons and offering a site for major track events, international football games, military spectacles and possibly the Olympic games, will be built in Buenos Aires as soon as congress appropriates the 6,000,000 pesos [about $2,350,000] which the government has agreed to contribute.

The government subsidized Club de Gimnasia y Esgrima will erect the structure, with reinforced concrete. A law authorizing the stadium was passed in 1921 but final plans of the architect have only recently been approved. The field will contain a half-mile track.

STADIUM SEEKS APPROVAL TODAY FOR MAT CARD

The card of bouts that will open the wrestling season a week from Wednesday at the Chicago Stadium has been completed and will be submitted to the Illinois state athletic commission this afternoon for approval.

Topping the program, and already approved, is the match between Joe Stecher and Jim McMillen. The balance of the card that will be submitted for approval is:

Ray Steele vs. Gino Garibaldi.
George Zaharis vs. Joe De Vito.
Everett Marshall vs. Milo Steinborn.
Dr. Karl Sarpolis vs. Pat O'Shocker.

RED FABER HURLS 5-4 VICTORY IN A CHARITY GAME

Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Urban [Red] Faber, today celebrated Faber day by pitching a team composed of fellow townsmen in Cascade and Columbia college alumni to a victory over the Tri-State Dragons, 5 to 4. Although he started poorly, the veteran spitballer managed to settle down in the later innings.

The game was played to raise money for a relief fund to be started by the Columbia College Alumni association, but rain just before it started kept the attendance down.

Berwyn Legion Parrots Defeat Lemont, 13 to 0

The unbeaten Berwyn Parrots defeated the Lemont Pros, 13 to 0, yesterday at Lemont. Louie Crane ran 16 yards for a touchdown after grabbing a short pass from John Smatlak. Joe Peluzo scored the other on an eight yard off tackle smash.

Fitzpatrick and Kid Irish Box Tonight

Two professional boxing shows will be held tonight, one at White City, 63d street and South Park, and the other at Marigold Garden, Broadway and Grace street.

Kid Irish, Benld, Ill., featherweight, and Johnny Fitzpatrick will meet in the six round windup at Marigold. The match will be Irish's second here since he returned from an invasion of California. He beat Joey Bozak at Cicero two weeks ago. Fitzpatrick has held Sammy Levine to a draw and beaten three other opponents in his last five bouts. Other matches:

Joey Kleko, local lightweight, will face Eddie Chinski of Kankakee, Ill., in the five round feature bout at White City. Scotty Sylvano and Gene Higgins will clash in the four round semi-final. Preliminary contests will bring together Hank Bueker and Frank Keevil, Fred Hawkette and Eddie Smith, and Ace Kriston and Bill Steffel. Fred Ledebuhr will wrestle John Holda.

Three matches at six rounds have been arranged for the show Friday night at Cicero stadium. Ray Trambile, who beat Jack Moran at Cicero last Friday, will meet Bud Saltis, north side middleweight, in one. Tramblie has won one bout and lost another with Saltis. Sammy Levine and Kid Irish are paired. So are Joey Kleko and Steve Pajdo.

The state boxing commission has returned the $2,500 challenge check of Harry Dublinsky for a match with Champion Barney Ross. . . . Jackie Sharkey and Young Geno are matched at La Salle, Ill., Oct. 30. . . . Billy Petrolle is in Brooklyn, N. Y., where he boxes Sammy Fuller for the second time Saturday. He beat Fuller at Boston, Mass., a month ago.

Dick Sisk, Brighton Park junior welterweight, has accepted a 10 round match with Wesley Ramey of Grand Rapids, Mich., at Milwaukee, Wis., next Monday. Freddy Miller, featherweight champion, faces Jackie Sharkey in a 10 round nontitle affair on the same card. Matt Dour and Elnar Hedquist, Chicago fighters, are matched with Tony Bruno and Joe Cieslak, respectively, in four round preliminary bouts. Herbie Thompson collides with Gus de Salvo in another.

Entries for the third annual amateur tournament of the Catholic Youth organization, which opens at Loyola university gymnasium next week, will close tonight at midnight. There are over 1,000 already entered. Officials predict an entry of 1,500.

National Boxing Program Devoid of Major Fights

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—A national program almost devoid of big fights faces the boxing fans this week although there are plenty of minor engagements to provide entertainment.

The headliners of the week are Jackie ["Kid"] Berg, the English lightweight, and the promising young heavyweights, Hans Birkie of Germany and Lee Ramage of California.

Berg, making his second start of his new American invasion, is scheduled to meet Tony Falco in a ten round bout at the Broadway arena, New York, Thursday night. Ramage, something of a sensation on the west coast last winter, is due to face Birkie at Holyoke, Mass., tomorrow. This bout also is at ten rounds.

MONDAY—At Holyoke, Mass.: Lee Ramage vs. Hans Berkie, heavyweights [10]. At St. Louis: Davey Abad vs. Cecil Payne, lightweights [10]. At Louisville: Rosy [Kid] Baker vs. Henry Firpo, middleweights [10]. At Newark, N. J.: Joie Ferrando vs. Billy McMahon and Maxie Fisher vs. Frankie Marchese, all lightweights [each 8]. At Atlantic City, N. J.: Jimmy Mack vs. Dick Welsh, featherweights [8]. At Boston: Werter Arcelli vs. K. O. Costello, welterweights [10].

TUESDAY—At St. Paul: Wayne Short vs. Babe Daniels, featherweights [6]. At Portland, Ore.: Ah Wing Lee vs. Billy Wallace, lightweights [10]. At Seattle: Joe Guenera vs. Henry Woods, lightweights [10]; Joe Ponce vs. Bobby Gray, junior lightweights [6]; George Thomas vs. George Baker, heavyweights [6]. At Los Angeles: Eddie Shea vs. Chalky Wright, lightweights. At Jacksonville, Fla.: Harry Devine vs. Chino Alvarez, lightweights [10].

THURSDAY—At New York: Jackie [Kid] Berg vs. Tony Falco, lightweights [10]; Petey Hayes vs. Varias Milling, featherweights [8]. At Denver: Baby Joe Gans vs. Andy Callahan, welterweights [10].

FRIDAY—At Philadelphia: Billy Ketchell vs. Johnny Pile, middleweights [6]. At Waterbury, Conn.: Battling Bozo vs. Al Gainer, light heavyweights [10]. At Hollywood, Cal.: Georgie Hansford vs. Johnny Pena, lightweights [10]. At San Francisco: Babe Marino vs. Ralph Chong, welterweights [10].

Three Fail in Attempt to Swim Strait at Victoria

Port Angeles, Wash., Oct. 15.—(AP)—An attempt of three men to swim the frigid waters of the Strait of Juan De Fuca from Victoria, B. C., to Port Angeles today ended when Paul Chottear of Paris, France, was taken out of the water after he had reached the high mark of five miles. Ronald Tegtmeier of Tacoma became exhausted when caught in an eddy four miles off shore and had to be taken aboard a tugboat. Stan Witty, the Victoria entry, was in the water only about 40 minutes. The distance between the points is about 18½ miles.

4 Former N. U. Basket Stars to Face Oilers

Four players who formerly starred on Northwestern university's quintet yesterday were named on the Western conference squad which will meet the Diamond Oilers, National A. A. U. baseketball champions, in a series of games at the 132d armory, Rockwell and Madison streets, Oct. 23 and 25. They are Elmer Johnson, Saul Farber, Bob Lockhart and Bus Smith.

The players were chosen by Dutch Lonborg, Northwestern basketball coach, who plans to start practice for the games against the amateur champions tonight at Patten gymnasium. Lockhart and Smith, both guards, played on the Purple team which won the Western conference championship in 1931.

Chuck Hyatt, one of the greatest players in the history of the University of Pittsburgh's basketball competition, will lead the Oilers, who were undefeated in 29 games last season while winning the United States amateur title and the Missouri Valley A. A. U. crown. Hyatt is playing his third season with the Oilers.

The game will be part of a double header each night. In the other game the Durant Cardinals, Durant, Okla., national A. A. U. women's champions, will meet the Spencer Coals.

MILLS DIVIDE WITH GIANTS TO CLOSE SEASON

The Chicago Mills semi-pro baseball team closed its season yesterday by dividing a double header with the American Giants at Mills stadium. The Mills won the first game, 14 to 7, and the Giants won the second, which was called at the end of the fifth inning, because of darkness, 10 to 4. Scores:

Giants	000	011	050	7	11	2

SECOND GAME.

Mills	000	31	4	4	0

"Mais oui, it is the finest hair preparation! More gentlemen in my shop ask for Pinaud's Eau de Quinine than any other. The genuine invigorates and tones up the scalp. As a hair dressing it is incomparable. It holds the hair in place with clean, gentlemanly lustre. And it prevents "Scurf" — which is scaly, dandruffy, unclean hair."

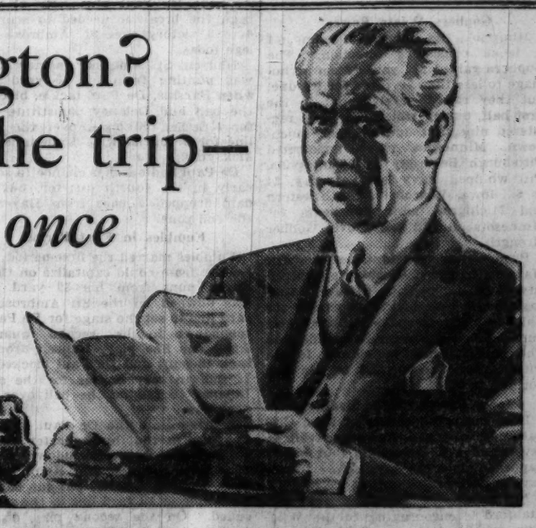
"Washington? I enjoy the trip— I make it once a month"



"I'M supposed to get to Washington about once a month.

"It might be a hardship—but the fact is—I enjoy that trip. I take the Liberty Limited, of course, and the minute I step into that train I get a feeling of well-being and relaxation—and I just give in to it.

"Perhaps it's the cheery willingness of the porters—or the quiet luxury of the train itself—or the comfort of a private bedroom with a real bed—but somehow in those 18 hours between Chicago and Washington the petty aggravations of business and life in general seem far away."

• • •

The Liberty Limited schedule is ideal—you leave right after lunch—2 o'clock Central Standard Time—and you're in Washington at 9.00 Eastern Standard Time next morning.

However, if you prefer another schedule, there are 4 other fast trains to Baltimore and Washington every day.

Maroons Afire with Hope of Beating Purdue Saturday

Unscathed after their 40 to 0 triumph over Washington university, the University of Chicago Maroons today will renew their preparations for Purdue's appearance at Stagg field Saturday. The Midway boys are afire with a real hope of contributing another upset to the Big Ten season's curious record.

The Chicago defense looked good against Washington. The Bears made only two first downs against the Maroon varsity, though adding four more against a mixed Chicago team late in the game. Bob Deem, Ell Patterson, John Womer, and Bob Perretz stood out in the Maroon line. Washington attempted 17 passes, completed only two, and had four intercepted, but this poor record was due chiefly to bad aim. Chicago's punting and kick-offs were weak, except when Bart Smith was in the game.

Line Plunging Only Average.

On attack Chicago looked excellent when men broke loose, but the line plunging in general was only average. The game demonstrated that Jay Berwanger, the big Dubuque sophomore, can be stopped. Though he figured heavily in the play, scoring one touchdown, throwing and receiving passes, and kicking three extra points, Berwanger made only 39 yards in 17 drives at the line. Capt. Pete Zimmer made 42 yards in 12 attempts. This was due to the Washington secondary coming up fast, and the Bears paid the penalty when Chicago men did break loose.

Chicago completed four out of seven passes for a total of 106 yards gain. They tried a few lateral passes and a modified flanker play early in the game, but without particular success.

OHIO SEES EVEN CHANCE.

Columbus, O., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—For the first time in years the Buckeyes will enter an Ohio State-Michigan game on even terms when the two teams clash next Saturday at Ann Arbor.

The game marks the thirtieth encounter between the two schools since they first met in 1897. The continuity was unbroken until 1912 when the Wolverines left the conference. The series was renewed in 1918 to be unbroken since.

The rivalry between the two schools is one of the oldest and strongest in the central states. In previous encounters Michigan has taken 21 decisions and Ohio State 6, two resulting in ties.

The Buckeyes came through the Vanderbilt game without serious injuries. Blackie Conrad, tackle, and Trevor Reese, end, received painful bruises on the limbs, but should be able to attend practice Tuesday when the regulars are to resume training.

N. U. VARSITY RESTS TODAY.

Confidence once again reigns in Northwestern's football camp as a result of last Saturday's tie game with Stanford. The sense of bewilderment which existed after the Iowa defeat was removed by the improved showing against the Pacific coast eleven.

The feeling now exists that the Iowa defeat was one big mistake which will be more convincingly proved in the remaining games on the schedule.

Indiana will invade Dyche stadium Saturday to provide the next test for the Purple. The Hoosiers have always been a stubborn opponent for Northwestern and, in fact, hold a three to two edge over the Wildcats in the last five games played.

Aside from inability to conduct a sustained offensive, Coach Dick Hanley was pleased with the showing of the Purple against the westerners. He had complimentary things to say about each of the 13 players who took part in the game. Olson's performance at quarter back was especially commended, since it was the first time that he had ever played the position.

All players who participated in the Stanford game will be excused from practice today. Only a few minor bumps and bruises were sustained by the players, but Coach Hanley plans to give the regulars a rest. It is unlikely the first string men will be given much actual scrimmage all week.

CARNEGIE NEXT FOR IRISH.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Encouraged but far from elated over their showing in Saturday's 12 to 2 victory over Indiana, the Notre Dame football squad today looked forward to the first of its five intersectional contests and not without a qualm or two. Carnegie Tech will be Notre Dame's next opponent Saturday at Pittsburgh.

"The backs were functioning," Coach Hunk Anderson said, but added that the line charged too high most of the time. Low and hard—that's the kind of line charging he wants, and he got it in spots against Indiana.

Carnegie Tech promises to be more like the Carnegie Tech teams of old. Howard Harpster, who played quarter back in 1928 when Carnegie gave Notre Dame a 27 to 7 licking, opened his career as head coach a week ago by whipping Temple, 25 to 0.

MICHIGAN BOLSTERS DEFENSE.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Six Big Ten foes, all of them apparently stronger than they were in 1932, will try to crush Michigan's championship hopes on the next six week-ends. The first will be Ohio State, which comes here Saturday.

Michigan coaches will spend all this week trying to broaden out an offense that worked in whirlwind style against Cornell Saturday, and will try even more to build a defense for the Ohio attack that has overwhelmed two opponents this season. In tomorrow's workout the team will be given a working knowledge of the plays Ohio has shown thus far. The reserves will get plenty of attention, as man power may be the deciding factor in Saturday's contest.

The coaching staff is well pleased with the come back made by Quarter Back Renner Saturday, although Renner's work was perhaps more than offset by the loss of Estel Tessmer, who suffered a fractured clavicle. After taking on Ohio, Michigan must meet Chicago, Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota, and Northwestern.

ILLINI EXPECT WALSER BACK.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Capt. Herman Walser probably will be able to return to the Illinois lineup this week and will be drilled as a right half back, Coach Bob Zuppke announced today, as he made plans for the resumption of the Army-Illinois series at Cleveland Saturday.

Walser, hitherto a full back, has been unable to play this season because of a leg injury.

Zuppke hopes Walser will be able to get into condition and strengthen the second set of backs. It is expected to use him as a relief for Les Lindburg. Walser's punting will be useful.

The Illini emerged from the Wisconsin game in excellent condition. Fred Frink, acting captain, will need some rest but undoubtedly will be in shape for the contest with the Cadets.

Jack Craston, sub half back last year, probably will be tested as a possible relief for Froschaur. Zuppke indicated he would devote much time to working with Arvo Antilla and Harvey Palmer, reserve tackles.

SOCCER GAMES WON BY SPARTA, WONDERBOLTS

Sparta continued to dominate the National Soccer league yesterday by winning from the Hungarian-Americans, 2 to 1, in the last game of the double header at Sparta stadium. It was the third victory in a row for the Bohemians.

In the opening match the Wieboldt Wonderbolts beat Ravenswood Scots, 3 to 2, Davie Coutts' goal late in the second half deciding the issue. Lineups:

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS a few days ago carried an interesting item from Southwest Missouri State Teachers' college to the effect that two of the school's leading football players had demanded free tuition as compensation for their services on the gridiron.

One of the young men was captain of the team and the other a prominent freshman. Other members of the eleven were reported ready to support their captain, but weakened when he and the freshman were banned from the gridiron.

A. W. Briggs, athletic director, in announcing the dismissal of the two from the squad said that no athlete was going to club school officials into granting requests denied other students.

So it has come to this, Ellie. Boys actually are demanding dough for potential touchdowns. Still there are so many young men who play football for the fun they get out of it that there is no danger of the Missouri incident becoming general.

It wasn't long ago that I used to observe young men crying because doctors would not permit them to get into the big game the following day. They didn't ask pay for their work. All they wanted was a chance to play. These were not isolated instances. I believed then, and I still believe, that young men went into college football because they loved it as a sport.

Mr. Briggs did right in refusing to meet the demands of the Missouri professionals. This in spite of the fact that football produces more revenue for the upkeep of the institution than almost any other source of income. In 99 cases out of 100 the profits from football go for good purposes. It is not difficult to distort the facts and make the game look strictly commercial, but save for a few scattering instances there is little room for criticism.

Football players should be given the same consideration in the way of employment as other students. They frequently fail to get it. Chemistry professors, for example, sometimes pick senior students as laboratory assistants. The remuneration usually is adequate to pay a young man's way through the year. But imagine the howling and yelping if a coach chose a senior football player as his gridiron assistant at a salary of $500 or $800, such as the chemistry assistant receives.

If football is a part of student activities, its participants should receive the same treatment as the members of glee clubs, dramatic clubs, and debating teams. If they don't merit this consideration, football should be abolished.

No student has the right to expect free tuition simply because he is an expert blocker or open field runner. But if he is ambitious to obtain an education and is unable to finance his way without legitimate work there should be an honest effort on the part of campus employment officials to see that he has a chance.

Liberality invites embarrassing conditions. A fair break is all an athlete has a right to expect. Nobody insists that he play football when he enters college. Nobody should discriminate against him if he does.

Spencer and Mather Beat Shute and Dudley, 2 and 1

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Denny Shute, British open golf champion, and Ed Dudley today lost a best ball foursome exhibition match, 2 and 1, to Glenn Spencer and Warner Mather, Baltimore professionals. The match was played over Mather's course, the Woodholme layout.

Title Hinges on Ohio State, Michigan Tilt

send a strong, well balanced eleven whose attack is centered on the running, kicking, and passing of its senior star, Carl Cramer, who was responsible for the Buckeyes' victory over the Wolverines in 1931, the last game lost by Michigan. The Wolverines have tied or won the conference title for three years. Saturday Ohio State defeated Vanderbilt, 20 to 0, gaining revenge for a defeat last year by the southerners.

Trojans Extend String.

One long string of victories was lengthened Saturday and another chain of conquests ended in two outstanding battles in other sections Southern California, national champion, hammered over two touchdowns to whip St. Mary's, its budding Pacific coast rival, 14 to 7. The largest crowd of the week-end, some 80,000, attended at Olympic stadium. It was consecutive triumph number 25 for the Trojans.

Duke university ended Tennessee's march after 26 victories by winning, 10 to 2. Tennessee had not lost a game since 1930 when Alabama, then coached by Wallace Wade, now at Duke, whipped the Volunteers.

Georgia Tech eliminated Alabama Poly, 1932 co-champion of the Southern conference, from this year's race by winning, 16 to 6. In the southwest conference, Southern Methodist opened the league race with a 13 to 7 decision over Rice institute.

Princeton Romps Along.

Princeton's 45 to 0 rout of Williams stamps Coach Fritz Crisler's team as well on the trail to sectional honors, a path the Tigers started last season in commendable fashion.

SECTIONAL CUE MATCHES OPEN IN CITY TODAY

Two of the five qualifying rounds for the northern sectional three cushion billiard championship will open in Chicago today at the Pioneer arcade, 1537 North Crawford avenue, and Bensinger's Randolph billiard room, 29 West Randolph street. The winners of these two matches will compete with the winners from Minneapolis, Milwaukee and Cleveland for the sectional title at Cleveland beginning Oct. 23.

At the Bensinger Randolph room where the central division No. 1 tournament will be held, the following players will meet in a twice-around round robin, each game at 50 points: Edward R. Peters, G. T. Foster, Harry Towle, Harry Ticks and Carl Vaughan, all of Chicago.

Other divisional tournaments are being played in Pittsburgh, New York City, and Buffalo, N. Y., in the eastern section; at San Francisco and Los Angeles, Cal., and Seattle, Wash., in the west and St. Louis in the southern section.

Scharf Leads Maywood A. C. Eleven to 13-0 Victory

The Maywood A. C. defeated the Birk Lloyds, 13 to 0, yesterday in a Midwest league football game at Maywood. Jack Scharf intercepted a pass and ran 70 yards for the first touchdown and plunged over for the other.

Legion Bowling Title Captured by Whiting Team

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

A 2,397 total yesterday during the final session on the Wabash alleys gave Whiting post, No. 80, the five men title, the James Whelan trophy, and five watches, which replaced the usual medal awards. Collaborating on this lofty total, which relegated Marine post of Chicago to second place, were M. Gadich, 585; J. Narta, 639; N. Gyure, 585; L. Heimeri, 546, and J. Germich, 543.

Walter Lundgren brought Chicago two championships yesterday by shooting 671 in the singles and 1,926 in the all events. His series were 617 in the five men and 638 in the doubles, along with his 671 which took the individual crown from J. Peters of Milwaukee by one pin.

The doubles championship went to F. Lorenz and A. Ehlke of Milwaukee, who helped themselves to a 1,262 count. W ng's duo of J. Gyure and L. Heimeri landed second with 1,251.

The next national meet will be a telegraphic affair in the spring, after which it is planned to conduct the Legion tournament at the time and place of the American Bowling congress.

SINGLES.

DOUBLES.

F. Lorenz and A. Ehlke, Milwaukee, 1,262; N. Gyure and L. Heimeri, Whiting, 1,251; J. Fliger and E. Krems, Chicago, 1,247; H Roberson and J. Hunt, Indianapolis, 1,239; J. Lynch and R. Reason, Chicago, 1,214.

FIVE MEN.

NEW YORK HITS 2 THEATERS FOR NUDITY ON STAGE

Loss of Licenses, Threat Made in Letter.

Two more rounds of ammunition were fired today by Sidney S. Levine, recently appointed commissioner of licenses, in his war on indecency on the stage. Commissioner Levine this time selected the Republic and Irving Place theaters, strongholds of burlesque. He ordered them to abandon strip acts or surrender their licenses.

His methods were those employed last week against Sally Rand, the fan dancer. First, Mr. Levine had the two burlesque shows inspected by his agents. Then he dispatched letters to the theater operators, notifying them of his disapproval and requesting the prompt elimination of all "indecent and immoral features."

Comments in Letter.

The letter concerning the Republic theater, operated by Herbert K. Minsky, was addressed to the Holly Holding corporation and read in part:

"Reports from my inspectors concerning the show you are now exhibiting at the above address show conclusively that many acts and scenes therein are immoral and indecent.

"The last report which I have at hand shows that there are a number of so-called 'strip' acts, where female members of the cast disrobe in the presence of the audience in a highly immoral and sensual manner. . . .

Orders a Reinspection.

"I am ordering a reinspection of your performance, and unless there indecent and immoral features are forthwith eliminated, and all female members of the cast decently clad, I will be compelled to take drastic action concerning your license."

The letter to the Wilmac Amusement corporation, operators of the Irving Place theater at 11 Irving place, contained this additional note:

This document closed with a duplicate of the warning issued to the Republic. Mr. Levine said his inspectors, who began their lively week by watching Miss Rand manipulate her ostrich fan at the Paramount theater, already had seen the complete shows at the two burlesque houses. On Monday Mr. Levine will learn whether his instructions have been obeyed.

Calls It Real Campaign.

"This is a real campaign," promised the commissioner, appointed last Monday to succeed James F. Geraghty, a McKee man. "I'm not going to stop short of my objective."

There have been campaigns to clean up burlesque ever since burlesque came into being. The last was supported by Joseph V. McKee, then acting mayor, but it died a quiet death with the accession of Mayor John P. O'Brien. Mr. Levine seemed determined today to make his a success. He was not disturbed when a reporter told him that the Irving Place property was owned by District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain.

"I don't care who owns it," he said. "I'm going to clean up all these indecent shows."

INJURED IN FALL; DIES.

Swen Pearson, 78 years old, died yesterday in the Illinois Masonic hospital of pneumonia which developed after he fell and broke his arm on Sept. 24 in his home at 139 Clifton avenue.

2 GO TO TRIAL AS TORTURE KILLERS OF AGED WOMAN

Family Guarded After Shots Into Home.

Newton, Ill., Oct. 15.—(AP)—Two alleged participants in the torture slaying of Mrs. Mary Schrader, 82, are scheduled for trial here tomorrow in a community still excited over the death of the aged woman.

For the last week state police with machine guns have guarded the home of Miss Anna Schrader, the victim's daughter, and Bernard Weldon, 84, her brother. The guard was posted after shots were fired from an automobile into the country home where Miss Schrader, Weldon, and Mrs. Schrader were mistreated Aug. 29 by a gang of men.

Harry Shelby, 45, and John Allen, 19, his nephew, both of Danville, Ill., are the accused slayers to face trial tomorrow. Homer Kasserman, state's attorney, said they admitted their guilt following their arrest in Danville a week after the crime.

Earl Stark, Westville, Ill., is a fugitive in the case. Henry Peck, 36, Indianapolis, whose motor car was used by the torture band, is held in the Jasper county jail here as a material witness. Another alleged gang member, Victor Wright, Robinson, Ill., was killed Sept. 2 when he resisted arrest.

ROBBED IN WILMETTE STREET.

Edgar S. Riedel, 1018 Kent street, Wilmette, was robbed of $80 by three men in an automobile who forced his car to the curb early yesterday at Lake avenue and 7th street, Wilmette.

CREW LOST AFTER ALASKAN RESCUE SHIP CAPSIZES

SEWARD, Alaska, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Fear was expressed for two Russian scientists and their rescuers with the discovery Friday of the capsized mail boat Goodhope in the shoals eight miles north of Cape Prince of Wales, which juts out into Bering strait at the western tip of Seward peninsula. Word of the finding of the wreckage reached here today.

The scientists were rescued by the mail boat after they had been shipwrecked on Little Diomede island, only to be shipwrecked again when the Goodhope turned over in the shoals. Mariners believed the mail boat, which operated out of Kotzebue, Alaska, was driven on the shoals when the motor failed in a storm.

Eskimos reported finding a smashed lifeboat and mail bags on the beach, but there was no sign of passengers or crew. The coast guard cutter Northland is searching the vicinity of the wreck in hope some may have survived. The Goodhope, commanded by Capt. Henry Ivanoff, was making her last trip before the winter freezeup.

JOHN C. PAUL, MANUFACTURER, IS DEAD AT 79

A native of Germany, Mr. Paul came here in 1871, and in 1887 started his metal polish business on the north side. Aside from his business and family interests, he was active in Masonic and Knights of Pythias affairs. A member of Goethe lodge, K. P., he was said to be the oldest member of the organization in Illinois. He was a Knight Templar and Shriner.

Surviving Mr. Paul are his widow, Mrs. Charity Paul, and three children, Harry J. Paul, Mrs. Evelyn Killian, and Mrs. Bertha Link. Funeral services will be held probably on Wednesday.

STOP THAT COLD TODAY!

Tomorrow May Make It Twice as Difficult to Relieve!

The time to stop a cold is before it gets started! A cold once rooted is a cold of danger! Don't waste your time and run the risk of serious complications by using makeshift methods.

Remember, a cold is an internal infection and, as such, calls for internal treatment. A cold also calls for a COLD remedy and not a preparation good for a number of other things besides colds.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is what a cold requires. It is expressly a cold remedy. It is internal and direct. It is complete in effect. It does the four things necessary. First, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly. Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack. Anything less than that is taking chances.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and is absolutely safe to take. For more than forty years it has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine.

Every druggist sells Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. 30c and 50c. Good druggists won't try to talk you into a substitute for the sake of a few pennies extra profit.

When you feel a cold coming on, get busy at once. Go right to your druggist for Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Always ask for it by the full name and look for the letters L B Q stamped on every tablet.

RESTORED PART OF NEW SALEM TO BE DEDICATED

Dozen Cabins Rebuilt in Lincoln Village.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 15.—[Special.]—Plans are being formulated for the dedication Oct. 26 of the restored village of New Salem, marking completion of twelve of the old cabins that stood in the village when Abraham Lincoln resided there.

It is probable that twelve more buildings, including the combination saw and grist mill on the Sangamon river will be rebuilt when funds are available.

Gov. Henry Horner will present the restored village to the citizens of Illinois and Thomas Reep, Petersburg, of the Old Salem Lincoln league, will present the furnishings in the collection of which the league took a leading part.

Tract of 200 Acres.

New Salem, which was founded in 1829, enjoyed a few years of prosperity and then declined and by 1840 had practically disappeared. Its few years of prosperity were due to the hope that the Sangamon river could be made navigable for fairly large boats. When that hope failed the town declined.

State Fund of $50,000.

By 1931 the movement to restore the old town had gained such headway that the state legislature appropriated $50,000 to the department of public works and buildings for that purpose. The bill was approved by Gov. Emmerson on July 2, 1931.

FARM PROGRAM IS LIKENED TO SOVIET SCHEME

Acreage Retirement Plan Opposed.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The federal government's planned economy as it relates to shifting the scenes of agricultural production and the retiring of at least 40 million acres of farm land from croppage has developed into a moot question this week among leaders in agrarian thought.

Some of the western farm leaders are comparing the activities of a group in Washington now revamping farm production as "strikingly similar to Russia's five year plan." Only last week the department of agriculture's economists reported the completion of a huge map, on which they are painting red, yellow, and blue the logical areas of the nation for the production of specific crops. It is to be the war map of the government's camapign to perfect a national policy of land use.

Federal Funds Reward Farmer.

In the agricultural adjustment administration other economists are marshaling federal funds to reward farmers for plowing up cotton or reducing the acreage of tobacco, wheat, and corn. The work of adjusting farm production is directed by Chester C. Davis, former Montana and Illinois farm organizer, who for years was associated with George N. Peek, farm administrator, when Peek was organizing middle west cornstalk processing factories.

Davis told the National Coöperative Milk Producers' federation in Chicago last week that the administration had "looked frankly at all the facts" before setting out to adjust production to consumption as the farm adjustment act provides. He charged that much of the present excess production of dairy products came from lowered prices of grains and from campaigns by dairymen, railroads, and business interests, who sent special trains into nondairy regions to sell dairy animals and to "preach the gospel of the advantages of dairying and diversified farming."

Unduly Alarmed, Says Davis.

Davis maintains that dairy and live stock farmers are unduly alarmed over the possible use of the 40 million acres of former corn, cotton, wheat, and tobacco land as hay and pasture land. He said that some contend also that the government is subsidizing the wheat, corn, and cotton farmers for going into alfalfa.

"Our corn campaign [proposed for 1934] may result in taking 20 million acres out of production," Davis said, "of which about 3 million acres normally would be used for dairy feed. To replace these would require at least 6 million acres of alfalfa or 12 million acres of pasture for the production of crops of the same feed value. It does not seem that there is much immediate danger from a shift to dairying in the corn belt."

Davis also pointed out that wheat farmers were worried about other farmers sowing wheat for poultry and dairy feeds. But he dismissed the idea with the declaration that "to a large extent these shifts will cancel off."

"We are now reversing the farm

Trade Chiefs Seek to Revise Security Act

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—Prospects for material revision of the securities control act at the next session of congress were seen as heightened today. It was revealed by the chamber of commerce of the United States that groups representing business, banking and the bar are working to that end.

Thus, it became apparent that efforts would be made both within and without the administration to remove some of the provisions which are said to be retarding greatly the issuance of new securities. Officials of the government have been busy for weeks surveying the possibilities for changes particularly in the civil liabilities sections of the law. This has strengthened the belief among business men, according to the chamber of commerce, that the administration desires to evolve a "more practical statue."

Say Act Retards Financing.

It is well known in Washington that some of the highest government officials regard the securities act as one of the retarding influences to the return of private long term capital to the normal channels of business. These officials contend that a definition of a money policy, coupled with a change in the securities law, would pave the way for easier long time credit for the crippled capital goods industries. They have thought, however, that the necessary adjustments could be made through administration.

In its Washington Review, a fortnightly summary of national business affairs, the chamber of commerce of the United States predicts the early submission of proposed changes. The necessity for haste, the bulletin says, is the apparent damper placed by the act upon industrial recovery.

"It can be confidently expected," the Review says, "that within the next sixty days there will be proposed a number of carefully developed modifications of the act.

Groups Advocate Revision.

"The Chamber of commerce of the United States, American Bar association, American Bankers' association, and Investment Bankers' association are among the larger groups that are now studying the subject. President Roosevelt, the federal trade commission, officers of the treasury and members of congress are expressing a lively interest in securing proposals based upon practical experience."

"Intended to protect investors with the least possible interference to business, the aplication of the act appears to have fallen far short of that objective in many respects," it said. "The financial liabilities imposed upon practically every person connected with the creation and distribution of new issues are proving to be serious obstacles in the way of important and necessary financing by reputable concerns.

Sees Promoters Encouraged.

In this connection, the Review said that the short experience of the act had indicated that promoters of untried issues, including speculative mining and brewery shares, had found it easier to comply with the law than corporations and bankers of established reputation.

"During the entire month of September, for which complete statistics are now available," it stated, "new offerings of corporate securities consisted exclusively of seven brewery issues, while corporate refunding, normally of substantial volume in the fall, was limited to two moderate sized issues. Financing during August, the only other full calendar month since the act became operative, was likewise at a virtual standstill."

Part of French 7% Bonds Drawn for Redemption

J. P. Morgan & Co., sinking fund managers, have drawn by lot for redemption at 105 on Dec. 1, $3,000,000 of the 7 per cent French external loan gold bonds of 1924.

CROP SHORTAGE FACTOR IGNORED BY GRAIN TRADE

Liquidation Is Cause of Price Break.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Apparent abandonment of a policy of outright inflation by the administration has left the grain trade at sea as to the future of the markets. A good part of the sensational upturn which occurred between last March and the high point in July is reported to have been based on the belief that an inflation plan would be developed.

Drastic liquidation has been under way in all grains for two weeks, and at the low point Saturday wheat was selling at a figure which brought the average producer in the leading surplus sections of the country about 50 cents and corn less than 20 cents a bushel.

With these figures in view which compare with a 1909-'14 average of around 89 cents for wheat and 65 cents for corn, the trade is now wondering what new steps the administration will take in an effort to lift prices to the levels specified under the agricultural adjustment act.

Shortage Merits Higher Level.

There are many traders who feel that regardless of whether there will be outright inflation the great shortage in this year's yield of all grain warrants much higher prices. For a number of months, however, inflation talk and other factors have overshadowed the statistical position and the prospect of a shortage in supplies the latter part of the season. Some traders expressed themselves as believing the lowest levels likely to be witnessed the balance of the crop year were established Saturday, and this in the face of a showing that American prices were still the highest in the world when the quotations of other leading producers were reduced to the basis of United States funds.

All grains are strictly domestic markets as far as the United States is concerned, and theoretically there is no exportable surplus other than a relatively small amount of wheat, according to local experts. From a statistical standpoint the supplies of corn, oats, rye and barley are much smaller than domestic requirements in recent years.

Blame Government Interference.

Close students expressed the belief at the close Saturday that all grains were selling far below what they were intrinsically worth, and blame international governmental interference with the free flow of commodities for this condition. With the exception of the United States, no country appears to have taken a broad view of what is actually the matter with the grain markets and has made an effort to correct it. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace is regarded as having an extremely clear view of what is necessary, but has had relatively little assistance from abroad in his efforts, and so far the international wheat pact has not been a factor in lifting what is regarded as a distressingly low level.

Corrective Plan Ignored.

Prevailing prices for grain in the United States on a gold basis are about the lowest known, and the same applies to those in other countries. How this condition can be corrected has been repeatedly pointed out, and the remedy—that of no government interference—is regarded as the one thing that politicians oppose.

Drought involving millions of acres of winter wheat land in the United States has been ignored by the trade, and this condition may continue, just as it was ignored last fall and early the last year due to the beclouding of the situation by other factors.

Whether liquidation in the domestic wheat market has run its full course remains to be determined, and the

COST OF LIVING AGAIN HIGHER IN SEPTEMBER

New York, Oct. 15.—[Special.]—During September, for the fifth consecutive month, wage earners saw the cost of living rise, according to the index of the national industrial conference board.

Living costs advanced 1.3 per cent over those of August, 9.0 per cent over those of April, and 1.7 per cent over those of September, 1932. Compared with the level of September, 1929, however, living costs were still 22.7 per cent lower.

The board declares that the purchasing value of the wage earner's dollar was 128.4 cents in September, against 130.0 cents in August, 139.9 cents in April, and 100 cents in 1923.

Clothing Makes Big Gain.

Clothing prices have risen markedly since the upward movement of prices set in, according to the board. In September they advanced 8 per cent over those of August and were 24.5 per cent higher than in May. They exceeded those of September of last year by 17.8 per cent, but were still 23.3 per cent lower than in September, 1929.

Coal prices were 3.0 per cent higher than in August and five-tenths of one per cent higher than in September, 1932, but were 9.7 per cent below prices in September, 1929.

Rents advanced for the first time since September, 1930. They were six-tenths of one per cent higher than in August. However, they were still 9.8 per cent lower than in September, 1932, and 31.1 per cent lower than in the like month of 1929.

Sundries Up Slightly.

The cost of sundries increased one-half of one per cent over the cost in August. The level was slightly below that in September of last year and 6.1 per cent below that in September, 1929.

Food prices rose only slightly, according to the board. Nevertheless, they were 18.3 per cent above the low point of April and 6.6 per cent above the level of September, 1932. Since September, 1929, there has been a fall of 33.5 per cent.

Following is the table made public by the board:

HUNDREDTH BIRTHDAY OF STATE STREET AIDS CHICAGO RETAIL TRADE

Stimulated by a series of special events held in celebration of State street's one hundredth anniversary, the volume of sales of Chicago department stores ran considerably higher last week than during the preceding week, report trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. However, no figures are yet available on the total amount of sales in dollars. Winter clothing for women and children led other items in number of sales.

One of the larger wholesale houses in Chicago has announced that while its retail business has shown a noticeable gain over last year, the biggest increase was shown in its wholesale division, which is now running more than 70 per cent ahead of this time last year. One of the mail order houses, which has been reporting consistent gains since last June, announced that its sales have gone up an additional 8 per cent during the last four weeks.

Employment in manufacturing centers also improved during the last week. The winter program of one of the larger farm implement plants in Chicago calls for the reemployment of about 4,000 workers between now and April 1, and the company has already commenced the program by taking on a considerable number of these workers.

As a decided contrast to these improvements, steel production in the local mills dropped to new lows.

FRANCE TO CALL PART OF DOLLAR BONDS AT PAR

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 15.—J. P. Morgan & Co., as sinking fund administrators for French government external loan 7 per cent bonds due on Dec. 1, 1949, have announced that $3,000,000 of the bonds have been drawn for redemption on Dec. 1 at 105. This issue closed on the stock exchange on Saturday at 146.

Payments will be made at the office of Morgan & Co. here at the par value rate of 25.52 francs to the dollar and at the same rate at the office of Morgan & Cie. in Paris. This gold basis of 25.52 francs to the dollar compares with the open market rate of about 18 francs to the dollar on Saturday. Notice has been issued also by the French government that the coupons maturing on Dec. 1 on the 7 and 7½ per cent bonds will be paid at the same rate.

CODE FOR BANKS IN FORCE TODAY; HOLDS REFORMS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 15.—The bankers' code of fair competition will become effective tomorrow. It contains provisions for most of the reforms of the present banking system that are desired by the public, the government, and the bankers alike, according to F. N. Shepherd, executive manager of the American Bankers association.

The code, which applies in the United States proper to all national, state, private banks accepting deposits, trust companies, and savings banks, except mutual savings banks, will create important permanent benefits for banks and their customers, according to Mr. Shepherd.

Clearing Houses to Be Used.

After referring to former efforts of the American Bankers association toward banking coöperation to eliminate uneconomic practices through city, county, and regional clearing houses, Mr. Shepherd said existing associations would be used to carry out the provisions of the code, while clearing houses would be formed where there are none.

"The functions of clearing house associations go far beyond the technical operations of clearing or exchanging at a central point checks among members," Mr. Shepherd said in a statement on the new code issued today. "They serve rather as means for clearing or interchanging experience, ideas, and agreements to eliminate uneconomic practices among the member banks in order to build up better mutual understanding and a stronger common banking structure within the scope of their influence.

Cites Measures Accomplished.

"Among other coöperative measures is the clearing house credit bureau to assist in eliminating, through the confidential interchange of loan information by a key system, secret duplicate borrowers who frequently overextended themselves, resulting in disaster both to themselves and to the banks lending them money.

"Again, through joint action in clearing house associations, it has been possible for banks to do away with wasteful free services and other parasitic practices that overcompetition had brought into operation. The facts of experience show that overcompetition and many loose practices resulting from it were the cause of many bank failures and a large amount of banking weakness."

Steel Plants Face Relapse; Orders Drop

The acceleration of steel works operations by two points to 40 per cent, reflecting the urgency to complete specifications on expiring contracts, does not measure consuming demand, warns the magazine Steel.

"Due largely to the fact that the automobile industry is beginning the change over in models, and that users generally have just taken in large stocks, the prospects now are for a rather sharp reduction," observes the review.

New releases on fourth quarter contracts and spot purchases have been unusually light. At the same time relatively little tonnage remains to be rolled on third quarter contracts.

Delay Cutting Rail Prices.

"Rail mills appear in no hurry to respond to Coördinator Eastman's suggestion for a price of $35 a ton or less and it now seems they will not meet that figure," reports Steel. "In the meantime, railroad material releases are slow. The Northern Pacific has placed 12 locomotives with the American Locomotive company."

Chicago mills advanced their rate one point to 49 per cent; the Wheeling district, 10 to 45; New England, 20 to 95; Detroit, 9½ to 56; Pittsburgh, 2 to 40, and Youngstown, 2 to 57. At Buffalo the rate was unchanged at 29 per cent. Operations fell 8 points to 46 at Cleveland, 5 to 26½ in eastern Pennsylvania, and 4 to 30 at Birmingham.

The review reports that Ford is warming up four open hearth steel furnaces in preparation for opening the rolling mill at Fordson. He is inquiring for 10,000 tons of basic iron.

Predicts Advance in Prices.

"Further price advances in some iron and steel products appear likely, following a rise of $1.25 to $2 a ton in standard grades of furnace and foundry coke, which is expected to exert an influence on pig iron," says the magazine.

Nut and bolt manufacturers will increase their prices in November. If an important producer of stainless steel cuts base prices for bars, plates, and shapes, the introduction of quantity extras affects the net charges to consumers very little. Warehouses are applying a new plan "resulting in specific delivered prices in every city."

Scrap prices are still "soft," says Steel, and tend to decline. The spread between scrap and basic iron prices in some districts is now unusually wide. Steel's iron and steel price composite is off one cent at $31.59, and the scrap index is off 12 cents to $10.46; the finished steel composite is unchanged at $49.20.

Public Works May Be Speeded.

Mill books received 15,386 tons of structural shapes last week. The release of larger tonnages may be expedited by the expiration of price protections and by action on public works. Forty thousand tons of steel are to be released for Mississippi river improvements over the next three months.

"In a tentative stage at Chicago is a plan to spend gasoline tax funds to build 160 miles of elevated highways, which eventually would require 1,280,000 tons of steel," reports the review. Some larger tonnages are in prospect in plates.

SANTA FE CUTS THREE CLASSES OF FARES WEST

Reductions in its three class fare system will be made by the Santa Fé railway, effective Dec. 1, W. J. Black, passenger traffic manager, said yesterday. The coach fare between Chicago and Los Angeles will be cut from $40 to $34.50, which is at the rate of 1½ cents a mile. Cuts also will be made in the other two classes of fares, the standard sleeper and the tourist sleeper.

The new rates will apply between other eastern terminal points and Los Angeles and San Francisco.

VAST U. S. PLANS PUT SECURITIES MARKET IN DAZE

Traders Cautious; Prices React.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 15.—"Confusion Worse Confounded" plagues Wall street speculative thought anew with every turn of the calendar under this upside order of things economic. The last week has been a particularly disconcerting one to the stock trader trying to find out what it was all about with a view to future commitments.

Scarcely a day has passed without bringing forth the announcement of some new scheme in the administration's farflung efforts to enlarge purchasing power, efforts which have already evolved such bewildering credit outlays as the 400 million dollar cotton loan item, the 1 billion 700 million dollar public works program, the 650 million dollar direct relief project, the billion dollars for preferred stock of banks, and the unnumbered hundreds of millions to be used to liquidate closed banks, to say nothing of the long list of lesser items which the taxpayers of the present and the future will have to meet some time, somehow.

Wonder What Is End.

The diehard inflationists of the community got another rude jolt with the announcement of a treasury refunding operation involving nearly two billion dollars of Liberty bonds, a project which was widely accepted as a "sound money" gesture by the administration. Many took the gesture—if such it was—at its evident face value. Others accepted it with their tongues to the cheek, guessing that the greenback output had been merely postponed for awhile longer instead of being put away for good.

Proponents of both views, however, agreed that the development looked deflationary from the stock market viewpoint and united in unloading their holdings at reduced prices. The result was to bring about one of the sharpest single day's breaks since the mid-July debacle, the averages falling about 2¼ points on Friday.

Two Days Down, Two Days Up.

The list receded on two other of the five sessions—the exchange was closed Columbus day—and moved forward on the remaining two. The net result was a decline of around 2 points on the week as a whole. At the end of Saturday's trading THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's average on fifty representative stocks stood at $1.82, which is still above the so-called resistance level of the previous week's decline and some five points or more above the lows of July.

Of the different groups, mining shares came in for the worst ordeal on the week as a whole. Homestake, the big leader of the gold group, being pounded down some 54 points. The stock finished the week at 316, which compared with its recent high of 373. Alaska Juneau, Dome, McIntyre, and all the copper issues were sold in heavy volume with sharp reductions in listed value.

Repeal stocks had some bad days, the theory here being that the group has been badly overbuilded on the procession of wet states lining up from the recent elections. The farm implements were slaughtered rather mercilessly when wheat prices were going their worst. Railroads were weaker most of the time.

United States Government Securities

Liberty Fourth 4¼s 1938/33
Treasury 3¼s 1945/43

The Secretary of the Treasury of the United States has announced that approximately one-third of the outstanding Fourth Liberty Loan 4¼ per cent bonds of 1933-38 are called for redemption on April 15, 1934. At the same time it was announced that an issue of 10-12 year Treasury bonds, dated October 15, 1933, and bearing interest at the rate of 4¼ per cent per annum from that date to October 15, 1934, and thereafter at the rate of 3¼ per cent per annum, will be offered for subscription on October 16, and for a few days thereafter. The new bonds will be offered in exchange at par for any bonds of the Fourth 4¼ Liberty Loan issue, whether called or uncalled, and in the approximate amount of $500,000,000 for cash at 101½. The price for bonds allotted on cash subscription includes accrued interest from October 15 to November 1, 1933, the date on which payments on such subscriptions will be due.

The Fourth Liberty Loan 4¼ per cent bonds were originally issued in the amount of about $6,965,000,000 and were dated October 24, 1918. Since that time about $696,000,000 of these bonds have been retired, leaving about $6,268,000,000 outstanding. The present call provides for the redemption on April 15, 1934 of bonds of this issue bearing serial numbers ending with the digit 9, 0 or 1, and in the case of permanent coupon bonds also preceded by the letter J, K or A, respectively. The bonds called for redemption aggregate about $1,900,000,000.

We have prepared a table indicating the approximate yield of Treasury 3¼s, 1945/43 and called and uncalled Liberty Fourth 4¼s, 1938/33, copy of which is available upon request.

TRADE HORIZON TAKES ROSY HUE; CONSUMERS BUY

Business Reports Reveal Autumn Pickup.

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—The consumer again stirred himself last week to tint the business outlook with rosier hues. While industrial barometers still indicated somewhat unsettled conditions, mercantile reviews reported the best pickup in retail trade in weeks.

The first week of the NRA "buy now" drive, coinciding with the Columbus day holiday week, and ideal shopping weather, marked the "most impressive pickup of the fall season," said Dun & Bradstreet, reporting "sharp increases in retail distribution, particularly in rural communities."

The weekly statistics on electric power production, and the movement of revenue freight, showed small recessions, but the decline in freight movement was due to a drop in coal shipments, evidently reflecting labor difficulties, which more than offset a substantial gain in merchandise loadings. The total of 654,428 cars as reported for the latest week was 7,399 under the previous week. Miscellaneous freight, however, gained 12,607 cars, while coal receded 19,219.

Power Output About Steady.

The small decline in electric power production reduced the gain over 1932 to 9.3 per cent for the latest week compared to 10.2 per cent the week before. Automobile production, as calculated by Cram's service, dipped only 1,358 cars to 37,986, and while some recession in retail sales was indicated, it appeared that the October slump this year would be less than for this month in any of the past three years.

Lighter manufacturing lines continued to provide considerable cheer. The pickup in retail trade has been accompanied by more active wholesale purchases of consumers' goods. Woolen mills continued to operate at a high rate, some slight gains were reported in cotton textile production, radio manufacturers were said to be increasing their output, shoe companies were reported helped by settlement of labor difficulties.

Retail Trade Broadens.

Increased retail buying has embraced a wide range of merchandise. While wearing apparel has been prominent on the upswing, increased volume in household furnishings, electric appliances, heating equipment, groceries, and packaged goods was reported in many areas.

BUSINESS GROUP WILL TAKE OVER COMMERCE DATA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 15.—Trade associations and chambers of commerce throughout the country are arranging to assume a number of functions formerly carried on by the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce under the United States department of commerce, according to a statement issued today by E. P. Thomas, president of the National Foreign Trade council. Arrangements are being conducted by committees of the various groups affected under the auspices of the newly formed Federation of Foreign Trade Associations.

Edward N. Hurley, who has been appointed by Secretary of Commerce Roper as chairman of the committee on foreign service of the business advisory and planning council for the department of commerce, has authorized committees representing the trade association and chambers of commerce to undertake the work of setting up the organization to carry out important functions of the bureau curtailed by the economy program.

JAP ENVOY SEES U. S. TRADE BOOM WITH MANCHUKUO

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—Kensuke Horinouchi, consul general of Japan in New York, announced tonight that a new high record in American trade with Manchukuo was established in the seven month period ended July 31, last.

The new nation's imports from the United States during the period aggregated 17,983,000 yuan [silver dollars], the consul general said, while her exports to this country totaled 3,688,000 yuan.

The consul general estimated that the seven months' figures on American sales in Manchukuo represented an increase of more than 300 per cent over the entire year of 1932.

BUSINESS OF VARIETY STORES SHOWS GAIN DURING SEPTEMBER

Washington, D. C., Oct. 15.—(AP)—New commerce department figures on retail trade today showed that the nation spent more dollars in 5 cent, 10 cent to a dollar stores in September than in August and more than in September last year.

Some government economists said the gains were not as large as hoped for, but the continuing upward trend of consumption was regarded as essentially helpful.

The figures showed gains in spending of about 7.5 per cent in September over August, and about 5 per cent in September this year over September last year.

These statistics covered only variety stores. The gain over August this year was smaller than in any of the previous three years, but this was partially accounted for by August's unseasonal gain of 3.4 per cent over July.

But for the first time in this same period September showed an increase over September of the previous year. September, 1932, for example, was 11.4 under September, 1931; 1931 was 4.7 per cent under 1930, and 1930 was 8.4 per cent under 1929.

Government economists said increases were usual at this time of the year, but added they were particularly important at this time because of the unseasonal increases in production during the summer.

FARM PROGRAM IS LIKENED TO SOVIET SCHEME

production trend during the war," he explained. "When our program of adjustment is complete we shall find that we have shifted 40 million acres to use for work stock and for better living, and from a more intensive to a less intensive type of farming. Farmers will work fewer hours and yet produce all that the market will take of their products."

The AAA, he said, now advocates that dairy farmers reduce the surplus stocks of milk, butter and cheese by feeding less grain and more forage crops.

W. S. Moscrip, prominent Holstein breeder and president of the Twin City Milk producers of St. Paul, Minn., however, says the northwest council of which he is a member is convinced the AAA planned economy will work "untold troubles" on great numbers of farmers, if successful at all. He says the government could have taken marginal lands, now low priced at less than $10 an acre, and placed them back in the public domain, at no greater cost than conducting the present rental system of reducing crops. These lands would be held out pending their need to feed the nation.

Merely Shifting Burden.

Dean Chris Christianson of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture takes issue also with the government planned economy in lands. He contended, in a Chicago address last week, that the American dairy farmer is facing a new peril in the attempt to curtail acreage of crops that formerly were exportable.

Unless the government is able to shut out all imported products that might be competitors of those products it seeks to boost in price, and is able to keep all crops in proportionate reductions, Dean Christianson believes, it will "merely shift the plight of one group of farmers upon the shoulders of another."

And the national milk federation went on record declaring the government's bold scheme "is not production control, it merely is a shifting of production from one type of agriculture to another.

INCOME REPORT OF UNITED CORP. SHOWS DECLINE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, Oct. 15.—The United corporation reports for the third quarter of 1933 a net income of $2,506,088, which was equal, after dividends on the $3 preference stock, to 4.4 cents a share on 14,531,197 common shares. This compares with 5.5 cents in the second quarter and with 9.6 cents in the first quarter. For the third quarter of 1932, the net income was $3,407,787, or 10.6 cents a common share.

Dividends and interest received for the third quarter was $2,847,467, comparing with $3,636,756 the year before, exclusive of dividends received in stock, which consisted for the period this year of 4,849 shares of Columbia Gas and Electric corporation 5 per cent cumulative preference stock. Earned surplus on Sept. 30 was $3,022,086, compared with $7,382,511 on June 30 and $8,087,479 on Dec. 31 last.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New York, Oct. 15.—The floating supply of common stock of the United States Steel corporation increased 65,378 shares during the quarter ended Sept. 30, the company reports.

Brokers' holdings of common stock were 1,623,951 shares, or 18.66 per cent of the total of 8,703,252 common shares outstanding, compared with 1,558,573, or 17.91 per cent, on June 30, and 1,241,577 shares, or 14.27 per cent, on Sept. 30, 1932.

Brokers' holdings of preferred stock on Sept. 30 aggregated 346,624 shares, or 9.62 per cent of the total, compared with 344,309 shares, or 9.56 per cent, on June 30, and 309,581 shares, or 8.59 per cent, a year ago.

U. S. GOLD LOSS LAST WEEK PUT AT HALF MILLION

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 15.—Transactions in gold reported last week by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York revealed a net loss of $506,400 to the monetary stocks of this country, the largest loss in many weeks. In part this arose from the monthly transfers of gold by the treasury to meet foreign service pay rolls and in part through the licensing of shipments abroad of gold that had previously been held here in private banking institutions for the account of foreign central banks and governments.

Exports totaled $7,173,600, of which $6,720,300 went to France and $453,300 to Switzerland. Of the exports to France $6,667,200 came out of stocks previously earmarked at the federal reserve bank here. Shipments of newly mined gold for sale abroad aggregated 67,668 fine ounces.

Four Big Concerns to Act on Dividends This Week

New York, Oct. 15.—Among the corporations which will act on dividends this week are General Foods, Liggett & Myers, Ingersoll Rand, and Louisville Gas & Electric company.

Learn Beauty Culture at DeLee

Girls who learn beauty culture and hairdressing at DeLEE under the personal supervision of MADAME LOUISE, assure themselves good paying, pleasant positions. Visit DeLEE today and let the Dean explain exactly why you can get a better position with more pay if you are trained the DeLEE way. If you can't come in, write for the FREE DeLEE book!

Individual Instruction

At DeLEE you are not herded in a classroom with a hundred other girls. You actually receive individual, personalized instruction. The DeLEE "university type" of schooling is available to YOU at tuition fees no greater than those charged elsewhere for the ordinary "trade school" type of training. Terms can be arranged to suit you. When you are graduated the FREE DeLEE employment service will help place you in a good position. Visit DeLEE today—it's America's most modern, most beautiful beauty school. Or—write for the Free DeLEE Book, "Your Career in Beauty Culture."
